U. S. Judge Called from Ship for Quiz

FACES INQUIRY ON MANTON AND M'KESSON CASES

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The government today ordered Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas of Hartford, Conn., to cancel a vacation in Central America and return to New York for questioning by two federal grand juries.

Gregory F. Noonan, United States attorney in New York, wants to question him about the affairs of United States Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton, whose resignation under fire takes effect Tuesday, and in connection with the McKesson & Robbins drug swindle.

Ordered Back by Radio.

Judge Thomas sailed from New York aboard the liner Santa Barbara yesterday half an hour before Noonan attempted to serve a grand jury subpena on him. Learning of the judge's departure, Noonan radioed the captain of the liner to send Thomas back aboard the pilot boat, but the judge did not return. Then Noonan asked Brien McMahon, assistant United States attorney general, to order the judge back.

"I insist on your immediate return from the first port of call," McMahon wirelessed Judge Thomas.

Thomas then sent a message to New York saying he would return from Cristobal, Canal Zone, on the first available ship. The Santa Barbara is scheduled to reach Cristobal, its first port, on Thursday. A subpena for the judge, airmailed by Noonan, will be waiting there.

"It was physically impossible for me to leave the ship last night," the judge's message said. He said he had no knowledge of the subpena Noonan had planned to serve in New York.

Assigned to N. Y. Cases.

Noonan said he wanted Thomas to appear before the Manton jury because Manton frequently had assigned Thomas to sit in New York cases. Manton's resignation came after charges by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey that he had accepted nearly $450,000 from litigants in his court.

It is about one of these litigants that Noonan indicated he wanted to question Thomas. John T. Lotsch, board chairman of the Fort Greene National Bank of Brooklyn, was indicted on a charge of soliciting a bribe while a special master of the court. Judge Thomas freed Lotsch, and he was reindicted on a charge of extortion.

At that time, according to Dewey, a company controled by Manton owed Lotsch's bank $37,500. When the second indictment was called for trial Manton refused to disqualify himself and then quashed the charge.

Faces Receivership Quiz.

The McKesson & Robbins inquiry concerns the tangled affairs of the drug concern in which F. Donald Coster sought to maneuver a receivership to forestall directors opposed to his administration after the discovery that 18 million dollars' worth of assets were fictitious. Coster shot and killed himself Dec. 16 after he had been unmasked as an ex-convict whose real name was Philip Musica.

Two thousand unregistered shares of Mrs. Coster's stock in the drug concern were given to Mayor Thomas J. Spellacy of Hartford, Conn., who turned them over to City Attorney Vincent W. Dennis with a petition asking for an equity receiver.

Thomas appointed Spellacy one of the receivers, but two days later his action was superseded when a New York court named two trustees to take over the company.

Judge Thomas, a native of Woodstock, Ill., is a Democrat and is 66 years old. He was appointed to the federal bench in 1913 by President Wilson.

SHOWDOWN DUE IN CONGRESS ON FOREIGN POLICY

Defense Issue Will Be Fought Out.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Both houses of congress prepared today for the most serious discussions of America's foreign and national defense policies since the league of nations fight of 1919.

Members of the senate military affairs committee, resentful at being called liars by President Roosevelt as a result of quoting his remarks at a secret White House conference, were busy planning speeches in which they proposed to tell what actually was said by Mr. Roosevelt.

The house next Thursday will take up the special 552 million dollar program for strengthening the national defense by the purchase of 3,000 additional airplanes, emergency artillery, and other items. Consideration of this program will afford an opportunity for debate on the entire question of where the President is leading the nation.

Additional Millions Asked.

Chairman Andrew J. May [D., Ky.] of the house military affairs committee said that legislation authorizing appropriations for the special defense program had been completed and will be reported to the house early in the week. The President on Jan. 12 asked for the additional appropriation of 552 millions, which brought the total national defense fund for the year to 1 billion 661 million dollars.

The cry that Mr. Roosevelt is leading the United States along the road to war undoubtedly will be heard in both chambers. His defenders will cite his assertion of yesterday that he was "against any entangling alliances, obviously."

Full Story Awaited.

Out of the senate debate is expected to come at least the entire story of what was said by the President at his conference with the military affairs committee last Tuesday. Mr. Roosevelt confined his "deliberate lie" statement of yesterday to his reported statement that he had declared that America's frontier was "on the Rhine."

In the flurry of excitement over the President's angry remarks yesterday no reporter present at the press conference thought to ask Mr. Roosevelt exactly where he deemed the country's frontier to lie. This omission was remarked upon by Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.]. It undoubtedly will be rectified at the President's next conference on Tuesday.

Senators insisted today that the President had declared that England and France were America's first line of defense. His denial of the "Rhine frontier" statement therefore was a quibble, they asserted.

British Buying More Planes.

An announcement by the British air ministry today that Great Britain would purchase 250 airplanes in the United States in addition to 400 already on order was termed by Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson as of no significance to the controversy. [London story on page 4.]

"The British purchases are of planes which anybody could buy," he said. "The war department was not consulted since they are not on the restricted list."

The British orders are for training and reconnaissance machines, not combat planes such as the French are buying, Johnson said.

Propaganda Quiz Planned.

The committee on un-American activities, extension of which was approved yesterday by the house, will inquire into all propaganda intended to involve the United States in war, Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] declared.

Although Dies would not be quoted on the subject, the committee will include in this investigation propaganda fostered by government officials as well as by foreign governments, it was indicated. The Dies committee did not hesitate last year to expose communistic infiltration of the administration and the inquiry would not pause if it became apparent that administration officials are helping to bring the country to the brink of war, it was predicted.

WARLIKE CRIES OF ROOSEVELT PUZZLE EUROPE

(Turn to today's Graphic Section for the first instalment of "I Married a Nazi," the true story of an American girl, Margaret Porter Reinke.)

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Feb. 4.—No warlike situation menacing world peace or endangering American interests exists in Europe today as a counter part to or justification of President Roosevelt's reported alarming disclosures to the senate military affairs committee. Neither Reichsfuehrer Hitler nor Premier Mussilini has any military designs against the United States or the western hemisphere.

This, I am able to disclose, is the concensus of opinion of the American foreign service personnel in Europe. Members of this service are becoming increasingly dismayed, and some of them are indignant at the spetacle of American public opinion and legislators being inflamed by unfounded representations of facts about foreign affairs.

No War This Year, Is Belief.

No American military attaché abroad believes war in Europe is likely this year, despite the recurring red hot crises, and no one believes any design for a descent on South America could be successful even if such a design existed.

I am also able to disclose that the American foreign service personnel is bewildered by the direction which American opinion is being given by propaganda agencies of various kinds abroad.

Many believe President Roosevelt has been egged on from London and has become tangled up in British empire politics. Others assert he is taking his picture of events abroad from Washington braintrusters and not from what his own foreign service is reporting.

Only Jews Are Uneasy.

Not only American foreign service officials, but also neutral government statesmen discount the possibility of war in the immediate future. They are perplexed trying to understand Mr. Roosevelt's attitude. They are more perplexed since the reported statement of the President in conference with the senate military affairs committee that the American frontier is in France or on the Rhine.

Brussels is not disturbed. In Holland there is little uneasiness about Germany. What there is exists largely among the Jewish element, which has been selling its real estate and shipping its money to America.

This correspondent has discussed foreign affairs with American service officers stationed in six different countries in recent periods. All deplored the policy of unnecessarily inflaming American relations with the totalitarian countries.

Deplores Insults from U. S.

"It is almost unbelievable and it does our country no good for officials like Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York to insult the heads of foreign states and deliberately seek to embitter relations with Germany," one foreign service officer said.

I cite this as the view of a foreign service officer who is on the spot and who for that reason may be in a position to judge. The view was expressed that if the senate foreign affairs committee could interview foreign service officers it might get a different picture from that given by administration circles.

Calls War Scares False.

The old war rumor factory is working overtime again. Putting out war scares at this moment, especially in England, is intended for the purpose of creating a popular psychology which will make recruiting for both passive and active defense easier. It should be taken for what it is in America and nothing more, many observers think.

False rumors about secret treaties, partial mobilizations, troop concentrations, and threats are deliberately fomented by one side or another for diplomatic and group pressure reasons, and American opinion stands to become as much decieved as it was in 1917.

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 4.—(AP)—When a marble mill near here shut down in 1911, J. C. Shook, watchman, was ordered to stay on the job and "have things ready to swing in 24 hours." Shook still is on the job, and although the buildings are a bit dilapidated the machinery is oiled and ready to run. Shook isn't even sure who owns the plant now; "some firm up north," he says vaguely. But his checks arrive regularly and his employers are "awfully nice to work for."

LOYALISTS LAY TERMS FOR PACT BEFORE BRITAIN

Hear London Will Act as Mediator.

PERPIGNAN, France [At the Spanish Frontier, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Spanish government was reported in reliable quarters tonight to have requested Great Britain to open secret negotiations with the rebel régime to end the two and one-half year old civil war.

The broad qualifications contained in the reported overtures, however, raised a question as to the success of the move.

The overtures were disclosed at a time when Premier Juan Negrin's government took first steps toward abandoning all of Catalonia — Spain's northeastern corner—to Gen. Francisco Franco's conquering rebel forces. The government previously indicated it would attempt to make a last stand in the central part of Spain, embracing Valencia and Madrid, which it still controls.

Confer in Paris.

In Paris, Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador, conferred this evening with Georges Bonnet, French foreign minister. It was his third visit in twenty-four hours, and apparently was connected with the Spanish government's action.

It was believed that Senator Leon Berard of France, who on Thursday was sent to the rebel capital in Burgos by his government on an "unofficial" mission, might take part in presenting the Spanish government's case to insurgent authorities.

In the request to the British government, it was understood, Spanish government authorities stipulated that the peace talks be opened with three points enunciated by Negrin Wednesday as the background.

Presented to Parliament.

These points, presented to the cortes [parliament] in Figueras as the government's aims, were:

THIRD—Liquidation of the war without persecution to permit all Spaniards to join in the country's reconstruction.

[In London a spokesman of the Spanish government embassy acknowledged that the plight of the government in Catalonia was such that an attempt might be made to transfer the capital to Valencia. He denied, however, any attempt to treat for peace had been made through Great Britain.]

Worried by Retreat.

French officials were worried by the steady retreat of the Spanish government's army of approximately 200,000 men toward the French frontier. The Paris government had suggested an armistice to the rebels, but Franco had turned it down. It was then that the Negrin government approached the British with peace negotiations, high sources said.

Independently of British negotiations, it was asserted that Berard had been charged with attempting to arrange the mass surrender of the government's Catalonian army. French officials, fearing a mass crossing of their frontier by retreating government troops, perhaps under gunfire, want Franco publicly to proclaim a mass pardon for government soldiers.

To Offer Envoy.

In return for favorable rebel action, Berard had been instructed to propose a permanent French mission to Burgos. Working to cut down Italian and German influence with Franco, such a French mission would be in addition to the French embassy with the Spanish loyalist government.

The Spanish government's situation in Catalonia grew worse hourly. Franco's troops, conquerors of the important city of Gerona this morning, smashed steadily northward toward the French frontier. They pressed relentlessly into the little Catalonian territory left in government control.

Schultz Widow Links Hines to Policy Racket

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

Taking the witness stand in the second trial of the Democratic boss, Mrs. Frances Flegenheimer, 24 years old, was a surprise witness called by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey just before court adjourned over the week-end.

She did not testify in the first trial, which was thrown out on a technicality last fall by Tammany Judge Ferdinand Pecora. Hines is being tried a second time on charges of conspiracy arising from the 20 million dollar a year policy game racket operated by the Schultz gang. Hines is charged with having been the political protector of the gang.

Meets Gangster When 16.

Today, in her first public appearance, Mrs. Flegenheimer described her first meeting with Hines in "The Stable," a cabaret in the Broadway bright light section.

A native New Yorker, she said she went to work as a hat check girl and met Schultz when she was 16 years old. That was in Ponti's restaurant just off Broadway. They were married Nov. 22, 1932, and had two children, Nancy, 4 years old, and John, 3.

"Do you know the defendant, Hines?" asked Dewey.

"Yes, I've met him," said the widow, glancing toward the silver haired, ruddy faced defendant, sitting among his attorneys.

"I was in The Stables with Arthur in December of 1932," she went on. "Hines came in and walked to the rear of the place where we were sitting in a booth."

"What happened then?"

Told to "Forget" Meeting.

"Arthur presented Mr. Hines," replied the witness. "Then Arthur and Mr. Hines walked away from the table. They were gone about half an hour. When Mr. Hines left, Arthur said I should forget I ever had seen Hines."

Mrs. Flegenheimer was the second woman to be drawn into the Hines case under rather surprising circumstances within two days. During the inquiry yesterday into the suicide of George Weinberg, Dewey's star witness, it became known that a "mysterious blonde" had been a regular visitor to the hideaway in White Plains where Weinberg killed himself. It then was revealed that she is Mrs. Leo Zupnick, a sister of Dixie Davis, former lawyer for the Schultz gang who has pleaded guilty and turned state's witness. Mrs. Zupnick was called in to cook for the men in the hideaway after complaints arose over the bill of fare.

BIRDS FIRE CHURCH; NATURE'S SPRINKLER PUTS OUT THE BLAZE

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Memphis firemen came up with this report on an automatic sprinkler system that snuffed a church steeple fire: A bird carried a match to its nest on the steeple. It accidentally scratched the match, setting the nest afire. The flames melted icicles on the steeple and the water put out the fire.

23 LEGISLATORS 'FREED' AFTER A NIGHT IN PRISON

Fort Madison, Ia., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Twenty-three Iowa legislators were released today after sleeping behind the bars of Iowa State prison last night. Four of them slept in "death row" where condemned murderers await execution.

"It was a lot more quiet than the hotel where I stay," said Representative J. F. Miller of Humboldt.

Warden Glenn C. Haynes, who entertained the men on their junket of inspection, said all the guests got a thrill from the experience and that none of them appeared to have had a bad night.

"We just put them in whatever vacant cells we could find," the warden said, "and locked them up."

MakesPayment onWedding Suit 63 Years Afterward

Altoona, Pa., Feb. 4.—(AP)—A lifelong resident of Hollidaysburg is still paying for his wedding sixty-three years ago. He walked into the clothing store of Thomas H. Suckling and handed Suckling a $10 bill, saying: "I want to make a payment on a wedding suit I bought here in 1876." Suckling gave him a receipt.

...ary capital, was only twenty miles from the fighting lines tonight. Premier Negrin and his ministers had left for "somewhere in Catalonia." One report was that the government leaders planned to fly to Valencia to set up a new capital.

Planes Ready for Premier.

Airplanes were reported awaiting Negrin and his ministers at Catalonian airports near the French border. It was believed the top ranking officials would go to Valencia by air when they decide residence is no longer possible in Catalonia.

The insurgents' fast advance along the highway between Gerona and Figueras promised few days of grace for the government before the last bit of Catalonia comes under Franco's red and gold banners.

Figueras, where 300 persons were officially reported killed and 800 wounded in an insurgent air raid yesterday, was bombarded again late today by a squadron of seven planes. First estimates were that a score were killed and many wounded in the latest attack.

French Open Fire.

Three other insurgent planes which bombed the Spanish towns of Agullana and Darnius near the frontier swooped over the French village of Las Illas, but turned back when French anti-aircraft guns opened fire.

Two hours later three insurgent bombers flew over French territory near Cerbere, but swung back over Portbou, on the Mediterranean just across the frontier in Spain, when they were caught in a criss-cross of French army searchlights and a warning burst of anti-aircraft.

This trio bombed the outskirts of Portbou and the refugee-filled coast road at San Miguel de Culbera. Reports were lacking on the number of casualties resulting from their raid.

Admits Troops Routed.

Government army officers arriving in Perpignan admitted frankly the insurgent advance had turned into a rout for their troops. They said that only before Seo de Urgel, near the Andorran frontier, was there any "real resistance."

The rebel line extended northwest from San Feliu de Guixols to about two and one-half miles north of Gerona, dipped southwest to a point just above Vich, and swung north beyond Berga through Arfa, only four miles from Seo de Urgel.

Rebel warplanes flew at will over northern Catalonia, bombing and machine gunning the few remaining government controled towns. Roads leading into France were jammed with women, children and old men, hungry and seeking haven.

Italian General Wounded.

ROME, Feb. 4.—(AP)—An Italian news agency dispatch from Burgos today said Gen. Bitossi, commander of the Littorio division of Italian Legionnaires fighting with the Spanish rebels, was wounded in the leg by a machine gun bullet during the advance on Gerona in northeast Spain. He commanded his division despite the wound, the message said.

CHARGES HITLER OUTSWAPS U. S.: BIRDS FOR ARMS

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Matthew Woll, a vice president of the American Federation of Labor, charged tonight the treasury department was permitting Germany to obtain such war materials as cotton, copper, and scrap iron from this country by dumping "unneeded harmonicas, bird cages, and canaries."

He said the deals violated the President's foreign policy and that "undoubtedly President Roosevelt is unaware of this procedure of the secretary of the treasury which has reacted to the great advantage of Hitlerism."

Permitting Germany to pay for the American goods by dumping its exports in this country, Woll charged, "has resulted in the loss of millions of dollars in revenue to our government as well as the loss of job opportunities to many thousands of American workers." He added:

"Had our laws been properly enforced, Hitler would not today be the menace he is to world peace, because he would not have been provided with these millions of dollars' worth of war munitions, otherwise unavailable to him."

As president of America's wage earners' protective conference, composed of A. F. of L. unions, Woll restated previous complaints by the group that in permitting the import of German goods the treasury evaded imposition of certain duties and penalties provided by the 1930 tarif act and the 1921 anti-dumping act.

Rebels Take More of Catalonia

ITALY DECREES FIGHT TO FINISH AGAINST MADRID

Declares Gen. Franco Must Win.

ROME, Feb. 5.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—The Fascist grand council served notice today that Italian troops "will not abandon" the Spanish struggle "before it is ended, as it must end, with Franco's victory."

The council expressed "profound satisfaction" with Reichsfuehrer Hitler's speech to the reichstag Monday, 'in which he reaffirmed the political, ideological, and military solidarity which unites the two Fascist and National Socialist [Nazi] revolutions to the future of the two peoples."

Silent About France.

A statement issued after the grand council meeting, which ended at 1:15 a. m., indicated that Premier Mussolini did not think the moment had arrived to diclose Fascist demands on France, but would push on for a complete victory for Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel commander. Recently there have been demonstrations in Italy for Mediterranean and African territorial concessions from France.

The statement announced that Il Duce had outlined the "general international situation" to the council and Foreign Minister Count Galleazo Ciano had explained to the members "certain particular aspects of Italy's foreign policy."

The grand council will meet again next Friday. Italy's supreme defense commission will hold its sixteenth session tomorrow [Monday]. Mussolini heads the commission, which is composed of cabinet members and high military and naval commanders.

Brush Aside Roosevelt Denial.

Yesterday the controled Italian press brushed aside President Roosevelt's denial of reports that he had said America's frontier was on the Rhine or in France by questioning its sincerity.

Newspapers called the denial tardy and took the view that it was prompted by an uproar of criticism in the United States which, they said, the President now was attempting to quell for political reasons.

Fascist commentators asserted that, whether Roosevelt did or did not tell the senate military affairs committee on Tuesday that the American frontier lay some place in Europe, such a view was in line with his policies—which were regarded here as anti-Fascist.

Continuation of such policies, they said, would mean that Italy, Germany, and Japan would have to take "defense measures." They repeated that their frontier would be the Panama Canal.

Press Clamors for Colonies.

An increasing amount of newspaper space was devoted to the Fascist clamor for concessions from France.

Relazioni Internationali, a foreign affairs review, said the democracies must prepare to consider colonial claims of Italy and Germany by "reconciling themselves to the idea of having to transfer territory and to recognize rights."

The magazine declared that France already was an aggressor against Italy by having tried to stand in her way.

Il Giornale D'Italia charged that France and soviet Russia still were aiding the Spanish government forces to resist the rebels by sending in arms and munitions.

WOMAN FOUND SHOT IN DOUBLE TRAGEDY DIES

Mrs. Sarah Wade, 58 years old, who was found shot and stabbed in her hotel room at 536 Rush street near the body of her husband, Lawrence J. Wade, on Jan. 24, died of her wounds in the Psychopathic hospital yesterday. Wade was 52 years old and a telephone company employé.

Police believe that Mrs. Wade shot her husband as he was sleeping, then slashed her wrists with a razor and shot herself. A farewell note blamed "another woman" and named her as Mrs. Blanche Grimme.

Mrs. Grimme appeared at the inquest into Wade's death, identified herself merely as Blanche Trojan—her maiden name—but gave no other testimony. Outside the inquest hearing she denied any misconduct with the slain man. Their friendship was platonic, she said.

Woman, 60, Hangs Self in Bedroom of Her Home

Mrs. Mollie Pickhardt, 60 years old, a widow, was found hanging in her bedroom at 1415 Hutchinson street last night by her son, F. F. Pickhardt. She had stood on a chair and kicked it from under her after attaching a noose from the top of an inadoor bed. The son told police he knew of no reason for her death.

GERMAN ANGER OVER ROOSEVELT WAR CRY GROWS

Nazi Press Calls Denial 'Play with Words.'

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—President Roosevelt's denial of statements he is reported to have made before the senate military affairs committee is adding to the storm of indignation in Germany rather than abating it. The Germans declare the denial is "wholly inadequate." Most newspapers brand it as a "play with words" and express distrust or downright incredulity.

The semi-official Der Angriff declares that "Roosevelt is scared by his own courage," and labels the "much delayed denial" as a "tactical retreat." The Lokalanzeiger speaks of a "denial on crutches."

Cannot "Whistle Back Storm."

"Roosevelt's denial recedes into the background," the Lokalanzeiger says, "especially since it was worded as noncommittally as possible. It would be absurd to join in the play with words now being attempted by Washington.

"Roosevelt may continue to throw dust into the eyes of the American people, but they are putting up a stiff resistance and the range of his power is limited. Roosevelt will be unable to whistle back the storm he has created. The four points in Roosevelt's program can only tend to increase the uncertainty and distrust."

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt says: "If unscrupulousness has reached a point where the European nations are systematically incited against each other in order that twelve million American jobless may get employment in the manufacture of murder instruments, then it is necessary to call a halt on these criminal activities."

French Are Amazed.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 4.—Amazement that President Roosevelt allowed three days to pass before he denied press versions of his statement to the senate military affairs committee dominates all comment here.

The denial was more warmly welcomed by many in France than were the press versions. This is because the statements attributed to Mr. Roosevelt by the press seemed to contradict not only to traditional American policy, but also that of Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet of France, and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain.

They seemed to imply that all hope of maintaining peace in Europe was lost, or near it. This interpretation does not correspond with the best expert analysis of the situation by French and British observers. They had formed the opinion that Reichsfuehrer Hitler's speech to the reichstag was an admission that Germany was not prepared for war.

BRIDGES TO TALK PLENTY IF FREED FROM SECRECY

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Senator H. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] today termed President Roosevelt's secret foreign affairs conference of last Tuesday "an unheard of thing," and added, "there's a hell of a mess down there [in Washington] now."

If released from the pledge of secrecy imposed by the President on the eighteen senators who attended the conference, Bridges said he would "talk plenty" about what occurred at the conference.

"Some of the things the President said were pretty inflammatory," said Bridges. "They could never publish the stenographic record, if one was made. I saw no one taking notes."

ASK FOE OF DICTATORS TO FORM NEW CABINET TO RULE JUGO-SLAVIA

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Disagreement within the cabinet of Premier Milan Stoyadinovitch over how to handle the Croatian autonomy movement brought the downfall of his government today.

Milan Stoyadinovitch.

Prince Paul, head of the regency council governing Jugo-Slavia during the minority of 15 year old King Peter II., tonight asked Dragisha Tsvetkovitch, one of the five resigned ministers responsible for the cabinet crisis, to form a new government.

Tsvetkovitch had been minister of health and a member of Stoyadinovitch's government since 1935 when he organized the Jugo-Slav National Workmen's Trade union. He is 46 years old and is known as a strong opponent of dictatorships.

Croatians have long attacked the "Serbian rule" by Belgrade and have sought autonomy or independence, with Zagreb as their capital.

HUNGARY UNDER ARMY LAW; DEATH FOR TERRORISTS

Cabinet Acts After Bomb Injures 20.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The government tonight put Hungary under martial law to combat political violence. Special courts were empowered to impose the death penalty by hanging within forty-eight hours after arrest in certain cases.

This action, taken by the cabinet at an emergency session, was prompted by a bomb explosion last night in Budapest's largest synagogue. The explosion injured about twenty persons.

Suppress Nazi Newspaper.

The cabinet also suppressed for two months the Nazi newspaper Magyarsag, personal organ of the jailed Nazi leader, Ferenc Szalasi. He was sentenced last July to three years' imprisonment for "incitement." The government made no comment on the suppression. The Magyarsag had been clamoring for stern anti-Semitic laws.

The government also suspended for one month the newspaper Nyolc Orai Ujsag, organ of former Premier Count Stefan Bethlen, which had been mildly critical of Premier Bela Imredi's régime.

Court Given Wide Power.

The chief provision of the martial law decree was that persons possessing explosives, bombs, or firearms with intent to make an assault on public order or who are caught while committing acts of violence are to be tried by a special tribunal.

The special tribunal may make only one of two decisions—innocent or guilty and subject to the death penalty within twenty-four hours. Trial must take place within twenty-four hours after arrest.

It was the first martial law in Hungary since 1931.

MOSCOW RADIO HAILS ROOSEVELT AS ALLY OF REDS

Broadcasts the News in Several Languages.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Feb. 4.—Little credence is attached in soviet Russia and the Baltic states to President Roosevelt's denial that he informed the senate military affairs committee that the American frontier is now in France.

The communist Internationale radio station in Moscow ignores the denial. Its foreign language broadcasts today continued to inform listeners that Mr. Roosevelt now stands solidly together with the soviet government for an uncompromising attitude toward what it described as aggressor nations.

It also was reported from Moscow that Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov has discussed with American officials the possibility of American consular officials in Budapest representing Moscow's interests in Hungary.

Envoys Question Reds.

Russia's action in ordering the Hungarian legation in Moscow to close because Hungary had agreed to join the anti-communist Internationale pact brought inquiries at the soviet foreign office by several foreign diplomats as to whether this action indicated that the soviet government now identifies its interests with those of the communist Internationale.

[The soviet government contends it has no official connection with the Internationale, which is an organization to stir up revolutionary action throughout the world. The Internationale was founded by Nicolai Lenin in 1919 and has its headquarters in Moscow.]

Jews Hail Roosevelt.

It does not matter, says the Riga Sevodnja, if the American people repudiate the President's action, because he has definitly drawn America into European affairs.

This newspaper, Jewish owned, expresses the views of other Jewish newspapers in these countries.

Anzel Reiss, chairman of the Palestine central committee of Poland; Golder Meirson, member of the committee of world Zionist organizations, and David Remez, general secretary of the Palestine trade union congress, declared that "three and a half million Polish Jews greet with joy and thanksgiving the recent statement attributed to President Roosevelt and his courageous stand against dictators."

Torpedo Blast Kills Two During Italian Maneuvers

NAPLES, Italy, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Death of two sailors and injury of a third by a torpedo which broke a steam pipe in the dynamo room of the torpedo boat Giuseppe Dezza were announced today. An official statement said a torpedo fired during maneuvers last Thursday, presumably by another Italian ship, slightly damaged the torpedo boat and broke a pipe, filling the dynamo room with live steam.

BAR PARLIAMENT TO PUBLIC; FEAR PLOT OF BOMBERS

Blast Wrecks Prison Wall in Liverpool.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The houses of parliament were closed to the public today for the first time since the world war as a precaution while Britain sought to suppress the wave of terrorism attributed to the outlawed Irish Republican army.

The Sunday Dispatch reported raids in Belfast, Northern Ireland, resulted in discovery of plans to blow up Buckingham palace, Windsor castle, the house of commons and the Bank of England. The newspaper's report, which lacked official confirmation, said the raids also uncovered details of a plot to assassinate British politicians and high police officials.

King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth were at the royal lodge at Windsor, which was kept under a special watch.

A bomb exploded late tonight against the wall of Walton prison in Liverpool, where several persons were being held in connection with the wave of explosions. Bricks were torn from the wall, but the blast failed to make an opening. No one was injured.

Seek to End Outrages.

The governments of Great Britain, Ireland, and Northern Ireland were coöperating closely in a large scale campaign to stamp out the outrages, which began Jan. 16 with a series of eight explosions. Intensified action followed explosions yesterday in two of London's subway centers in which eight persons were injured. Nearly 10,000 police were on duty.

The oath-bound international Irish secret society, known as the Irish Republican Brotherhood, was believed by some investigators to be providing the inspiration for the terrorism in an organized anti-British drive.

The brotherhood was formed in 1853 to unite Irishmen throughout the world in a scheme to establish an independent Irish republic completely separated from Great Britain. The Irish Republican army has described as the brotherhood's active weapon. The army is the extremist Irish Nationalist organization, of which both governments of Ireland and Northern Ireland disapprove strongly. It has an estimated 3,000 members in Britain, but its strength in Ireland is not known.

Blast Wrecks Club.

Two incidents during the day, one in Torquay on England's south coast, and one in Slough, sent Scotland Yard experts rushing out of London in the belief that the terrorists had struck again. At Torquay an explosion wrecked the headquarters of the Conservative club, but the blast was believed due to accidental ignition of gas.

An early morning fire in an airplane parts factory at Slough was punctuated by a series of explosions which Scotland Yard men finally decided were caused by bursting oil drums.

Revolvers were issued to police in Bristol after receipt of a threat to blow up big gasoline storage tanks in that important west coast port. Special guards were placed over docks.

HITLER OUSTS 3 MORE DIRECTORS OF REICHSBANK

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—Reichsfuehrer Hitler today removed three more directors of the reichsbank and named three new men to the board. The dismissed directors are Carl Ehrhardt, Karl Blessing, and Wilhelm Vocke. The newly appointed members are Friedrich Wilhelm, Kurt Lange, and Walter Bayrhofer. Wilhelm is a member of the reichsbank staf. Lange is from the ministry of economics and Bayrhofer from the ministry of finance.

Today's action followed the dismissal recently of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht as president and two other directors of the reichsbank. Walther Funk is the new president of the bank.

CODE FOR JEWS HELPS REFUGEES WIN IN ENGLAND

Board Informs Newcomer About Pitfalls.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—A code of conduct for German Jewish refugees arriving in this country has been prepared by the board of deputies of British Jews. A copy, printed in English and German, is being issued to every German Jewish refugee in Great Britain.

Instructions on registration and a list of "useful organizations" are followed by an explanation of the position of British Jewry.

Loyalty to New Land.

"The traditional tolerance and sympathy of Britain and the British commonwealth toward the Jews," states the pamphlet, "is something which every British Jew appreciates profoundly. On his part he does all in his power to express his loyalty to Britain and the British commonwealth, in word and in deed, by personal service and by communal effort.

"This loyalty comes first and foremost, and every refugee should realize how deeply it is felt.

"The Jewish community in Britain will do its very utmost to welcome and maintain all refugees, to educate their children, to care for the aged and the sick, and to assist in every possible way in creating new homes for them overseas.

"All that we ask from you in return is to carry out to your utmost the following lines of conduct. Regard them as duties to which you are in honor bound."

Social Paths Charted.

Then follow instructions on social behavior intended to smooth the path of the refugee among his British hosts and to prevent him from unwittingly creating a bad impression. Some of these are:

"Spend your spare time immediately in learning the English language and its correct pronunciation.

"Refrain from speaking German in the streets and in public conveyances and in public places such as restaurants.

"Do not read German newspapers in public.

"Do not join any political organization, or take part in any political activities.

"Do not make yourself conspicuous by speaking loudly, nor by your manner or dress. The Englishman greatly dislikes ostentation.

"Try to observe and follow the manners and customs and habits of this country in social and business relations.

"Above all, realize that the Jewish community is relying on you to uphold in this country the highest Jewish qualities, to maintain dignity and to help and serve others."

Hospitality Wooed.

Refugees are instructed to regard their stay in England as a mark time period in which to prepare for a new life.

"Do not expect to be received immediately in English homes," the pamphlet urges, "because the Englishman takes sometime before he opens his home wide to strangers."

Finally come instructions to refugees on their duty to observe the home office rules concerning the acceptance of employment.

"The home office," it is stated, "cannot allow anything which will be to the detriment of British employers and workpeople, or take work away from them while there are still a very large number of British men and women out of employment.

"It must not be said that the refugees are taking work away from the British workers.

"You must not accept any employment, paid or unpaid, or engage in any business or profession, without written permission from the aliens department of the home office. Nor may you take permitted work at a wage less than the customary wage.

Aid in Business, Too.

"The home office gives consideration to the case of business men who may be able to start factories in the 'special areas' of northeast England, Cumberland, South Wales, West Scotland, and Northern Ireland, and thereby employ British workers who might otherwise be unemployed.

"The home office is favorably disposed to the establishment of businesses which can create new export trade, but it would not be favorably disposed to a business which might compete with existing British businesses, nor one which merely imports finished goods."

Details are also given concerning the training of young persons, and in conclusion all refugees are urged to obey the rules in the spirit as well as in the letter.

SPATTER FASCIST ADMIRAL WITH EGGS IN PANAMA

Duce's Good Will Envoy Has to Change Clothes.

PANAMA CITY, Panama, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Anti-Italian demonstrators today pelted with eggs and vegetables an automobile bearing the Italian minister and an Italian admiral and his aides on an official visit to President Dr. Juan Demostenes Arosemena.

The car was badly spattered, and so much refuse flew in before the window could be closed that the party had to return to the admiral's visiting flagship to change clothes before making the call.

The disturbance took place about noon and lasted between fifteen and twenty minutes. The minister, Italo Capanni, and the admiral, Eduardo Somigli, had just passed Santa Ana plaza on the way to the presidential palace when the outbreak began. Somigli is commander of the Italian 7th naval division, consisting of the cruisers Eugenio di Savoia and Emanuele Filiberto Duca d'Aosta, on a world cruise to demonstrate Italian naval strength.

Police Round Up Demonstrators.

Police reinforcements arrived shortly after the disturbance started, and began to gather in the participants. Originally the demonstrators numbered between thirty and fifty, but the group increased as store and office workers left their jobs for lunch.

As fast as the disturbers could be arrested and arraigned each was sentenced to ten days in jail on charges of disorderly conduct and inciting the populace.

The executive power, that is the president and minister of justice, ordered subordinate authorities sternly to prevent further infractions of "Panama's traditional hospitality" during the visit of the Italian ships. Police reserves were ordered to barracks to be ready for emergency duty.

Petition Is Refused.

The Anti-Fascist league yesterday had petitioned Mayor C. M. Ossa for permission to hold a demonstration, but the request was refused. During the night, stickers bearing such phrases as "Death to Mussolini; Viva Roosevelt" and "Down with Franco and the slayers of women and children" were pasted on billboards, walls, curbs and telephone poles.

SEIZES ESCAPED MADMAN AS THIEF AFTER A CHASE

George Duncan, 24 years old, described by police as an escaped charge of the Manteno State Hospital for the Insane, was captured early today by a citizen into whose home he had broken.

According to police, Duncan was interrupted burglarizing the home of Earl Wegner at 707 West North avenue. Wegner pursued him a block in North avenue. Duncan, police said, took off his overcoat and threw it at Wegner's feet as the latter was about to seize him.

Wegner tripped over the coat, but managed to grab Duncan and hold him for Policeman Lester Carr of the Hudson avenue station. Police said they found $200 worth of jewelry, taken from the Wegner home, in Duncan's pockets. Duncan escaped from the insane asylum six months ago, according to the police.

Syrians Declare Independence; Revolt Against France Grows

BY B. NOON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALEXANDRETTA, Republic of Hatay, Jan. 17.—[By Air Mail Via Turkey.]—Aroused by a French senatorial committee's refusal to recommend ratification of the treaty of 1936, which would grant freedom to Syria this year, the Syrian parliament has taken matters into its own hands and declared that Syria henceforth will consider itself independent.

In a historical meeting which introduced a new phase of France's troubled relations with Syria, over which France holds a mandate, the parliament also voted:

FIRST—To prepare the entire nation to sacrifice all that it owns to defend the integrity and independence of Syria.

SECOND—In case of war Syria will not coöperate with France.

Renew Anti-French Strikes.

An immediate result was the speedy arrival in Beirut, Syria, from France of Gabriel Puaux, new French high commissioner for Syria and Lebanon, and a renewal, after almost two years of quiet, of widespread anti-French demonstrations and strikes.

The French-Syrian treaty, initialed on Sept. 26, 1936, was signed last November by Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet of France and Premier Djemil Mardan of Syria. In December, however, the French senate's foreign relations committee refused to recommend its ratification—a decision blamed upon growing French-Italian friction.

A French spokesman said that, in view of Italian clamor for French possessions in Africa and the Mediterranean, France could not agree to an independent Syria now when all possible military and naval bases are needed.

Strikes Tie Up Four Towns.

General strikes were declared in the four main towns of Syria—Damascus, Aleppo, Homs, and Hamma. Not a single shop, café, or restaurant remained open. The street car company in Damascus, which is owned by French interests, tried to continue operation. Its cars were stoned and finally they were taken off the streets.

About 150,000 persons participated in a demonstration against France in Damascus. In Aleppo 100,000 demonstrated, and in Homs and Hamma between 20,000 and 30,000 each.

Many marchers carried Syrian flags and shouted: "Long live Syria, free and independent!"

In Aleppo demonstrators stopped at the Italian consulate, where they cried: "Down with France! Down with Daladier and Bonnet!" [Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet of France].

Cries Defiance at France.

Demonstrators in Damascus called at the palace of President Hashem bey Al-Atassi. In response to cheers, he made a short speech asking the demonstrators to be calm and prudent, and to unite and rely upon their government.

Minister of Interior Sadullah bey Al-Jabri told the crowd:

"The fate of Syria is not and will never be in the hands of France nor the high commissioner. We have signed with France a treaty of alliance and independence and we have respected our signature, but France, unfortunately, has not. Whether France signs the treaty or not, we do not care.

"Our parliament, which represents the true will of the nation, has declared this country independent and we shall henceforth exercise our work without coöperating with French advisers. We admit that France is strong in arms and ammunition, but we also are strong—in our faith and union. France has airplanes and bombs, but we have Prophet Mohammed and Almighty God."

French Troops Parade.

France's answer came the next day. French authorities in the four large towns paraded French troops through the streets, and Commissioner Puaux broadcast a warning: "I have come to work with sincerity and I hope that wise Syrian statesmen will coöperate with me. If they refuse I wish to remind them of France's strength and preparedness.

New demonstrations followed in Damascus and Aleppo, with the demonstrators crying, in response to Puaux apparently: "We do not want France. Let the whole world know that we do not want France!"

Three Atlantans Kidnaped by 9 Hooded Men in Car

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Three unidentified men were reported abducted in downtown Atlanta tonight by nine hooded men in two automobiles. The abductors were described as wearing regalia similar to that of the Ku Klux Klan. Imperial Wizard Hiram W. Evans of the K. K. K. denied from Augusta, Ga., that Klansmen were involved and insisted the purported abductions were the work of persons trying to bring discredit to the order. The Constitution said it had evidence that six men were taken in the kidnapings, which followed one another swiftly.

TAXI DRIVER DIES AT WHEEL.

FLORIDA SPLIT ON REVIVAL OF CANAL PROJECT

Southern Section of State Heads Opposition.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Feb 4.—[Special.]—Florida is split into two opposing camps over President Roosevelt's recent letter to congressional committee chairmen urging revival of the 200 million dollar Florida Gulf-Atlantic ship canal project. From the southern part of the state protests are raised that the canal would transform it from a peninsula into an island and sever its fresh water supply in underground rivers, causing heavy damage to the citrus industry and the winter vegetable crop.

The Miami region is vociferous in claiming that the canal scheme is the product of groups in Jacksonville and Ocala to the northward. Palm Beach and West Palm Beach, which strongly opposed the scheme two years ago, are little stirred as yet, deeming that the project will get nowhere in congress. Tampa is another seat of opposition.

Old Issues Crop Up.

In Jacksonville and Ocala advocates of the canal wave away arguments by asserting the railroads are back of the opposition. The effort to revive the canal scheme has been followed by a revival of the objections that stirred the state when it was a major issue two years ago.

"Slightly goofy" is how the Miami Herald refers to the canal proposal and the argument that shipping between the Atlantic and the Gulf of Mexico needs a protected route. "Even goofier" is what it terms the idea that the canal would have any military value. The Herald has been supporting generally the policies of the New Deal. But as to the canal revival it says in a recent editorial:

"If the President desires to give Florida 200 million dollars to spend, we'd be much happier about it if he would divide it up among all the harbors of the state or build us a lot of new roads, or just throw it in the air and let us catch as much of it as we can. It would serve a more useful purpose if so distributed than the canal ever would."

Chambers Fight Project.

Chambers of commerce in southern Florida are starting to shoot protests to Washington. In 1936 some 80 such chambers opposed the proposal as being a menace to fresh water supply. The Miami Chamber of Commerce a few days ago sent a letter to congress saying it has opposed the canal for four years because it believes the ditch would be ruinous to this area, one of the great winter playgrounds.

The chamber says investigations have shown the shipping interests are not for the canal; that it would be hard to sail through it in winter because of fogs and high cross wind.

Truck gardeners and citrus growers all over the southern two-thirds of the state, it affirms, would be placed in jeopardy and the water supply of Miami and nearby territory would be ruined.

The canal project is an ancient dream, more than a century old. Jacksonville for years has been working for it. As pictured the canal is to be a sea level waterway with a depth of 33 feet and a total length of 202 miles. It is to be part canalized rivers and part dry land excavation.

Proposed Canal Route.

The proposed route starts at the mouth of the St. Johns river near Mayport and follows the river near Jacksonville to Palatka. Thence it is to be cut into the Ocklawaha river, following this stream to a point seven miles south of Ocala. A land cut of 28 miles is to bring the canal into the Withlacoochee river near Dunnellon. This river is to be followed to Port Inglis, and miles of jetties jutting into the Gulf of Mexico are to give an approach.

The cost of the canal has been variously estimated. Florida newspapers are recalling that a war department board reported unfavorably on the canal and estimated its cost at 263 million dollars. This finding was reversed by Gen. Edward M. Markham, then chief of engineers who recommended the canal. He estimated the cost at 197 million dollars. It is generally referred to as a 200 million dollar project.

In the last session of congress when the project was killed, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] produced an exhibit from shipping companies indicating they saw no advantage in a canal. Early in 1935 the Works Progress administration and Secretary Harold Ickes disapproved the canal as an unsound business proposition. A department of commerce report is cited by local newspapers which held the canal was not economically justified.

With all the easy money being dished out at Washington supporters of the canal and the gogetters got busy. A map was prepared showing some 1,400 ships at a certain hour of one day plying between Atlantic and gulf ports and voyaging around the Florida peninsula and the keys. The map was placed on President Roosevelt's desk.

Over 5 Million Spent.

A red line—the route of the proposed canal—conveyed to the naked eye a cutoff that would save 400 miles for ships plying between the ocean and the gulf. By executive order in September, 1935, the President segregated $5,000,000 for a start of the canal as a relief employment measure. About $5,400,000 was spent in excavations.

The President pressed an electric button in his Hyde Park home setting off a charge of dynamite near Ocala and formally started the digging of the trans-state canal. The action was described as a gesture of deference to the late Senator Duncan U. Fletcher. Some 5,000 men, taken off relief rolls, were put to work and the newspapers carried pictures of mountains of sand excavated. When the allocation of funds ran out the work was abandoned.

The button that touched off the early digging also touched off political dynamite. Strenuous objections from southern Florida resulted in congressional refusal to make additional appropriations.

Fear Water Supply Loss.

The fresh water supply of the peninsula was cause of the strongest objection. The Ocala limestone is the chief water bearing formation of Florida. It takes its name from the city of central Florida near which the rock is well exposed. Often it is referred to as the foundation rock of the peninsula.

In character this limestone is soft and porus, and it contains intricate underground channels, cavities, and underground rivers. Geologists say much of this underground fresh water comes from the hills in Georgia.

Southern Florida maintains that a sea level canal would require a depth in spots of 170 feet or more, especially near Ocala. The argument is that the excavations would sever the limestone through which is filtered the water for the peninsula portion of the state.

Deep Wells Go Salty.

The whole of the peninsula is underlaid at varying depths by salt water. Theoretically the fresh water floats on the salt water in much the same way as oil floats on water. Many artesian wells which have taken too much underground water have been going salty. More than 80 towns and small cities on the peninsula have got their water supply by drilling wells into limestone.

The argument in southern Florida is that the canal, by cutting deep into the Ocala limestone would result in enormous leakage of fresh water supplies. The claim is made it would permit the salting of springs of the peninsula and work havoc with the citrus groves and the vegetable farms.

The canal boosters, on their side, have geologists who say there is no danger, but in these parts the argument is the canal would turn the citrus areas into another dust bowl.

Old Argument Revived.

Miami opponents of the canal are calling attention of members of congress to arguments which were presented at hearings in Washington in December, 1936. In these the Florida Water Conservation league, composed of fruit and vegetable growers on the peninsula, set forth that the region south of the pictured canal embraced 60 per cent of the population of the state.

This district has 25,600,000 citrus trees, or 97 per cent of the citrus plantings of the state. From these were shipped in the 1935-'36 season 22 million boxes of fresh citrus fruits, or 98 per cent of Florida's production. These had a value of $52,490,000.

All this agricultural industry, the argument of southern Florida is, will be menaced by the canal and its effect on the fresh water supply.

BRITISH INCREASE MILITARY PLANE ORDERS IN U. S.

Cost of 650 Airships to Total $48,000,000.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Impressed by the prospect of faster deliveries, the British government has asked two United States firms already working on orders for 400 military planes to increase the number to 650.

The air ministry announced today that orders for the additional planes, about $13,000,000 worth in addition to the original $35,000,000, had been placed.

Call for 200 Trainers.

The new orders called for fifty general reconnaissance [Hudson] planes from the Lockheed Aircraft corporation of Burbank, Cal., and 200 [Harvard] trainers from North American Aviation, Inc., Inglewood, Cal.

Two hundred planes had been ordered from each firm as a result of the visit of a British air mission to the United States in May, last year. In announcing the original orders, the air ministry indicated the numbers might be increased.

Get Two Years to Fill Orders.

"In view of improved deliveries in prospect under orders for aircraft placed by the air ministry in the United States last year, it has been possible to negotiate an increase in contracts for delivery within the period originally contemplated."

The companies had been given one to two years to fill the orders.

Both Britain and France, outstripped by Germany in production of fighting planes, have turned to the United States to supplement their outputs.

France Buys More U. S. Planes.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The aviation correspondent of the Intransigeant says that instructions have been sent to members of the French mission in the United States to extend their purchases of American airplanes.

When details are published regarding these new orders they will impress the Berlin-Rome axis, the correspondent asserts.

It is said that the first two Curtiss planes of the 200 American craft bought for the French army were brought to Villacourlay, test center near Paris, yesterday from Bourges, where they were assembled. Sixteen more have arrived at Havre aboard the liner Champlain.

It is expected that all the 200 Curtiss planes will be delivered here before the end of June.

PERIL TO WATER SUPPLY SEEN IN LAKE DIVERSION

City officials said yesterday that reduction of the diversion of Lake Michigan water to the sanitary canal, which became effective Jan. 1 as ordered by the United States Supreme court, is endangering Chicago's water supply. Safeguards have been provided but, it was learned, perils to the city's health do exist.

Spurred by this knowledge, officials began preparations to ask congress to intervene or to seek a rehearing of the reduction order before the Supreme court. Representative Claude V. Parsons [Dem., Ill.] has introduced a bill which would restore the diversion rate, now 1,500 cubic feet per second, to 5,000 cubic feet. This was the diversion rate in effect before the reduction effected Jan. 1.

Kelly Asks for Action.

"Federal officials should take some action," Mayor Kelly said yesterday. "It appears that despite the money which the sanitary district has spent in the last few years the Illinois waterway cannot be kept clean at its present level."

The greatest hazard, according to experts, is the pollution of water around the Dunn and the 68th street intake cribs, through which water is supplied to the entire south side. Wind from the southwest may blow sewage at any time from the mouth of the Calumet river to the cribs, according to Arthur E. Gorman, city water purification engineer.

Before the diversion was reduced the lake level was six feet higher than the water level at the dam at Lockport. Now it is only eleven inches higher. This, Gorman said, means that a reversal of the flow of the Calumet river might occur because of rain or offshore winds.

No Safeguard on Calumet.

Locks have been provided at the mouth of the Chicago river to prevent its backing into the lake. No such provision has been made for the Calumet river, although a breakwater in Calumet harbor is expected to keep part of the polluted river water from entering the lake.

A gauge has been installed near the mouth of the river to keep attendants constantly informed of the direction in which the water is flowing. Attendants at the cribs know immediately when the river flow reverses, and are thus able to start proper chlorine treatment as the water enters the intake valves.

After the water reaches the pumping stations it is tested again, and, when necessary, additional chlorine and ammonia are added. The ammonia takes away much of the objectionable taste, it was explained.

Already the sanitary district has complained of insanitary conditions in the Illinois waterway due to the reduced diversion. It also has been charged that the waterway is inadequate for boat trafic because of its low level.

FLAMES DRIVE 70 INTO STREET IN SCANT ATTIRE

More than seventy men, women, and children were driven scantily attired to the street early today by a spectacular fire which swept through the four floors of a double wing, sixteen apartment building at 1514-16 East 62d street.

Five persons were rescued. Among them was Mrs. Anita Templeman, a widow. Before she would permit firemen to carry her down a ladder from the second floor she insisted on finding two pet cats. They were also saved.

The fire started in the boiler room about 3 a. m., and was discovered by Robert St. Pierre, 12 years old. He notified his aunt, Mrs. Margaret Whittington, who roused Mr. and Mrs. Charles Simms. Mrs. Simms is the building manager. Then the Simmses, their two children, Jean, 13, and Charles Jr., 12, young St. Pierre, and Mrs. Whittington's son, Richard, 7, ran through corridors and awakened the sleeping tenants.

Police and firemen hailed the St. Pierre boy, the Whittington youngster, and the Simms children as the real heroes of the fire. As a result of their efforts no one was hurt and no lives were lost, so far as could be determined.

The fire raced through the four floors to the roof within a short time, and temporarily threatened the apartment building at 1520 East 62d street. First Deputy Marshal Anthony Mulloney, in charge of the firemen called by a 4-11 alarm, said after the fire that the building was a total loss.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP)—An earthquake shook portions of the Los Angeles area at 5:40 p. m. [Chicago time] today, causing a flood of inquiries to the police department. There were no reports of damage. At the Carnegie institution seismological laboratory in Pasadena, experts estimated the shock centered about fifteen miles from the laboratory.

POLICE MEMORY GETS A MAN, BUT FORGETS DETAILS

After nearly four years, Sergt. Ray Kelly recognized James Macek, 40 years old, immediately when Macek returned to his old haunt, the County building lobby. That was last Thursday. Macek, a hanger-on near the tax collection office, allegedly stole $43 from a taxpayer whose bill he offered to pay in 1935.

Yesterday Sergt. Kelly, to whom the taxpayer complained, asked for a continuance when Macek appeared before Municipal Judge Joseph B. Hermes. Sergt. Kelly said he could not remember the complainant's name. He said he thought it was Jackson and that the man was a postman. The case was continued until Feb. 16 while Sergt. Kelly jogs his memory. Macek lives at 1914 South 49th court, Cicero.

25 Pound Pressure in All Mains Assured.

Completion of two important water department projects within the last few days marked the end of a six year program for improving Chicago's $130,000,000 water system, Mayor Kelly announced yesterday.

For the first time in the city's history there is a minimum of 25 pounds pressure in every main. This means that, unless there is an emergency or disaster, the department will be able to supply all the water needs of the average citizen, even during the peak of the summer heat.

Twenty-five pounds pressure is enough to raise water 57 feet without help from intermediate pumps in the buildings. Families living on the second and third floors will get an adequate supply despite bad weather conditions.

Program Costs 20 Millions.

The improvements, costing $20,000,000, consisted of replacing worn out mains, installing larger ones, extending the system with new mains, and finding and repairing leaks. A total of 1,255 miles of mains was tested in the last six years. Repairs were made which stopped the waste of an estimated 109,000,000 gallons of water a day.

The final projects were the laying of a new 42 inch main in Homan avenue from 55th to 65th streets and a new 30 inch main from 104th street and Racine avenue to 119th street and Ashland avenue.

When the Homan avenue main was placed in service, the mayor said, pressure was boosted approximately ten pounds in the nearby vicinity and nearly five pounds in surrounding areas. The new main reduced friction loss in smaller mains in 55th and 65th streets.

Mains Are Relieved.

The other new main was installed to relieve existing mains in the area bounded by 107th and Wallace streets and Ashland avenue and the city limits. Previously this area and several south suburbs were supplied through a 24 inch main under Halsted street. But water had to flow through it so fast that there was a high friction loss. During warm weather the pressure at times got as low as zero. With the laying of the new main, more water than ever before is now available for fire protection in the Morgan Park district.

"Next summer, if citizens observe the sprinkling ordinance and fire hydrants are not turned on by boys, all complaints about low water pressure should be eliminated," Mayor Kelly asserted.

COLD WEATHER CHECKS MENACE OF RIVER FLOODS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Falling temperatures today checked the flood menace from rivers in the Ohio valley. The streams had been rising as the result of snow and rain storms.

Most of the feeder streams of the Ohio and Monongahela rivers, which carried the flood threat, were falling, with a consequent lessening of the peril as far south as Cairo, Ill.

Three persons were known to have lost their lives yesterday in flood waters in West Virginia. Approximately 1,000 who fled their homes throughout the area began to return.

JAP SHIP UPSET BACKS CRITICISM OF NAVY EXPERTS

Fighting Vessels Regarded as Topheavy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—American doubts of the seaworthiness of Japanese naval vessels appeared justified here today when it was learned that the cruiser Mogami overturned during recent maneuvers.

As a result of the accident, which is not the first of its kind in the Japanese navy, Japan's naval experts are worried over basic faults in the construction of newer ships in their navy. The five sister ships of the Mogami class are being overhauled in an effort to repair defects.

American naval experts for the last few years have been increasingly critical of new trends in Japanese naval design.

Point to Heavy Armament.

The chief criticism was that the Japanese were exceeding the bounds of safety in piling armaments on decks all out of proportion to the size and weight of the hulls beneath them. Experts were particularly critical of the cruiser of the Mogami class. Events bore out their criticism.

These 8,500 ton cruisers carried an armament of fifteen 6.1 inch guns, eight 5 inch guns and twelve torpedo tubes. This armament is more than 30 per cent greater than that of vessels of other nations of a comparable class.

The United States cruiser Houston, which has carried President Roosevelt on several sea cruises and will take him to the Caribbean war games in the middle of the month, has but nine 8 inch guns. British cruisers of 9,000 tons carry twelve 6 inch guns, eight 4 inch guns and six torpedo tubes.

Vessels Roll Heavily.

In the smallest seas, naval experts said, the topheaviness of the Japanese vessels causes them to roll so heavily that accuracy of gun fire is greatly diminished. Overheavily armed vessels would be at the mercy of enemy smaller craft properly armed, in the opinion of the experts.

Since the overturning of the Mogami, one three gun turret is being removed from the Mogami class cruisers. The experts consider the vessels still to be unseaworthy.

In March, 1936, the torpedo boat Tomotsuro capsized. The fault, according to naval experts, was with Japanese designers who placed three 5 inch guns on a vessel of only 527 tons.

Ships are Topheavy.

American critics consider the piling of colossal superstructures onto their warships by Japanese marine architects to be most dangerous. Not only do these huge structure make the Japanese vessels topheavy, but they offer an easy target for enemy ships.

The 29,300 ton Japanese remodeled battleship Huso has a control tower resembling a floating skyscraper. It is 100 feet tall—twice the height of the single funnel. The jumble of range finders and control rooms give the vessel a topheavy appearance.

The Japanese also added to the superstructures of the 32,720 ton battleships Nagato and Mutsu in remodeling. The battleships Ise and Hiugu, both of 29,900 tons, have nine stories of towers and are considered by critics to be even more fantastic than those of the Huso.

Other Nations Critical.

The stability of almost all classes of Japanese vessels is questioned not alone by American experts, but by those of Great Britain, Germany, and France.

To offset the topheavy weight Japanese architects have introduced 300 ton gyrostabilizers to steady the rolling and pitching ships. Experts do not consider this a satisfactory solution of the problem.

Experts are skeptical of the performance of Japanese aircraft carriers. The Japanese have the Hiryu and Siryu, both with beams of 66 feet, which is less than two-thirds of that of American and British carriers. They also carry heavier armament. Critics feel that the vessels will be unable to perform their work well.

Nothing is known of the Japanese building program at present except that reports persist the Japs are building 45,000 ton battleships which are to carry 18 inch guns. It also is reported the Japs are building eight new submarines of the largest type, displacing 2,000 tons.

Mishap Confirms Doubts of Jap Ships

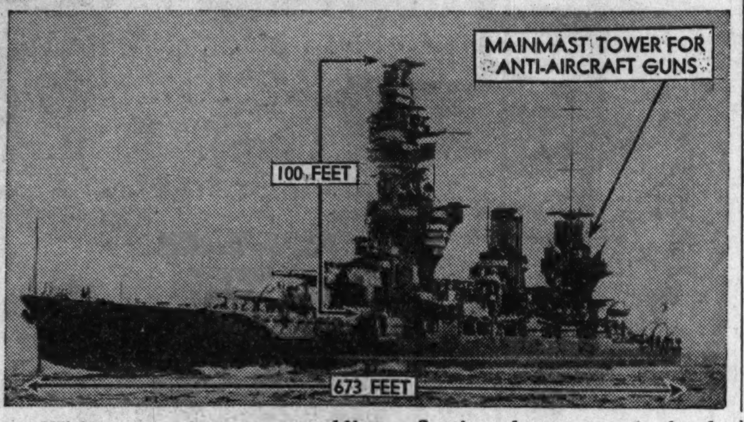
The Mikuma, shown here, is of the same class as the Mogami, Japanese cruiser which overturned during maneuvers. Naval experts of the United States have regarded recent Japanese naval vessels as so topheavy with armament as to be unseaworthy. The 8,500 ton cruisers of this class carried fifteen 6.1 inch guns, eight 5 inch guns, and twelve torpedo tubes. One three gun turret now is being removed from each of the remaining cruisers of this type.



With a control tower resembling a floating skyscraper, the battleship Huso has been regarded by American experts as an extreme example of topheavy naval designing. The ship has a displacement of 29,300 tons.

POLICEMAN AND 2 OTHERS KILLED IN SHOOTING FRAY

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Three persons, one an innocent bystander, were killed tonight in a gun battle here. The dead were Patrolman George Weslar, 48 years old; Paul Charkoski, 40, and John Andrew Griffin, 21, the bystander.

Charkoski fired several shots at Irene Vesneski, 14, whom he mistook for her mother, Mrs. Sophia Vesneski, a widow, in whose home he formerly had lived. Jealousy was the motive for the shooting. Charkoski was one of Mrs. Vesneski's suitors, but had been told she intended to marry another.

When the Vesneski girl fled into the street to escape Charkoski's shots Patrolman Weslar went to investigate and was shot to death. One of the bullets also killed Griffin. Then Charkoski barricaded himself in the house and continued shooting. Police returned the fire. After a twenty-five minute siege police tossed tear gas into the home and the shooting stopped. When they entered they found Charkoski dead.

KELLY ASKS U. S. FOR CITY'S SHARE OF SHIPBUILDING

Seeks Contracts for New Naval Vessels.

Mayor Kelly yesterday asked federal officials to consider Chicago as a ship building center in connection with the proposed naval defense program. The city has all the necessary industries to build ships, he pointed out, and is connected by waterways to the east coast and the gulf.

The mayor sent telegrams to Secretary of War Woodring, Secretary of the Navy Swanson, Secretary of Commerce Hopkins, and Senators James Hamilton Lewis and Scott W. Lucas.

"Not only are the facilities of the Great Lakes ship building yards ample and expertly productive, but they are close to needed sources of materials and supplies," the message to Secretary Woodring stated. "The steel mills, tool factories, and foundries of Chicago could vitally aid any auxiliary fleet building program that may be planned."

The chief benefit of allotting a share of the contracts to the middlewest would be to reduce unemployment, said Mayor Kelly. Jobs in many skilled crafts would be provided by the work and business would be stimulated by the expenditure of federal money, he asserted.

"You doubtless know of the vital contributions that this section of the country has made to the entire naval defense program," said the message to Secretary Swanson. "We believe we have the right to share in any projects which our materials and man power can produce. No one can dispute the advantages possessed by the Chicago area and the ship yards on the Great Lakes for turning out the most exacting requirements of the navy engineers."

"I ask for your consideration of the economic assets that justify the building of lighter naval craft in Chicago and the midwest," the mayor telegraphed Secretary Hopkins. "We also hope you will consider this city favorably with reference to manufacturing air craft."

Senators Lewis and Lucas were asked to aid in obtaining part of this work for Chicago. It was pointed out that only the smaller craft such as gunboats, patrol boats, coast guard cutters, etc., could be built here because of the limitations of the waterways through which they would have to travel to the ocean.

BUCK PRIVATES SNAP RIGHT INTO NEW U. S. DRILL

Hear Bad News: They'll Work Just as Hard.

Fort Benning, Ga., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Uncle Sam's soldiers here today snapped into a new drill routine that may be the army's farewell to "squads right" and other intricate formations which brought woe to millions of world war veterans.

Selected troop units of this infantry training school, world's largest, are testing proposed regulations calling for simplified formations that the army high command feels should make more efficient fighters.

There's Still Work to Do.

Proponents say the proposed regulations would free the soldier from much drill, but do not foresee that his working hours will be reduced. Buck privates will be as busy as ever, but will have more time for technics applicable to battlefield conditions of a motorized and mechanized age.

The basis of the new drill is a squad of variable size instead of the present eight-man squad. The new rifle squad, for example, would have twelve men, the light machine squad seven, and the 60 mm. infantry mortar squad five.

A Lesson from Europe.

The column-of-threes drill used by German and French armies also has a place in the proposed changes.

Junior officers, top sergeants, other noncommissioned officers, and even privates are being asked to tell what they think of the new drill. No date has been announced for completion of the tests.

Eight Japanese Miners Killed by Gas Explosion

TOKIO, Feb. 4.—(AP)—A Domei [Japanese news agency] dispatch from Ube today said eight miners had been killed by a gas explosion. The number of injured was not stated. This is the second Japanese mine disaster within two weeks. Ninety-two miners were killed in the Onura coal mines by an explosion on Jan. 23.

Launch Destroyers

The destroyer Anderson going down the ways yesterday.

Kearny, N. J., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Two United States navy destroyers, the Anderson and the Hamman, were launched today at the Federal Ship Building and Dry Dock company. A crowd of 5,000 persons watched the ceremony. The vessels, which cost about 5 million dollars each, are 334 feet long and will carry 5 inch guns.

DUBUQUE DRUGGIST DEAD.

Dubuque, Ia., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Frank J. Berg Sr., 79 year old druggist, died of pneumonia at his home last evening. He began as a clerk when he was 15 years old and in 1899 opened his own store, which he had since operated.

JAPS FORCE BACK REDS IN BORDER ROW, TOKIO TOLD

Russian Cavalry Attacks Guards in Manchukuo.

TOKIO, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The government of Japanese-dominated Manchukuo today reported four days of almost continuous fighting between soviet Russian forces and "Manchukuo guards," but failed to state definitly the outcome or number of casualties.

Communiques issued in Hsinking, capital of Manchukuo, indicated that Russian "assaults" had been thrown back. While they described the "defending" forces as "Manchukuo guards" it was believed in Tokio that Japanese regulars were involved.

It is known that some of Japan's finest troops have been stationed along the Manchukuan-Siberian border instead of fighting in China.

Batle Northeast of Manchuli.

The scene of the fighting was given as Mengoskili, an isolated region sixty miles northeast of Manchuli. This is all the way across Manchukuo from Changkufeng Hill, over which border fighting raged in July and August. Manchukuo has protested to Russia over this week's clashes.

[On Wednesday the Russian government had reported a clash the day before in which it said eighteen Japanese and Manchukuan soldiers attempted to take a soviet island in the Argun river, Manchukuo's northwestern boundary with Russia.]

The Manchukuan government charged that Russian cavalrymen attacked a Manchukuan border garrison Tuesday morning, but were beaten back. Four other attacks followed on that day, it was said.

Minor skirmishing and maneuvering ensued, the communique from Hsinking asserted, with the Russians assaulting the same border point three times Friday afternoon and evening.

Link Row to Fish Pact.

Domei, Japanese news agency, said informed sources in Hsinking interpreted the "Russian assault" as an effort to force Japan to retreat from her position on the right of Japanese to fish in soviet territorial waters.

[A treaty under which Japanese were allowed to fish in Siberian waters expired Dec. 31. Negotiations for a new one so far have been unsuccessful. Meantime, Russia announced it would auction this month certain fishing districts which previously were allotted to Japan without auction. Tokio disliked this decision.]

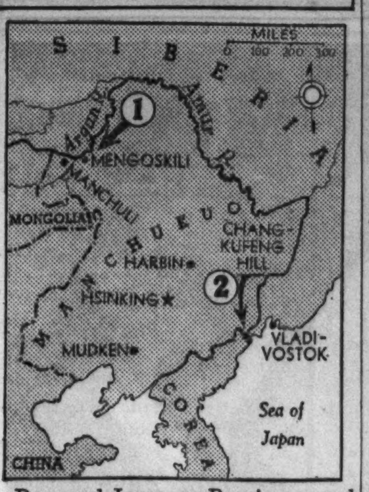
Japs Bomb Two Cities.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 4.—Wanhsien, 150 miles down the Yangtze river from Chungking, the temporary capital, and Kweiyang, capital of Kweichow province, were bombed by Japanese today. Eighteen bombers took part in both raids.

Six Japanese, the crew of a bomber forced down near Shayang in central Hupeh province, were captured a few days ago in Hsincheng, central China, news reports said. Loyang, in northern Honan, reported that many Japanese were killed on Wednesday when Chinese planes bombed Fentsun, a Japanese-occupied city in Hopei province on the Peking-Hankow railway.

Battle at Red Border



Renewed Japanese-Russian armed clashes were reported yesterday from Mengoskili (1) on the Manchukuan-Siberian border. This marks the first serious friction on that bristling frontier since last summer when Manchukuans and Japanese battled Russian troops at Changkufeng hill (2).

ARMY WANTS NEW OFFICERS PUT ON 3 YEARS' TRIAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The army wants to place its new officers on probation in the manner of the navy.

Secretary of War Henry H. Woodring, in a letter to Speaker William Bankhead, today suggested legislation that would permit the war department to revoke the commission of any second lieutenant who in his first three years is deemed unsuitable for a military career.

The navy keeps its young officers on a probationary status for seven years. They may be discharged in that period without a bonus. Woodring said such a regulation would "contribute to the efficiency of the army."

7 of 11 Children, One Only 2 Hours Old, Die in Fire

West Point, Va., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Seven children of W. S. Wormeley, a Negro pulp mill employé, whose eleventh child was only two hours old, were burned to death tonight when fire destroyed their home at Cologne. The family was sleeping when the fire started. Wormeley awakened in time to carry his wife to safety. A midwife rescued the new born child. Two of the older children also escaped. One boy was away from home. Ages of the dead children range from 4 to 17.

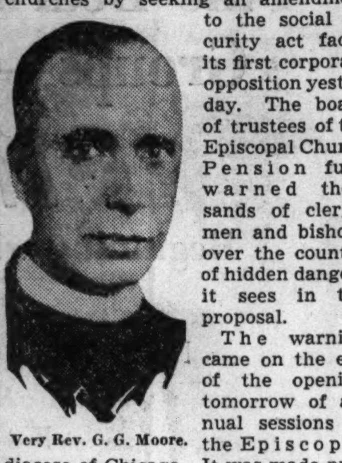
WARN EPISCOPAL CLERGY AGAINST CHURCH TAX PLAN

Pension Body Raps Social Security Extension.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

President Roosevelt's effort to tax churches by seeking an amendment to the social security act faced its first corporate opposition yesterday. The board of trustees of the Episcopal Church Pension fund warned thousands of clergymen and bishops over the country of hidden dangers it sees in the proposal.



Very Rev. G. G. Moore.

The warning came on the eve of the opening tomorrow of annual sessions of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago. It was made public by the Very Rev. Gerald G. Moore, dean of St. Luke's procathedral, Evanston, and secretary of the church pension fund.

The first general warning against the proposal was sounded last month by the Rev. Mike Elliott, editor of The Baptist Minister, independent Chicago journal of national circulation.

Would Curtail Church Fund.

The Episcopal pension fund board, headed by William Fellowes Morgan and J. Pierpont Morgan, was given credit for the modification of the original security bill to exclude, both as to the pay roll taxes and benefits, the employés of religious, charitable, and educational institutions. The proposed bill would include them, making churches pay the present pay roll tax of 1 per cent on all salaries—a tax which rises to a maximum of 3 per cent in 1949. A corresponding amount is paid by each employé.

The pension fund board's present attack on the President's recommendation not only raises the church and state issue, but says that its passage by congress would greatly curtail the benefits of the $33,000,000 fund.

"The church cannot pass a tax on to an ultimate consumer in the same way as can an industrial concern," declared a letter signed by Bradford B. Locke, executive vice president of the board.

Fear General Taxation.

"The church can only [when taxed] restrict its activities as its financial resources become more limited. Although taxation [of churches] for a special purpose may appear harmless, the history of taxation and its power to regulate brings up a question of vital concern.

"It should be pointed out that consideration is being given to the possibility of dividing the cost of the federal social security program between the employer, the employé, and the federal government. This would necessarily mean increased general taxation and if churches are to be subject to the social security tax, it seems logical that they might become subject to general taxation also."

The letter stated that the present salary schedule of Episcopal clergy on which taxes would be levied is about $10,000,000 a year. The fund reports that it is now paying $1,350,000 in pensions annually to retired and disabled clergy and their dependents, and to widows.

"In view of the successful operation of the fund over a long period of years, it appears to the board of trustees that it would be most unfortunate if its benefits to the church and the clergy should be lost or greatly reduced," the letter concluded.

GROCER SHOOTS TWO GUN ROBBER IN STORE BATTLE

Vito Addante, a grocer, looked into the menacing muzzles of two guns in his store at 369 East 54th street, last night, but did not cower. The guns were held by Wilbur Barnwell, 22 years old, 337 East 55th street.

"Give me your money," he demanded. Addante's response to the two gun bandit came in a flash. He stooped, grabbed a revolver under the counter, and came up firing.

Barnwell, who is colored, had time to fire only one shot, then collapsed, shot five times. His two revolvers clattered to the floor. He was taken to the Bridewell hospital, where it was said he might die. Addante was unhurt, but a customer, Henry Jones, 38, colored, of 5426 South Park avenue, was shot in the thigh during the exchange.

Mr. and Mrs. Harger Rollo leaving church in automobile after wedding yesterday. Mrs. Rollo is the former Joan Ford.

Wears Mother's Veil

The marriage of Miss Joan Ford and Harger Rollo took place at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the chapel of St. Chrysostom's church with the Rev. Dudley S. Stark officiating. Only relatives and close friends attended the ceremony and the reception which followed at the home of the bride's father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Ford.

For something old the bride wore a lace wedding veil that belonged to her late mother, the former Florence Brigham. Her dress was made of heavy ivory satin with a full skirt and tight bodice. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. Rollo, who is the son of Mrs. J. Clarke Dean and of Van Schaick Rollo, and his bride will be at home in Grand Rapids, Mich.

LOVE FINDS WAY; POOR BOY TO WED NIECE OF QUEEN

LONDON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Love will find a way. The young fellow who broke his engagement with the niece of Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain two years ago because he was too poor will meet her at the altar after all.

The reëngagement of Kenneth Harington, 27 years old, and Miss Cecilia Bowes-Lyon was announced today. She is the daughter of Lord Glamis, Queen Elizabeth's brother.

They had been engaged for three years when Harington broke the engagement in 1937. He announced that he did not believe in "love in a cottage." He quit his job as junior assistant in the diplomatic service and went to work for a metal corporation. Apparently he has done all right in business.

The king and queen may attend the wedding, which will be held in London on March 8.

BLOCK $3,500,000 TO HOUSE CENSUS CREW 7 MONTHS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Taking the view that 7,500 workers needed for the census of 1940 can be housed in the present department of commerce building, the appropriations committee has killed a $3,500,000 estimate for a new census building to be erected in Washington. The action followed nation-wide protests against the building.

Senator Alva B. Adams [D., Colo.], who was in charge of the first deficiency bill, said that while the increase from 750 to 7,500 workers might necessitate a little crowding, "it happens only every ten years and lasts for only seven months."

If the $3,500,000 structure were erected, he declared, it would be used for the census only from July, 1940, to February, 1941, and then be utilized for a place to store government records.

ANTARCTIC AREA CLAIMED FOR U. S. BY ELLSWORTH

HOBART, Tasmania, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Lincoln Ellsworth laid claim to 430,000 square miles of south polar territory for the United States today when he returned from an antarctic expedition aboard his base ship Wyatt Earp.

Ellsworth's new claim expanded the territory he previously had claimed. In a radio message from the antarctic last month he said he was claiming "80,000 square miles of country never seen before by the human eye" as a result of his aerial exploration.

The explorer, whose expedition started last autumn, plans to sail for the United States on March 4.

NATIONAL GUARD IN 3 STATES TO DROP SWASTIKA

Santa Fe, N. M., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The swastika, symbol of the 45th National Guard division, is to be replaced by a sun symbol. Adj. Gen. R. C. Charlton of New Mexico, who requested the change when informed a National Guard firing squad had been jeered because of the insignia, said the substitution had been approved by Maj. Gen. W. S. Key, Oklahoma City, commander of the division. The unit includes National Guard troops in New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Colorado.

ENGINEER DENIES BRIBING OFFICIAL OF NO. RIVERSIDE

Suit Charges Payment to Get Waterworks Job.

George C. Cameron, head of an engineering equipment company, denied last night that he gave a $5,000 bribe to a village official of North Riverside to get a large contract for his concern.

The accusation against Cameron was contained in a warant obtained Friday for his arrest on a charge of bribery. The charge was made by Mrs. Arthur Krieg, widow of the former president of the Municipal Engineering and Equipment company of Oak Park, now headed by Cameron.

Cameron was taken into custody Friday and released later in $1,000 bond pending a hearing Feb. 11 before Justice of the Peace Albert J. Sengstock of Des Plaines. Judge Sengstock said he issued the warant only after warning Mrs. Krieg of the seriousness of her charges.

Attributes Charge to Rancor.

Through his attorney, Louis E. Gibson, Cameron denied that any bribe had been paid or offered by himself or others in the company. The attorney attributed the charges to rancor arising from a dispute over the business.

Mrs. Krieg, according to the lawyer, had been estranged from her husband prior to his death last Nov. 22. Since then, Gibson said, Mrs. Krieg and Cameron have had differences over her former husband's interest in the business.

Assistant State's Attorney William C. Rotchford said he would be present at the next hearing. He said he would wait until then before deciding if the state should take any action on Mrs. Krieg's charges.

The villages of North Riverside and Brookfield are now engaged in installing a joint water system, to cost $465,000. Cameron's company, his attorney said, has an $80,000 contract to supervise the engineering work.

Charge Influence Sought.

The warant obtained by Mrs. Krieg charged that on or before Nov. 24 Cameron gave a $5,000 bribe to obtain the influence of a village official in gaining the contract for Cameron.

Mrs. Krieg declared that she learned of the bribe while attempting to get an accounting of the company funds after Krieg's death. When she asked for an advance, Mrs. Krieg said, Cameron told her it was impossible because the $5,000 had been paid and there was no money available for her at the time.

MR. HAMBURGER HARRY REVISITS FAVORITE STAND

Just as was expected, Hamburger Harry made another of his week-end appearances early yesterday. No one knew where he would appear, of course, but this time—his twelfth robbery in the last few weeks—he revisited the hamburger shop at 3157 North Cicero avenue.

As on all other occasions the bandit first consumed a sandwich and a cup of coffee. Then drawing a gun and opening a brown paper sack, Hamburger Harry, as the police call him, told Bert Mieure, the manager, to put some money in it. Mieure gave up $3. And the bandit looked disappointed, Mieure told police. On Jan. 8 he got $12 in the shop.

Murder and Suicide, Jury's Verdict in Double Slaying

A coroner's jury yesterday returned verdicts of murder and suicide in the deaths of Miss Georgia FitzHugh, 47 years old, and William Harlev, 52. Harlev, who was married, shot Miss FitzHugh last Sunday in her apartment at 5653 Kenmore avenue, then turned the gun on himself. He lived at 1857 South Ridgeway avenue. Police said Miss FitzHugh repulsed his attentions.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil and the Rev. Peter D. Meegan were presented engraved certificates by American Airlines yesterday in recognition of the clergymen's work with the Catholic Youth organization and the promotion of aviation activities among the youth of Chicago. The certificate presented to Bishop Sheil made him an "admiral of the flagship fleet." Capt. J. Hammer, million mile pilot of American Airlines, made the presentations in C. Y. O. headquarters, 31 East Congress street.

HOMICIDE SQUAD PLANNED IN LAKE COUNTY, INDIANA

Two unsolved murders resulted yesterday in the first steps toward organizing a Lake county [Ind.] homicide squad. A meeting of law enforcement officials was called in Gary by Dr. J. Robert Doty, the coroner, at the suggestion of the county grand jury.

The homicide squad, as tentatively set up, will include representatives of the Gary, Hammond, Whiting, and East Chicago police departments, the state police, the sherif's office, and prosecutor's office. It will go into action as soon as a killing is reported and will be in charge of the investigation.

Among those at yesterday's meeting were Chiefs William J. Linn of Gary and T. J. Martinson of Hammond, Sherif John Knotts and Prosecutor Felix Kaul. Plans will be perfected Friday at a conference at which all villages and towns of the county will be represented.

The slayings which led to the grand jury's recommendation were those of Frieda Borman of Gary, whose body was found on a lonely country road last fall, and Deputy Constable Andrew Wytow, killed in Gary a few weeks ago.

GIVES SELF UP AFTER PONIES RUN OFF WITH $2,000

Highway Official Admits Stealing State Funds.

Assistant State's Attorney Nathan J. Kinnally was sharpening a pencil with a penknife when the young man walked into his downtown office in the County building. Kinnally looked up.

William W. Wallace.

"I want to tell you about a man who has embezzled between $1,500 and $2,000," the visitor began.

"Fine," said Kinnally. "We certainly appreciate your help. And who is this embezzler?"

"I am," the visitor replied.

State Highway Official.

He said he is William W. Wallace, 36 years old, of 419 South Harvard avenue, Villa Park. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois and is assistant district engineer of the highway division of the state department of public works.

Part of Wallace's work, he explained to Kinnally, was to purchase rights of way for roads from land owners. Checks were sent to Wallace for delivery. His peculations began in 1936. He said he forged the names of the payees on some checks. He induced the payees themselves to indorse other checks, assuring them he was the only person authorized to cash the checks, and would return with the money.

Wallace said he had cashed half a dozen checks in all, at periods several months apart. The checks were for a few hundred dollars each, in payment for small strips of land. He said he stalled off possible complaints with the statement that there would be a considerable delay because of red tape.

Stalls Off Complaints.

"What did you do with the money?" Kinnally asked.

"The horses got it," said Wallace. "They wouldn't run fast enough for me. My $225 a month salary wasn't enough to feed us and the bookies."

He said he made an unsuccessful effort to get even on a race at a Florida track Friday, then surrendered. His superior, Kendrick Harger, the district engineer, said yesterday it would require several days to determine what contracts were involved in Wallace's thefts.

JOBLESS FATHER AND HOUSEKEEPER HELD IN GAG DEATH OF CHILD

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—An unemployed father and his attractive brunette housekeeper faced charges of manslaughter today in the death last Jan. 24 of his 6 year old daughter.

Suffocation, caused by a gag stuffed in the child's mouth by 36 year old Stephen Eiler, brought death, a coroner's jury decided after hearing testimony of Miss Kay Rykunyk, 24 years old, Eiler's housekeeper for three years.

The housekeeper said Eiler had gagged the child, Rose Mary, to keep her quiet. She said Eiler's act was intended to gain sympathy for himself in a divorce action against his wife, from whom he had been separated for more than two years.

Husband Adds 'Where Are You?' to a Farewell Song

John Carlson, 32 years old, a tavern keeper, yesterday asked the Sheffield avenue police to find his wife, Victoria, 27, who left their home at 3034 Wilton avenue a week ago. Mrs. Carlson left a farewell note containing only the titles of popular songs of which she was fond, Carlson said. The note began with "What's the Reason I'm Not Pleasing You?," passed through such items as "Thanks for the Memory" and "Boo-Hoo," and closed with "You're Driving Me Crazy."

FATHER OF SIX ENDS LIFE.

La Porte, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Harvey E. Emigh, 40 years old, a WPA worker and father of six children, killed himself with a revolver last night.

MR. JESSE JAMES GIVES UNCLE SAM A HELPING HAND

Says a Little Star Leads Him to Stills.

By day Jesse James wore coveralls and greased automobiles at a northwest side filling station. Nightfall transformed him. He donned a well-tailored brown suit and spats and posed as an internal revenue agent. He hunted moonshiners and found them.

But it wasn't until last night that Jesse considered reporting his evidence to the proper authorities. He was having too much fun. When he flashed his internal revenue department star on an illicit distiller, the distiller was only too glad to turn over a gallon of his finest product in return for a promise of secrecy.

Ready to Help Uncle Sam.

Jesse was locked up by the Albany Park police yesterday and that changed his mind. His full name is Jesse Lee James. He's 29 years old, colored, and lives at 226 East 30th street. Now he's ready to help Uncle Sam.

"I know places them G-men never dreamed about," he assured Policeman John Carlson. "I just kept snoopin' and snoopin' till I found 'em. I'll point 'em out to the G-men, too. But honest, mister, I never stole that $42 you're asking me about."

Jesse worked for Sam Cherner, who operates a filling station at 3557 Foster avenue. A few days ago Cherner missed the money from the cash register. Policemen Carlson and Tom Smith were assigned to the case. They were assisted by Policemen William Foss and Dan Schellard, who seized James at his home.

Star Makes Hit with Girls.

He was wearing his star—a real one he found while helping an internal revenue agent move six months ago.

"That star made such a hit with the gals I decided to see if it was good for a drink," he said. "Boy, it was! I got me a powerful lot of samples. But I wanted better Whisky so I looked for better stills. And the south side's full of them."

Policeman Carlson said he will turn Jesse over to federal agents after the detective bureau showup today. Jesse had one favor to ask Policeman Carlson.

"You're a good policeman and I'm a good revenuer," he said. "Don't tell my wife what I said about those gals."

KAKAPO LIVING

By CALEB

OVER their dessert, the older of the two men had broached an idea; and as they dropped into the Club lounge afterward to finish their cigars, he was inclined to pursue the subject further.

"I remember three men, in my community, who were as promising as any members of my generation—and they're still there, in decidedly mediocre jobs, doing exactly what they were doing thirty years ago. I say 'promising' because they had unusually good minds, reasonably good environment, no particular physical handicaps. And certainly they had as definite opportunities as any of the rest of us.

"One of these men, for example, would have made a fine physician: he had all the natural qualifications. The second could have been a capable business executive: he used to talk about it for a while, then dropped the subject. And the third would have made a first-rate lawyer: he was the quickest-witted, the most analytical, the readiest talker, of us all . . . . And here's the point that has always puzzled me: every one of those men, when we were young together, wanted to be Somebody of Importance, and said so. But somewhere the want withered; it never grew to be a will. They stood still—and since Life is always hastening forward, soon dropped behind.

"I am talking and thinking carefully here. I am neither discounting nor indicting a man's environment—I came from an ordinary one, and so did you. But I believe that those men who could have been what they once wanted to be, and didn't, have thereby missed something big. They stunted their stature in the scheme of things; forfeited places rightfully theirs to others who cultivated the same seed they had to grow with. They have lived, and are still living, part-lives; today they are incomplete fulfillments of what they might have been.

"In New Zealand there is an unusual, parrot-like bird which the Maoris call the kakapo. Yes, you accent it on the last syllable. Born to be a bird, it has fully-developed wings—all the equipment for soaring into breeze and sunlight above the forest, up into blue freedoms and new spaces—but it doesn't fly. It simply prefers to stay on the ground!

"And whenever I see—as I do—so many individuals around us in all walks of life who, having no environmental handicaps to prevent them, might have done things and gone places if they had willed to. . . . I think of the kakapo, and wonder why it is that none of us, for that matter, ever flies as far or as high as he really has wings for?"

GREEN PUSHES MAYORAL DRIVE AT FAST PACE

Campaign Most Intense of All Candidates.

BY PARKE BROWN.

In three weeks of active campaigning Dwight H. Green, regular Republican organization candidate for mayor, has spoken at thirty-eight ward meetings and fully half that many other gatherings.

At these meetings he has addressed between 20,000 and 30,000 persons. In addition he has made five radio speeches. He has met and talked with between 12,000 and 15,000 men and women and personally handled a record breaking mass of correspondence.

During the next two weeks he plans to appear in those wards in which he has not already spoken, thereby leaving the final week of the campaign comparatively free for massmeetings, special speeches, and revisiting areas in which final touches are thought advisable. In addition he will deliver at least three more radio speeches.

Most Active Campaigner.

No other candidate in either party has made a real start in active campaigning. Green's lone Republican opponent doesn't take the stump until next Wednesday. The two major Democratic candidates, Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney, have made a few ward appearances, but have not even approached Green's accomplishment in speed and hard work.

For Green five nights a week there are ward meetings. On Saturday there are just as many meetings, but of a different character, many of them nonpolitical. Sunday morning there is time for church with his family. But by early afternoon Green is back in his office for conferences, dictation, and other tasks for which there is no chance during the week.

A Long, Steady Grind.

This long, steady grind, which would be impossible for a man much older, has aroused everywhere a conviction that Green is out to win no matter how hard may be the work required. Green, just past his 42d birthday, is the youngest candidate in the field.

Old line Republicans are the more astounded by Green's speed and energy because of the extreme contrast it provides for the last Republican mayoralty campaign, that of 1935, when Emil C. Wetten was nominated. Because of that contrast, charges from Democrats and from opposition Republicans that the Green campaign is another Wetter affair have fallen flat.

The two campaigns are opposites from their inception and throughout their course. Wetten determined to run for mayor and started without any public demand that could be discerned. Green was not a self-starter. A small group of business men brought up his name. When it was proposed, other aspirants, some of whom would have been strong candidates, stepped aside.

Thousands Urge He Race.

A dozen delegations, climaxed by one including almost the entire city committee of the Republican party, urged him to run. Not until then and until he knew everything was in readiness for a soundly organized, well financed, popular campaign did he consent.

In 1935, the Republican committee was still groping for a suitable candidate when Wetten filed his petition. Wetten had appeared before the committeemen and had told them that he was going to run, that he had strong support and that his campaign fund was already in the bank. An almost hopeless committee accepted him reluctantly.

His petition was filed Jan. 2. On Jan. 12 he issued his formal announcement. In another week it became apparent there was nothing back of the candidate's promises to the committee. One of the jests of the period was that there was enough money in the bank to finance a real campaign and the only question was how to get it out.

All the customary activities were missing. No headquarters were organized. No campaign manager or campaign committee was announced. No meetings were held. For the first time on record a candidate accepted by the regular organization failed to make even a single campaign speech.

Committee Holds the Bag.

The committeeemen cursed privately. They had been deceived and left holding the bag. No other candidate appeared that they would approve. Mortimer B. Flynn had filed and began to talk about money as Wetten had talked. For a time a buying contest appeared to be under way. Then that faded and Wetten was allowed to have the nomination. But he received only 69,130 votes.

Both angry and disconsolate, the regular committee was helpless. All during the primary period Wetten complained of a series of long drawn out ailments that kept him in bed. With the nomination in his pocket, he went south for his health. When he returned, he went through the motions of a half hearted campaign, took a bad beating and dropped out of politics.

That fiasco, in addition to giving Green one of the obstacles he has to overcome, insured the second presidential year landslide for the Democrats in Cook county in 1936.

Star Off to London

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Luise Rainer, academy award actress and wife of Clifford Odets, the playwright, is forsaking our shores for a few months to appear in a London stage production, it was learned today after she secretly boarded the Cunard White Star liner Aquitania, which sailed for Europe late this afternoon.

Miss Rainer had asked ship line officials to keep her presence on board the vessel a secret, but when reporters found her cabin she told them something of her plans.

"I am leaving for London," she said, "in order to appear in a stage production for which I have been engaged. Due to the fact that my appearance is subject to my final approval of the script, I do not wish to announce at this time the name of the producer or the play.

"I shall also take a brief vacation, probably in Switzerland. I intend to return as soon as my engagement has been completed."

A CANDIDATE AT BAR MISSES THE BRASS FOOT RAIL

William F. Dillenburg, a candidate for police magistrate in Aurora, was sentenced yesterday to six months in the Kane county jail at Geneva. Election day is April 4.

Dillenburg has been before his rival, Lambert Ochsenschlager, the present magistrate, numerous times for minor offenses. Last time, ten days ago, Ochsenschlager transferred the case to Justice of the Peace Albert Zittlinger to avoid embarrassing his opponent. Dillenburg got two days for drunkenness. He admitted he had been doing some campaign drinking.

Last Thursday Dillenburg's wife, Lillian, signed a complain charging vagrancy. He was locked up again. Justice Lester J. Galvin imposed the jail sentence.

"It's a political plot," said Dillenburg. "I'll run anyway. The jail will be my campaign headquarters."

COURTNEY DEFEAT VITAL TO LABOR, SAYS FITZPATRICK

Chicago Union Chief Raps Prosecutor's Record.

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, made public yesterday a letter declaring that "no union man or woman can support Tom Courtney for mayor."

The communication was addressed to Frank J. Gillespie, secretary-treasurer of the Dairy Employés' union. Last Wednesday Gillespie made a radio speech in which he mentioned Fitzpatrick as one of those who in the past indorsed State's Attorney Courtney, now a candidate for mayor.

"I never indorsed Tom Courtney for any office," wrote Fitzpatrick, and further along in the letter he made the statement that no unionist "could" be for Courtney. Then he added: "It is the bounden duty of every union man and women to oppose the nomination of Tom Courtney for mayor of Chicago."

Quotes from Union Record.

In giving his reasons for these declarations Fitzpatrick quoted from the official proceedings of the Chicago federation. At a regular meeting, according to that quotation, Fitzpatrick was authorized to investigate charges made by delegates. These were:

"That the office of State's Attorney Courtney unlawfully and illegally interfered with the lawful and ordinary activities of a number of legitimate trade unions.

"That union offices have been raided and property confiscated and destroyed without legal warant by attachés of Mr. Courtney's office.

"That strikers engaged in lawful and peaceful picketing have been arrested by the score, and union officers brow beaten, coerced, and intimidated by Mr. Courtney's assistants.

Strike Breaking Charged.

"That all of his activity by the local law enforcement authorities has been specifically intended to break strikes, to destroy legitimate trade unions and to assist employers in their illegal efforts to deny American working men the right to organize."

"Under the above instructions, we compiled sixteen affidavits and declarations from our affiliated unions which positively substantiate every charge submitted for investigation."

VOTE STEALING LISTED AMONG U. S. 'PROBLEMS'

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Vote stealing has become a national problem, delegates to a Young Republican federation midwest conference were told today by National Chairman Donald W. Hornbeck of Cleveland, O.

Hornbeck said that "one of the greatest contributions the Young Republicans can make to good government is to see that votes are properly counted." He said the membership of the Young Republican federation is between 750,000 and 1,000,000 and forecast an increase of 3,000,000 by 1940.

Chicagoan Shoots Self to Death in New Mexico

Frank Clough Jr. of Chicago was found shot to death yesterday near his parked automobile on the outskirts of Albuquerque, N. M. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide. Clough, about 30 years old, was described as the son of an official of a railway restaurant chain. He had suffered a nervous breakdown recently. His Chicago address was not learned.

Political Notes

A new organization which has christened itself "A Better Chicago league," or A. B. C. for short, decided yesterday to organize on a ward and precinct basis despite an earlier policy of refusing to indorse or condemn candidates for public office.

The meeting was held in the La Salle hotel under the leadership of Dr. John A. Lapp. Delegates from 117 civic, labor, religious, and nationality groups attended. Many of them were identified with the short-lived movement to draft Secretary of the Interior Ickes as a candidate for mayor.

Protests that the ward-precinct idea was contrary to the organization delegate idea were voted down.

"Let's carry the battle against the Kelly machine right on to the finish," said County Judge Jarecki at a Democratic meeting in his home ward, the 33d. "State's Attorney Courtney stood by me and I urge his election."

"I have been in every part of the city and have never seen greater enthusiasm," Mayor Kelly said at a regular Democratic organization luncheon in the Morrison hotel. "I am going to continue to get the facts about the record to the people without engaging in mudslinging."

DEWEY URGES PROBE OF BOSS RULED ALBANY

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Republican candidate for governor last fall, has asked leaders of the Republican controled legislature and the Republican state organization for a legislative investigation of O'Connell-Democratic controled Albany city and county, it was learned here today.

Dewey, in his campaign speeches, singled out Albany as an example of Democratic misrule. He charged the Albany Democratic machine, dominated by Edward J. and Daniel P. O'Connell, brothers, with juggling the assessment rolls to reward Democrats and punish Republicans.

Dewey also charged flagrant registration and election frauds, pointing out that with a total city population of about 130,000, there was a registration of 82,000—a figure which he claimed exceeded the total adult population of the city.

JAILED FOR BREAKING WINDOWS.

Steve Cichony, 2963 Indiana avenue, was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell for malicious mischief by Judge Joseph B. Hermes yesterday. Cichony was seized Wednesday night after he had broken into a loop department store through a window.

COURTNEY LIKENS MAYORAL FIGHT TO WORLD WAR

Asks Veterans to Support His Candidacy.

State's Attorney Courtney, Democratic candidate for mayor, told a meeting of service men at his headquarters in the Sherman hotel yesterday that there is a resemblance between the present campaign and the world war.

"This is not a new fight," he said. "It is the same as twenty years ago, when men left their jobs and families to fight for the cause of world democracy. Now we must battle to clean up Chicago.

"Chicago needs new and vigorous blood in public office. Every veteran should support progressive democracy in this primary. It is a great opportunity to elect an all-service men's ticket.

Asks All to Vote.

"I am directing an appeal to all service men to urge each citizen to vote on Feb. 28. If this is done, there will be no doubt as to the outcome of the election."

A resolution approved by the service men was presented to the candidate. It read:

"The Hon. Henry Horner and the Hon. Edmund K. Jarecki are the type of public officials who have always merited the support of service men. A strong ally of Gov. Horner and Judge Jarecki—Thomas J. Courtney—now seeks the nomination of Democratic candidate for mayor.

"Therefore, be it resolved that the service men of Chicago again unite and organize in support of the candidacy of Thomas J. Courtney for mayor."

Running Mates Indorsed.

The resolution also indorsed Courtney's running mates, Horace G. Lindheimer for city clerk and Stanley A. Halick for city treasurer. The Courtney service men's organization is headed by Sidney T. Holzman, secretary to Judge Jarecki.

Courtney headquarters called attention to a new campaign folder issued in behalf of the candidate. The cover carries the words, "We, the people of Chicago, want Courtney for our next mayor." The inside pages are used largely for quotations from men and women whose pictures are printed and whose occupations are stated but whose names are omitted.

There are ten of them. Among them are an insurance broker, a garage owner, an oral surgeon, a manufacturer, an attorney and a housewife.

SECOND WOMEN'S UNIT FORMED TO AID GREEN'S FIGHT

Plan Drive Among Clubs and Foreign Groups.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Fifty Republican women, headed by Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, announced yesterday the formation of a committee representing 5,000 women which will support Dwight H. Green for mayor.

Mrs. Walter B. Wolf.

Twenty women will begin work tomorrow in the office of the new group, known as the volunteer women's committee for Green, at 3332 South Michigan avenue. The committee's purpose, Mrs. Wolf said, is to bring out the independent Republican vote.

Mrs. Wolf said the group is independent, but will work in close cooperation with Mrs. Mable B. Krutckoff, chairman of the regular Green women's division. Mrs. Krutckoff's group is working among ward organizations. Mrs. Wolf's organization will concentrate on foreign groups, clubs, and other channels.

"The volunteer committee was formed because women wanted it," said Mrs. Wolf. She has been an ardent political worker since 1926 when she organized Illinois women for Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms.

Finds Women Enthusiastic.

"Women have demanded how they can work for Mr. Green and what they can do. They are enthusiastic about him. One woman wanted 1,000 cards to send out. We are going right to work as the last three weeks of the campaign are the most vital of all."

Mrs. Wolf cited Chicago's tax rate as one salient reason why women should vote for Green.

"Women know that a large slice of the family income goes for city taxes," she said. "Those taxes are exorbitant. It is so obvious that this money, which families need, is being thrown away in waste and extravagance.

"We face a tax rate of $10 on each $100 valuation. Why should it cost so much more to operate government in Chicago than in other large cities? It is because we have a huge political machine over us instead of honest city government.

"Mr. Green is clean and courageous. He will produce a lower tax rate. He knows exactly how he can cut these taxes. The women of Chicago can elect Mr. Green, and will. They want a practical, honest business man in the city hall."

Mrs. Heed Vice Chairman.

Mrs. Rushmore B. Heed, who has been active in 44th ward politics for the past six years, has been selected as vice chairman of the volunteer committee.

Among the fifty members are Mrs. Sewell Avery, Mrs. Frank Bellows, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Harrison Monroe Cade, Mrs. Rufus Dawes, Mrs. George R. Dean, Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mrs. Arthur Lueder, Mrs. Sterling Morton, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Frederick Upham, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, Mrs. George McKibbin, and Mrs. Mary Berkemeier Quinn.

DEMOCRATS MAY SELECT CONTACT BODY TOMORROW

A dozen or more leading Democrats in the Illinois legislature will meet with Acting Governor John Stelle in Springfield tomorrow night for a discussion of legislative problems. Creation of a Democratic contact committee to work with the governor in the house on the party program for the five remaining months of the session may be agreed upon.

The Democrats divide control with the Republicans in the political makeup of the assembly. The G. O. P. has the house; the Democrats the senate.

Those invited to the meeting include the floor leaders. Senator Harold G. Ward and Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski, Representatives James P. Boyle of Chicago and Sam Perry of Wheaton and Representative Schaefer O'Neill of Alton, acting Governor Stelle's spokesman on the floor of the house.

Nearly Every Other Person in Films Is a Vice President

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The census bureau today classified nearly every other person in the movie industry as a corporation officer. It said that in 1937, for which figures have just been tabulated, the industry had 15,845 salaried officers drawing $104,324,328 and 18,779 "wage earners" earning $35,264,336.

Cherry Pie Baker

MISS HELEN COUNCIL.

Miss Helen Council, 16 years old, of Sherman, in Sangamon county, will represent Illinois in the national cherry pie baking contest to be held in the Morrison hotel on Washington's birthday, Feb. 22. Miss Council is a junior in Williamsville High school and is active in 4-H club work, having won honors in both county and state contests. Winning girls from each state will compete in the baking contest.

GREEN PLEDGES AID TO KEEP U. S. OUT OF EUROPE

Raps Alliances with Old World Powers.

Dwight H. Green, Republican mayoralty candidate, promised yesterday that if elected he will aid the Republican party in every way in its policy of keeping the United States out of foreign entanglements.

"Meddling in oversea affairs must be stopped," he said, "and the government's energies should be directed to solving our own problems."

His statement came in the wake of disclosures in Washington concerning President Roosevelt's new foreign policies and charges that Mr. Roosevelt is leading the country along the road to war.

Recalls Efforts of G. O. P.

Green spoke at a meeting of the women's division of the Illinois Republican Service Men's league in the Morrison hotel.

"In 1919," he said, "the Republican party prevented the Democrats from putting our country into the League of Nations, which would have thrown us into quarrels and wars of the old world.

"Today again the Republican party is standing against the same forces which are attempting to thrust this country into the turmoil of European intrigue. The people, at the last election, showed their disgust with Democratic, waste, and mismanagement.

Charges Democrat Plot.

"To divert the attention of the country from the failure of the Democratic administration to provide jobs for the 12,000,000 unemployed, it is the plan of Democratic politicians to talk war. In doing so they are endangering the peace and safety of our nation.

"As mayor of Chicago, I shall do everything in my power to assist the Republican party in keeping our country out of entangling alliances. We should mind our business and permit other nations to attend to theirs. We must keep our young men at home with adequate employment and not send them to Europe to settle the age old quarrels and differences of European nations and their political leaders."

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

The St. Charles Training School for Boys, which police charge has its "graduates" sprinkled through every penitentiary of Illinois, provides far better accommodations than many city boys enjoy in their homes.

Good beds, good food, and healthful supervised sports, and educational and vocational opportunities are offered the boys who behave.

The fault which penologists find with the institution is that it was designed and intended for underprivileged boys, not criminally inclined thugs and hoodlums. Unfortunately these make up a good part of its 598 prisoners.

Cottage Plan at School.

The training school is operated on the cottage plan. Each cottage, which is really an oversized residence with basement, first and second floors, houses about forty-two inmates. The second floor, where the boys sleep in a large dormitory, also has sleeping quarters for the man and his wife who are in charge of the cottage.

The school operates seven farms, fronting along state route 330. The larger boys, if they will, operate the farms, gardens and greenhouses. The farms practically supply all the food, except the beef. They get plenty of fresh milk and vegetables. Meals are served in the cottages and the youths eat eight at a table. The cookies and pies and other foods are prepared in a main kitchen and sent in steam tables to the cottages.

The inmates participate in almost every kind of athletics. Each cottage has its own athletic field and ping pong table in the cottage basement. The school basketball teams often beat the teams from neighboring schools while the inmates cheer them on with "school yells and songs." Movies are shown the boys twice each week.

Prizes for Good Behavior.

Bribery—the officials call it "prizes"—is used to encourage good behavior. If the boys behave for a month they may get a ride to the Brookfield zoo, with special food for dinner and candy bars, or they may be taken to an outside movie show.

"Those so-called kids get more out of life than I do even now," said a former guard, now working in St. Charles. He said he quit his job at the institution because he was afraid of his charges. "I cannot afford two movies a week," he continued. "They treat those kids too well. What some of them need is a good old fashioned thrashing once in awhile like my dad gave me when I misbehaved."

The only punishment for miscreants is that they must shovel coal or do the other menial tasks about the institution. They are also put in a so-called disciplinary cottage. Some of the boys have been sent to this cottage more than twenty times.

Laugh at Punishment.

"The kids only laugh at this sort of punishment," said the former employe. "If a boy wants to get even with his guard he runs away or makes a break. He knows this means the guard is called before the staf and probably will be suspended for one week, while all he may have to do is shovel a little coal."

W. T. Harmon, managing officer, said the boys always try to run away and always will. He said if he had his choice he would not want a wall around the institution because it wculd "make the boys feel penned up and would defeat our purpose of rehabilitation."

The solution, city officials of St. Charles say, is either to use the school for what it was intended or to build a wall around it and put a strict military disciplinarian in charge.

Harmon and his staf decide when a boy should be paroled, except in cases of inmates committed by a Criminal court. The parole board has jurisdiction in such cases.

This double parole system in one institution, according to Harmon, creates dissension. The youths resent the two standards by which they are judged.

"It is our experience that it is best to grant a boy a parole as soon as he is eligible. If parole is delayed he becomes sullen and dissatisfied and slides backward instead of going ahead," Harmon said.

The parole period for first offenders [that is, boys serving their first sentence in St. Charles] is three, six, or nine months. The average for the school is 10 to 12 months. Parole violators serve 14 to 16 months, when returned to the school.

The records show that few of the youths are entitled to be classed as first offenders. The majority of the boys are between 14 and 16 years old, according to the records.

New Home Placement System.

Parole violations are 25 to 30 per cent, the records disclose. This means that one out of every fourth boy does not reform, at least on his first trip to St. Charles. However, officials hope to do better under a new system of home placement. Under this system the state pays $25 per month, $20 for the board and $5 for spending money and incidentals, to a family taking a parolee. The state allotted $75,000 for this purpose, but Harmon said it all will not be spent this year. Eighty-four boys are now out on placement.

"The farm is the best outlet for us," said Harmon. "The boys have less temptation on farms than in cities. Formerly the boys went back to unsuitable homes. If they go back to the same environment it is a forlorn hope to expect them to stay reformed."

When asked what he does about boys who refuse to respond to the kindness treatment and who continue to violate paroles, Harmon said:

"We can't keep them here indefinitely. This type youth becomes discontented and is a behavior problem. Sooner or later he will end up where he belongs—in Pontiac."

St. Charles paroled 529 inmates during 1938, which means it had an almost complete turnover of its population.

Investigators find that the younger boys, if not too hardened, seem to progress under the kindly attention given them. The danger is that they will be contaminated by the older hoodlums. The school officials admit that under the present system they cannot keep a complete segregation between the two types. The younger boys, they say, are prone to lionize their tougher and older associates.

JOHN H. TOUHEY, FIRE-EATING FIRE VETERAN, RETIRES

Iroquois Blaze Stands Out in His 38 Year Service.

After nearly thirty-eight years of service Division Marshal John H. Touhey, drillmaster of the Chicago fire department, retired yesterday at the age of 63 years.

John H. Touhey.

Marshal Touhey joined the department on April 30, 1901, as the driver of horse drawn Engine No. 5, stationed at Jefferson and Van Buren streets. He rose steadily to pipeman in 1904, lieutenant in 1909, captain in 1911, battalion marshal in 1915, division marshal in 1925, and chief of the fire prevention bureau in 1928. He was appointed drillmaster in 1936.

On Dec. 30, 1903, he urged his horses to a gallop in response to a loop alarm. He says he will never forget that run—the appalling Iroquois theater fire in which hundreds died. On July 24, 1915, Marshal Touhey was in charge of several companies assisting in the rescue work that followed the sinking of the excursion steamer Eastland in the Chicago river. Hundreds were lost.

Marshal Touhey's record bears six creditable mentions, five of them for rescues from burning buildings.

Marshal Touhey plans to relax for a few weeks, then he will catch up on his fishing and traveling. He lives with his wife, Gertrude, at 4859 North Tripp avenue.

BILL ANDREWS, PICK UP PHONE AND CALL YOUR DAD—COLLECT

That plea was made through newspapers to the son of Elmer F. Andrews, wage-hour administrator, missing from the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia since Monday.

Bill Andrews.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

It was signed by Paul Sifton, deputy wage-hour administrator and long time friend of the boy and his family. Sifton said in his message:

"It would be a great thing if you would reach for a telephone and call your father. He and your mother would feel better. Your father will be at the Hotel Schenley in Pittsburgh from 6 tonight until 8:30 Sunday morning. After that he will be in Washington. Reverse the charges, wire, or write him. If you're starting a new chapter, why not do it right."

Last word of young Andrews' whereabouts came from Bristol, Conn. He was reported to have left there yesterday by bus en route to Long Island. He is 18 years old.

LOUIS SKATES ONTO THIN ICE WITH THIN TALE

The lone skater on the Humboldt park lagoon yesterday cut a figure eight with a flourish, his skates flashing in the sun. Park District Policeman John Cesarski hailed him.

"Hey," said the policeman, "the rink is closed because of thin ice. Come on over here."

The skater approached reluctantly.

"Swell skates," said the policeman, as he noticed the skater's tattered clothing. "Where'd you get 'em?"

The skater was evasive. At headquarters he said he was Louis Matye, 22 years old, 2342 Beach avenue. He admitted to Sergt. Frederick A. Blank that he stole the skates, with another pair, $13, and an electric razor from a hardware company at 3439 Chicago avenue Thursday night. He confessed eight other burglaries.

4 ARE ARRESTED WITH 3 GIRLS IN 'LOVE NEST'

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A man, three youths, and three high school girls were held in custody today in connection with the investigation of an alleged "love nest" at 205 South Court street. Police indicated they may make several additional arrests.

The men are Charles Oberg, 20 years old, of 205 South Court street; Herbert Steward, 36, of 514 Elm street; Maynard Seely, 17, of 428 Kishwaukee street, and James Gillespie, 19, of 316 North Church street. Steward has served two prison terms, one for slaying his foster parents in 1921. Police said Seely is on probation on a charge of driving a car without the owner's consent, and Gillespie is on probation on a larceny charge.

Mildred Gerber, young opera and concert singer, and her husband, Dr. Adolph A. Smolen, were kidnaped in their car by two bandits early today and robbed of $1,460 in cash and other valuables.

They had been to a theater and were entering their parked car in front of 167 West Washington street to drive to their home at 1855 South Karlov avenue when the robbers appeared. "Just keep cool," said one of the bandits. "We'll all just take a little ride. Anyway, it's on your way home."

The robbers took a diamond wrist watch, valued at $500; a ring costing $150, and $60 from Dr. Smolen, and a Persian lamb coat, valued at $500 and two rings, valued at $250, from Miss Gerber. They escaped on foot at Paulina street and Maypole avenue. Miss Gerber made her debut with the Chicago City Opera company on Nov. 28, 1935.

TELLS LADY SHE WILL MEET A MAN AND LAW STEPS IN

She arrested Mrs. Phyllis Miller, 24 years old, in her home at 324 North Kedzie avenue. Mrs. Miller, she said, professed to read her fortune and told her that a handsome, wealthy young man would soon enter her life.

On Friday Policewoman Bowden seized Mme. Verna, otherwise Mrs. Mable Swales Boss, 20, of 906 North State street, another seeress, who is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Miller.

Policewoman Bowden's drive is inspired by recent complaints by gullible victims who charge that they were fleeced out of their savings by fortune tellers.

ROBBERS STRIP STORE WINDOW OF $6,000 IN COATS

Just before closing yesterday, two robbers walked into Blum's Vogue shop at 920 North Michigan avenue. One, with a pistol, covered Edward Blum, the manager, five women employés, and two customers. His partner stepped into the display window and stripped three mink coats, valued at $6,000, from the clothing dummies. Backing out of the store, the robbers jumped into a coupe and fled south. Turning the corner west in Delaware place, their car ripped off a fender in sidewiping a bus, but kept on without stopping.

Seven in Bandit Gang Get $250 in Radio Shop Holdup

Seven young bandits, all armed and wearing handkerchief masks, entered the Allied Radio store at 833 Jackson boulevard late yesterday afternoon. They compelled twenty-five customers and employés to lie on the floor, took $250 from the till and fled in two automobiles.

TAX VALUATIONS IN COOK COUNTY HIT 12 YEAR LOW

Cuts in Personal and Rail Assessments Credited.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

Cook county assessed valuations for 1938 are approximately 150 million dollars below 1937 and the smallest in a dozen years, analysis of the recently completed assessments yesterday disclosed.

The 1938 valuations fixed by county and state tax officials total $2,370,927,015. This is 6.3 per cent under 1937 and slightly below the 1936 total, which was the previous low for recent years.

The decline was due to cuts in personal property and railroad assessments. Real estate valuations were higher because of new home construction during 1938.

Real Estate Burden Heavier.

As a result of the revisions in assessments, real estate in the county will bear a larger proportion—72 per cent—of the total 1938 taxes. Personal property will be billed for 24 per cent, and railroads for 4 per cent. In 1937, the ratios were 67 per cent, 28 per cent, and 5 per cent, respectively.

Work on the 1938 assessment books is being completed by county officials, and it is expected that the 1938 tax rates will be formally announced within the next thirty days. The 1938 valuations are subject to late revisions.

1938 and 1937 Figures Compared.

Personal prop.	565,365,989	692,498,015
Railroad	107,325,822	132,149,036
Total	$2,370,927,015	$2,520,727,347

Real estate valuations are fixed by the county assessor. The assessor also determines personal property [except capital stock] subject to revision by the board of appeals. Capital stock assessments, which are included in personality, and the bulk of the railroad assessments are fixed by the Illinois tax commission.

	1938.	Change from 1937.
Personal prop.	527,784,822—	111,682,377
Capital stock..	37,581,167—	15,449,640
*Railroad	98,588,314—	24,910,707
†Railroad	8,737,508+	87,493
Total	$2,370,927,015	$149,800,332

*By state. †By assessor.

The decline in personal property and railroad taxes resulted from new methods of making assessments and revisions on personalty by the board of appeals. The board reduced Assessor Clark's original 1938 personalty total by 84 million dollars. Most of the reduction, the board said, was due to improper assessment against owners of stocks of Illinois corporations.

Most of Cut Made in City.

Property within the city of Chicago accounts for more than three quarters of the total valuation for the county, so most of the reduction was in the city. The indicated decline in city valuations is 125 million dollars.

Personal prop.	499,697,000	605,535,576

City realty owners will bear about 70 per cent of the city taxes; personalty, 25 per cent, and railroads, 5 per cent. Last year the proportions were real estate, 66 per cent; personalty, 29 per cent, and railroads, 5 per cent.

School Buses for Crippled Children Resume Tomorrow

William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday the forty-nine special buses used to transport crippled children to school will resume their regular schedules tomorrow morning if weather conditions permit. The six schools for crippled children were closed last week following the Monday snowstorm.

County Valuations

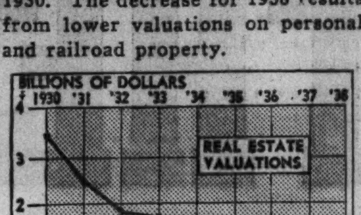
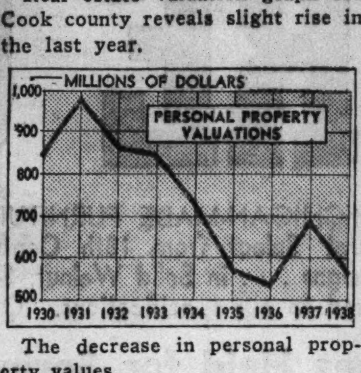
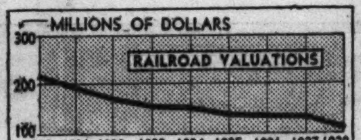
The total valuation of all property—real, personal, and railroad—in Cook county year by year since 1930. The decrease for 1938 results from lower valuations on personal and railroad property.



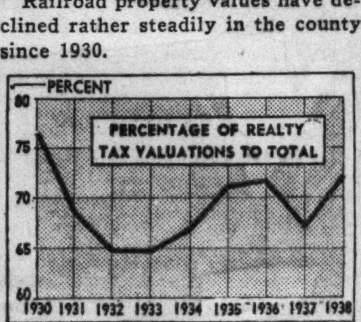
Real estate valuation graph for Cook county reveals slight rise in the last year.



The decrease in personal property values.



Railroad property values have declined rather steadily in the county since 1930.



The drop in railroad and personal property values has resulted in an increase in the share of the tax burden that real estate must bear. The ratio of real property value to total valuation of taxable property in the county is higher for 1938 than for any year since 1930.

ACCEPT WHEATON COLLEGE FUND FOR SCHOLARSHIP

A $4,000 scholarship fund for Wheaton college, given in the name of Dr. Elsie Storrs Dow, was presented formally last night at the eighth annual banquet of the Wheaton Club of Chicago held in the Admiral hotel.

The scholarship is a tribute to the service of Dr. Dow, professor of English literature and chairman of the English department at the college. She was graduated in 1881 and has served on the faculty since 1889.

Under the terms of the bequest it will provide annual tuition each year for one student, presumably one proficient in English literature. It was accepted last night by President J. Oliver Buswell Jr.

The Rev. Paul Allen, pastor of the Jefferson Baptist church, spoke of the work of Dr. Dow. Dr. Gordon H. Clark, associate professor of philosophy, gave the principal address, and Prof. Russell Mixter, associate professor of zoölogy, served as toastmaster.

BILL TO PROPOSE 150 INCREASE IN HIGHWAY POLICE

Safety Agencies Call for More Efficiency.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A bill will be introduced in the legislature next week to increase the personnel of the state highway police from 350 to 500 men. The proposal is sponsored by the state administration.

Safety agencies declare that the state's accident records reflect a need for more and better policing of Illinois highways. A large portion of these mishaps, they assert, are caused by the misconduct of drivers. Infractions of common rules of the road are conspicuous on any tour of the state, these agencies said, and Illinois highways are inadequately patroled.

Better Policing Advocated.

Improvement of the policing of rural roads is advocated by safety workers, but it is contended that such improvement does not lie simply in an addition to the patrol force. These agencies, before indorsing any addition to the police department, assert that the efficiency of the present man power should be increased.

"We're having a civil service bill drafted," Ernst Lieberman, chief of the highway department, said today. "Our plans for advancing the police also include the establishment of a training school."

At the last session of the legislature the state administration sponsored a civil service bill, but it failed to pass. Objections were raised to its provision that the incumbents be perpetuated in their jobs without test of their qualifications.

Part of Patronage System.

Safety workers pointed out that although the Illinois highway police is part of the patronage system a majority of the men are able and willing trained patrolmen and officers. Their jobs, however, are no more secure than the continued political success of their sponsors. A minority of the police, safety agencies said, has no aptitude for the work but is kept on the pay roll because of being able to deliver their precincts for the party bosses.

The addition of 150 men to the department would add more than 50 per cent to the number available for patrol duty. In the present force of 350, only 280 patrol the roads. This number canot give twenty-four hour coverage for the 12,000 miles in the primary road system.

To cover the cost of this enlargement the year's budget for the state police would be raised from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000. The $500,000 would pay salaries and would buy uniforms and equipment. All of the money comes from the road funds from motorists' taxes.

2 BANDITS SPEND BUSY HOUR; ROB 3 BEER DRIVERS

Two bandits last night held up three beer truck drivers on the south side within the space of an hour and took $230. The first holdup was in front of 7338 South Racine avenue. James Fortier of 5211 South Mozart street, a driver for the Superior Brewing company, 723 North Leavitt street, was robbed of $60.

Thirty-five minutes later the gunmen held up William Heffer, a driver for the Calumet Beer distributors, 309 West 115th street, in front of 7819 South Michigan avenue and took $20. The third victim —twenty minutes afterward—was Howard Mattull, a driver for the Meyer S. Jacobs Liquor company, 9237 Commercial avenue. He was robbed of $150 in front of 7135 South Chicago avenue.

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

INJURIES FATAL TO CHAUFFEUR STRUCK BY AUTO

Clarence Du Bois, 35 years old, 7026 Cottage Grove avenue, died last night in St. George's hospital of injuries suffered early yesterday when he was struck by an automobile which sped away without stopping. The accident occurred in front of 7251 Vincennes avenue. Du Bois was a chauffeur.

An autopsy was ordered yesterday to determine if the death of Miss Mary Rooney, 54 years old, 510 West Fullerton avenue, was the result of an automobile accident more than a year ago. Miss Rooney, a nurse, died yesterday in the Columbus hospital. She was injured in an accident on Dec. 27, 1937. Last Dec. 30 she entered the hospital.

Mrs. Adele Morgan, 49 years old, 230 East Superior street, was seriously injured last night when she was struck by a hit and run automobile at Clark street and Chicago avenue. She was taken to the Henrotin hospital.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 98 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 79 were killed in Chicago, where 1,871 were injured in the same period.

ENJOINS MOTHER FROM SEEKING A DIVORCE FOR YEAR

Judge Oscar F. Nelson refused yesterday to grant a divorce to Mrs. Sadie Weinstein, 1255 North Honoré street, because her petition for the decree made no provision for the care of her two small daughters.

Mrs. Weinstein, who is 39 years old, charged cruelty in her suit against Joseph Weinstein, 45, of 1143 North California avenue, a waiter. Their children, Annette, 7, and Sharline, 3, have been in the Juvenile home since last Nov. 20.

Attorneys for the couple told the court neither father nor mother could afford to support the children.

"If they have money to hire attorneys, they can spare some for the children," Judge Nelson retorted. He ruled that Mrs. Weinstein could not file another divorce suit during the next year on penalty of being held in contempt.

HORNER ABLE TO MOVE TO HOME HE HAS LEASED

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, recuperating here from a fatiguing illness, has moved from the home of L. S. Bonfoey to a house two blocks north, it was learned today. He is residing there with his secretary, John Casey, and a cook.

Bonfoey, the governor's host since his arrival here last December, said he had asked Horner to remain longer, but the governor decided not to impose upon his hospitality. Horner leased his new residence for a month or six weeks, Bonfoey said, and moved yesterday.

The governor is reported considerably improved and able to be about the yard. He takes daily sunbaths.

ROAD OFFICIALS FROM 17 STATES CLOSE SESSIONS

A. C. Tilley, state highway engineer of Nebraska, was elected president of the Mississippi Valley Conference of State Highway Departments yesterday at the closing session yesterday of a three day meeting in the Stevens hotel. More than 250 highway experts from the state departments of seventeen member states, all in the central west, attended the meetings. Mutual problems of construction, trafic, and safety, state-wide planning, and many other phases of highway development were discussed.

Tilley succeeds C. W. Brown, chief engineer of the Missouri highway department. C. Coykendall of the Iowa state highway department was elected secretary.

The conference reasserted its stand against the diversion of funds collected through gasoline taxes for any other purposes than highway construction and maintenance. Such a stand was urged by Murray D. Van Wagoner, president of the American Road Builders' association, and Michigan state highway commissioner.

Kidney Strain Often Causes Backache, Getting Up Nights

If you're feeling out o-sorts, Get Up Nights, or suffer from Dizziness, Nervousness, Backache, Leg Pains, Swollen Ankles, Burning Passages, Excess Acidity, or Loss of Energy and feel old before your time, functional Kidney Weakness may be the true cause.

Wrong foods and drinks, worry, colds or overwork may create an excess of acids and place a heavy strain on your kidneys so that they function poorly and need help to properly purify your blood and maintain health and energy.

Help Kidneys Doctor's Way

Many Doctors have discovered by scientific clinical tests and in actual practice that a quick and modern way to help the kidneys clean out excess poisons and acids is with a scientifically prepared prescription called Cystex. Hundreds and hundreds of Doctors' records prove this. All Cystex active ingredients are listed in each package, accompanied by a Laboratory Certificate of Purity.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping your Kidneys remove excess acids. Quickly, this may make you feel like new again. And so certain are the makers that Cystex will satisfy you completely they ask you to try it under a money back guarantee. You be the judge. If not entirely satisfied just return the empty package and get your money back.

Cystex (Siss-tex) costs only 3c a dose at druggists and the guarantee protects you, so start your test today.

THE results of a wide study of obstetric practices furnish positive evidence that motherhood can be made safer by proper medical supervision and care throughout the full term of pregnancy. The study clearly shows that while childbirth is a natural function, not all women are physically equipped to withstand its unavoidable strains. Many women who become pregnant have serious physical defects, some of which they themselves are not aware of. Unless these defects are discovered early and properly cared for, they may cause dangerous, if not fatal, consequences. Therefore, it is highly important to know whether disease of any nature is present in any part of the body—especially the heart, lungs, kidneys, and other vital organs. Heart disease is quite common and presents a serious problem, particularly during the labor period. Tuberculosis, too, may be present when least expected and increase the hazards of child-bearing many times. The kidneys also must be in a healthful state to function properly, and a careful examination must be made of the pelvis to guard against danger to both mother and child at delivery. These and many other additional medical services are necessary to complete the routine care which every pregnant woman needs and should have in order to guard against ever present dangerous possibilities. But, according to competent obstetrical authority, these services which are advocated as the ideal standard of completeness are received by very few women. The reason obviously is the prevailing high cost of such services and the inability to obtain them from many physicians in private practice. And this is no reflection upon the private practitioner; it's a medico-economic condition over which he has no control. However, through organization and group practice a cost control has been developed by which all of these extremely valuable and protective services can be made available to women within their ability to pay. Associated physicians of a United Medical Service will provide all services considered necessary to meet the highest standard of completeness in this important field of medicine—at a low fixed cost.

See detailed description of this complete service in adjoining column.

Obstetrical Care

embracing every protective medical service considered by competent authorities as the ideal standard of completeness in this important field of medicine is now available through a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE within the income reach of all.

The complete service includes a careful history of each case and a thorough and painstaking physical and gynecological examination by competent and experienced physicians.

An examination of the heart and lungs by a trained physician—blood pressure estimation test—an electrocardiogram of the heart's action—a full size X-ray picture of the chest showing the size and shape of the heart and larger blood vessels and the condition of the lungs.

Through the use of the electrocardiograph and the X-ray heart trouble can be detected often when other methods fail and the presence of tuberculosis accurately determined.

An X-ray study of the pelvis by modern methods is also made to supplement external measurements in order to more fully determine its size and other conditions. If and when necessary, these procedures are repeated from time to time during the pre-natal period.

An X-ray examination of all the teeth is also made in order to check the possible presence of decayed or abscessed teeth which often occur during pregnancy.

A complete blood examination including serological test for syphilis—also tests for gonorrhea and other infectious diseases are also made. Urinalyses are done routinely and a careful check of conditions of the kidneys recorded on each visit.

The charge for these and the many other protective services provided to each patient during the full term of pregnancy, including delivery, by a specially trained and experienced obstetrician, is $25

(There is a charge of $3.50 for the first preliminary examination.)

JURY OPENS QUIZ ON KANSAS CITY LAW BREAKDOWN

Gambling Tables and Bookies Closed.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—Kansas City's crusading Judge Allen C. Southern, who has defied Boss Tom Pendergast's Democratic machine, charged his special grand jury today to start immediately a broad inquiry into alleged "unrestrained violations of law."

With the last legal obstacle cleared away by the State Supreme court, which refused to issue a writ of prohibition, Southern, sitting on a state bench, called the jury before him in an unscheduled Saturday sessions and declared:

"It is a matter of general knowledge that gambling is conducted in Kansas City on a tremendous scale and it is commonly reported that tribute is levied upon every gambling game by powerful racketeers who, it is said, have heretofore been immune from question and prosecution."

Five Weeks for Action.

He pointed out that only five weeks remain before the court term will end and the jury be dissolved, and asked the jury to investigate and return indictments designed to throttle wide open gambling and correct any misconduct in public office.

"You can inquire into the conduct of public officials of the county and city and indict if necessary," Judge Southern told the jury.

The judge named three assistants atorney general, Harry Kay, J. E. Taylor, and J. W. Buffington, to assist in presenting evidence. They are subordinates of Attorney General Roy McKittrick, Pendergast political ally.

He stipulated that W. W. Graves, county prosecutor, recently criticized by Gov. Lloya C. Stark, could appear before the jury although previously he had told the jurors that Graves had disqualified himself by a statement that there was no evidence of a breakdown of law enforcement.

Gamblers Seek Cover.

Already there were indications along Kansas City's notorious 12th street that the gamblers were running for cover.

In the night clubs dice tables were dark; in the poolrooms the blacjack and poker tables were empty, and the race book rooms were boarded up.

Judge Southern's investigation was launched under orders from Gov. Stark, who has been engaged in a Democratic factional feud with Boss Pendergast. The governor charged law enforcement has broken down under Pendergast's domination.

State to Ask Indictment of Aged Woman's Slayer

Assistant State's Attorney Leslie Curtis said yesterday that he will seek a grand jury indictment for murder tomorrow against Charles Garcia, slayer of Mrs. Johanna Shoberg, 88 years old. Mrs. Shoberg was found murdered in her home at 3262 North Clark street on Tuesday night. Garcia, who lives at 3029 North Clark street, was seized Thursday and confessed the murder to Capt. Patrick O'Connell of the Town Hall police.

Girl, 13, Awakens as Blaze Sweeps Flat; Family Flees

Fire early yesterday drove Mark Hanna, his wife, Joan, and their six children into the cold from their second floor apartment at 2642 West 38th street. A daughter, Geraldine, 13 years old, was awakened by the crackling flames and aroused the others.

KILLED BETWEEN FREIGHT CARS.

George Wascura, 50 years old, 5316 South Artesian avenue, an employé of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe railroad, was accidentally killed last night when he was caught between two moving freight cars in the road yards near 47th street and Archer avenue.

Sister Stars Hurt

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—Rosemary and Priscilla Lane, the sister movie stars who were buffeted last night by a mob of autograph seekers, one of whom gouged Rosemary's face with a pencil, were shaken today when their car and a truck collided in Los Angeles.

Priscilla's neck was sprained and X-rays will be taken to determine the extent of the injury. Jeffery Lynn and Henry O'Neill, also screen players, were with the Lane girls and also were shaken. The four were returning from San Diego, where they attended a preview last night at which the sisters were almost mobbed by the autograph seekers. The truck was driven by Sambo Sakugushi, a Japanese gardener.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 4.—(AP)—State health authorities said today they believe that Illinois college freshmen were bigger and better last year than freshmen were twenty years ago.

The state health department reported that men enrolling in the state's universities in 1938 averaged two inches taller than 1918 enrollees and women were one inch taller.

Dr. Howard J. Beard, health officer at the University of Illinois, reported that typhoid fever was nine times more frequent in health histories of the class of 1921 than in the class of 1941; tuberculosis was three times, and diphtheria twice as frequent.

'BIG LOUIS,' NEW FRENCH AXMAN, CHOPS FIRST HEAD

Victim Delays Operation Until He Has Breakfast.

RENNES, France, Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—"Big Louis" des Fourneaux, taking the executioner's job of the late Anatole Deibler, chopped off the head of Murderer Maurice Pilorge today with the late master's No. 2 guillotine—the collapsible job Deibler used for provincial assignments.

Thus, apparently, the job of official executioner passed from the Deibler family after 120 years. Anatole dropped dead last Thursday while on the way to perform this execution, which would have been his 402d in forty years.

Deibler for a long time regarded his lanky son-in-law, Andre Perrier, his official heir to the job. In recent months, however, he picked, instead, his nephew, Andre Obrecht. But Obrecht weakened. He found that the more executions he attended the sicker he was made by each one.

Killer Refuses Reprieve.

Whether Fourneaux would succeed permanently to the job was not known since the ministry of justice never announces officially such a succession.

Fourneaux arrived last night with the No. 2 guillotine. Pilorge, who murdered a rich Mexican at Dinard, had won an extra day of life because of Deibler's death. He was not thankful. He had written to President Albert Lebrun, repudiating an appeal for reprieve his lawyers had made. He said to his guards last night as the guillotine was erected:

He was imperturbable this morning, but refused to hurry.

"I never thought I'd have so many people at my awakening," he said after a priest, a doctor, and a jailer awakened him. He took communion, but donned a dunce cap which he had made of a newspaper as he walked to the chapel.

Demands His Breakfast.

Just when Fourneaux gave the word that all was ready, Pilorge complained:

"Where's my breakfast?"

They started to take him out to the prison yard, but he demanded a final cigaret.

"Hurry up, you're losing time," Fourneaux chided him.

"Say, wise guy, if you were in my place you wouldn't be in such a hurry," Pilorge retorted.

"Go easy there, I don't want my skin cut."

GENESEO PIONEER DIES.

Geneseo, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Caroline Windisch, 85, native of Germany, who resided in Geneseo more than eighty years, died this morning. Two daughters, Mrs. Martha Casteel and Miss Anna Windisch, and three sons, Clarence and Albert, Geneseo business men, and Martin of Rockford, survive.

SHIPPING STRIKE PERILS ALASKAN FOOD SUPPLIES

JUNEAU, Alaska, Feb. 4.—(AP)—A fresh food shortage threatened Alaskan cities today, grocers reported, as a result of a ship strike which cut off normal channels of supply.

Grocers said their fresh fruits and vegetables would be exhausted by Monday, fresh meats by Tuesday, and butter and egg supplies probably would not last over the week-end.

The strike yesterday of the Masters, Mates, and Pilots' union against three Alaskan shipping companies has tied up two ships at Seattle. Four more are expected to become idle next week. These ships carry fresh food supplies for southern and central Alaskan cities.

GIVE AVIATION A SQUARE DEAL.

Aviation's troubles are twofold—overregulation and underpayment for service rendered. Regulation in the past by anywhere from three to seven different and independent divisions of government almost cost the nation its air transportation system. Subsidy came to be a bitter word to the men of the aviation industry, because in many actual cases the air lines were performing the service of carrying air mail at rates so low that the postoffice department actually was making a profit on air mail stamps.

Congress recognized the need for curative treatments for the aviation industry in 1938 by the creation of the Civil Aeronautics authority—a new bureau. The CAA was to be the government agency to which aviation could take its troubles for settlement. The authority was given broad powers to regulate all nonmilitary flying, to create aviation facilities, to fix amounts of compensation for aviation work, to foster the industry, and to put it on a sound basis that would enable it to expand and multiply itself like any other vigorous, growing enterprise.

On last Aug. 22 the new authority, consisting of an administrator answerable only to the President and six members answerable to no one during their terms of office, began to function. The CAA took over a going concern, the old aeronautics branch of the department of commerce. There were the usual meetings at which the new members and administrator promised immediate action. For once, they said, red tape would be slashed and the slow wheels of government speeded.

Within the United States the growth of aviation always has been bound up with the welfare of the air transportation companies. Manufacturers have sold their products to the air lines. Competition has been keen among the manufacturers because it has been keen among the transportation operators. Bigger and faster airplanes, capable of carrying a profitable load, have been conceived, designed, and built because of the constant demand for better and better air line service.

The effect has been cumulative. The air lines have in quick succession—over a furious decade—demanded and discarded a succession of new airplane engines, gasolines, propellers, radios, instruments. Industry has been hard put to satisfy the demands of the commercial air line operators for finer and then still finer physical equipment. This has meant jobs, training, money, multiplied a hundredfold, down through invisible strata of the nation's business.

The enviable position held by American manufacturers in world markets is directly related to the air line demands for finer equipment. Airplanes that met the requirements of civil lines in the United States were unsurpassed in quality. In recent years only the totalitarian governments have failed to buy American planes in large quantities.

Likewise the excellence in quality of American military planes is due in a large measure to the experience gained in building fine civil craft. The army and navy had the large stafs of engineers gathered by the manufacturers to turn out civil airplanes to supply ideas for military planes.

Taking all this into consideration, it is obvious that American aviation goes as the commercial air lines go. The first job, then, was to protect and foster these aerial arteries of commerce. And there were three important matters awaiting the attention of any agency that might set out to do this job. They were:

1. Rewriting and simplifying of the cumbersome, voluminous, complicated, and all too often contradictory regulations for civil flying.

2. Issuance of certificates of convenience and necessity to air line operators to provide them with definite franchises that would establish them soundly and enable them to obtain new financing.

3. Granting of temporary increases in air mail pay and commencement of studies from which ultimately a sound and equitable mail pay formula could be obtained.

One of the last acts of the old bureau of air commerce that was superseded by the CAA was the adoption of a new draft of air regulations. This draft was drawn by an expert legal staf. It contained rules and requirements that covered virtually every situation that could arise in connection with flying. All the rules were drawn to protect the air commerce bureau from criticism. They were not drawn with the practical problems of flying in mind. Compliance with one section meant violation of another. Strict adherence to the letter of the regulations meant a throttling of private or pleasure flying.

The rewriting, simplification, and adaptation of these new rules to the actual conditions that must be met in the field by airmen and air transportation was to be the first duty of the CAA, its members announced. But this job has not progressed. A few preliminary conferences have been called, but the CAA members have not insisted that the revision of the regulations be tackled with serious drive. This is an important matter and it should be pushed to an early conclusion. Delays should not be tolerated.

Months ago representatives of a number of the air lines testified before congressional committees that their companies were running desperately low on operating capital. They said that immediate action was needed to forestall bankruptcy. Granting that their condition was less strained than they represented, financial statements of a dozen of the twenty-eight air lines then operating showed that their cash reserves were virtually exhausted.

Underwriters refused to present stock issues for public subscription because, they said, the lines could give no assurance that abrogation of postoffice contracts or sudden competition over their routes would not wipe any one of the air line operators out of business. If, on the other hand, the lines could obtain certificates of convenience and necessity guaranteeing them rights similar to those granted other public carriers by the interstate commerce commission their positions would be more stable.

The CAA was empowered to issue such certificates. And the authority was directed to accept evidence that any given line was operating satisfactorily over a route as grounds for issuance of a certificate. Within thirty days after the CAA became a federal bureau petitions for such certificates had been filed by all the air lines. Hearings at which evidence was presented by the lines were completed within ninety days. Five months now have passed, but not a single certificate has yet been issued.

Finally comes the matter of granting increases in air mail pay. Since the abrogation of the air mail contracts in 1934 by the postoffice department the lines have been on a starvation diet. Rates for mail pay have been cut down so that in many instances it has cost some of the largest air line operators considerable sums of money to carry the mails.

At this time the maximum pay an operator may receive is 40 cents a mile for weights of mail up to 600 pounds. Any mail that is carried in addition to 600 pounds on any one trip is carried free. And the mail load for a number of trips made by United Air Lines, Transcontinental and Western Air, and occasionally Eastern Air Lines amounts to as much as 1,700 pounds. When this mail is carried on an airplane it means that the company is carrying 1,100 pounds deadhead [nonrevenue producing] mail.

This injustice is double-edged. Not only is the mail carried free but also because the cargo capacity of airliners is limited the mail prevents the line from selling seats on these particular trips to paying passengers. In other words, suppose an airliner has a 3,500 pound pay load potential. If 1,700 pounds of this is used in carrying mail it cuts the passenger cargo down by approximately half. Instead of carrying twenty-one passengers on this airplane only ten seats may be sold.

The air lines—without a single exception—have filed petitions with the CAA asking for temporary mail pay adjustments. The first of these petitions was filed within ten days after the commission began functioning, and the last was on file before sixty more days had passed. There has been no action of any kind on these emergency pleas for temporary assistance, and the long range study of air mail pay in relation to costs of giving adequate and safe air transportation service has not even been broached.

The time has come for the CAA to get down to business. For the administrator to administer and for the members to regulate by passing upon the matters now before them. They have been given a big job and one that is important to the welfare of the entire nation. But they have been wandering aimlessly away on side issues, upon personal aviation hobbies, upon programs that should be undertaken by the military services. It is time that their attention was redirected to the fundamental work for which they were designated.

HONOR IN DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENT.

The jury in the trial of an Indiana county treasurer accused of embezzling $128,000 of the money in his custody could not agree and had to be dismissed by the trial judge. One juror held out against conviction. Again a politician accused of corruption was too much for the administration of justice.

One of the great misfortunes of democracy is the spread of cynical opinion regarding rectitude in public office. The people have accepted defeat on this issue. They may not like corruption, swindling, theft, and profligacy in public affairs, but they have come to believe that honesty in political administration is not to be expected, and that it is rather a misfortune to be caught stealing than a crime to have stolen.

We have seen that work out in Cook county. Escape from punishment does not arouse great indignation. A man may steal, be acquitted, and hold his head up. He may go to trial with a defense which would even shame his lawyer and come out free. The people apparently accept it as a general truth that there is nothing to restrain a political office holder from helping himself as he pleases except his own character inhibitions.

Also it is easy for the politician to tamper with justice. Much of its machinery is under his control. When he is in danger he can use it. From the calling of the jury to the final say of the parole or pardon board politics has a hand in the matter. We hear a great deal of what is needed if democracy is to keep its course in the storms and little of what we hear has anything to do with democracy. Many of these so-called imperatives are anti-democratic in their essence and would prove to be so in their effects.

Democracy, however, cannot come to be synonymous with corrupt government and corrupted public morale. If its standards of service are those of thieves and if its people require nothing better the world may not long have a place for so degenerate a thing.

A TOUCHY ANIMAL.

A hardup sportsman bought a hunter and put off payments for a time. Later he met the man who sold him the horse.

"I am not satisfied with that animal," he said.

"Why, what's the trouble?" asked the dealer.

"Well, it won't hold its head up," said the sportsman.

NICE OF THEM.

A woman had gone to Scotland for the first time in her life. On her return to London she expressed herself as quite surprised at the comparative civilization of the north.

"Our English customs are spreading rapidly," she said: "Even in a little town like St. Andrews they have a nice golf course."—Pearson's Weekly.

EMPIRE BALLOON PUNCTURED

BY W. A. O'CARROLL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia.—H. G. Wells, who came to Australia to attend the science congress at Canberra, fired the imagination of Australians by advising them "to foster closer relations with the United States for your own protection." Such a suggestion rather puckishly punctured the British empire balloon, so long the symbol of national security. It carried the conviction that old concepts of empire infallibility and invincibility must be scrapped.

Australia, many were convinced, must set up a new nationalism, not empire inhibited, but one of its native fashioning, expressing the aspiratons of a young people conscious of the influence in their destiny of another and greater democracy in the Pacific—the United States.

Australia, then, must turn aside from the early settler attitude of mind which accepted "imperialism" as an article of sublime faith, without which there could be neither racial survival nor national salvation. The feeling, which all the flag flapping cannot discredit, is that the new salvation lies in this doctrin enunciated by Wells:

"I think that the unity of the English speaking peoples is more important than the British empire. Australia must play a very important rôle in the interrelations of the English speaking community of America, England, and the rest of the British empire. Australia may one day play a Shirley Temple rôle of bringing the two grown-ups, Britain and America, together. The British empire is a powerful, if temporary, political arrangement, but the reality is that we have to get together English speaking peoples. I suppose there are 400 million of them who think, read, and understand English.

"I want to see how far Australian thought is turning toward America. I want to know what you Australians think about the world situation, your relations to America and Japan."

The author said he believed that if the English speaking peoples got together they could make a plan for the world.

"We could get our press, our educationists, our radio, to create a better informed public. Today the radio in England is very much controled."

"Australia will find no fault with the first utterance of Mr. Wells upon our shores," said the Sydney Sun. "Many of us believe that an Anglo-American understanding is inevitable under the pressure upon common interests now becoming intensified in the east. Certainly American sentiment is veering toward the idea of parallel action in preserving common interests which go further than the mere right to trade in China, and involve the whole principle of freedom."

Letters to newspapers said that "America has definitly stepped out of her isolationist shell and has asserted her views with a candor and force reminiscent of the earlier Roosevelt." Correspondents regretted that "since Cordell Hull has made oft-repeated offers of parallel action, especially in the Pacific, Australia should have been tardy to secure this lifeline. The lack of commonwealth ambassadorial representation at Washington leaves this highly vulnerable dominion with hopelessly inadequate means of approach to the American state department."

"And," a correspondent added, "there is no dominion that will be more readily listened to, and none that carries greater weight—I dare even to say, not England herself."

Still another wrote: "Surely now that America has recently shown such distinct signs of withdrawing from her isolationist policy, and Mr. Hull put forth such feelers, we should not allow this psychological moment of interesting America in our defense to slip by."

Those opinions are typical of the widely entertained conviction that the United States desires "parallel action, especially in the Pacific," and that, a golden chance is being lost to Australia by the commonwealth's lack of a foreign policy, apart from that dictated by London and through Great Britain's preoccupations in European affairs.

The Sydney Sun expressed a general viewpoint in its comment: "That European policy that insisted on a British finger in every European brawl has been the main factor in the American disinclination to bind the United States in any manner to the other great democracy of the world. The people of the United States naturally desire no more embroilments in Europe. They may be willing, as the pressure of authoritarianism increases, to ally themselves with Britain for the maintenance of peace and freedom of thought and for the safety of their trade upon the seas. British engagements in Europe, however, will form an obstacle which would be readily understood if the Briton could put himself in the American's place."

Along those lines Australians are thinking. They believe they must bestir themselves. They think the hour of their destiny is nigh, and that it lies not in the old fallacies but in the new faith based as firmly on friendly coöperation with America as on filial alliance with Britain, and expressed by an Australian foreign policy unrestrained by empire considerations.

Justice Evatt of the high court of Australia said on his return from a world cruise, including the United States, that the commonwealth parliament could secure additional and valuable legal powers by adopting the statute of Westminster. First he remarked that the chief danger to democracy was caused by those who were opposed to free discussion. Then he suggested that it would be perhaps desirable to insert in the federal constitution express democratic safeguards in order to place beyond the reach of a chance parliamentary majority fundamental civil liberties such as freedom of the press, freedom of speech, the right of public meeting, the right of association in trade union and other bodies, and the effective right of trial by jury."

Prime Minister J. A. Lyons replied: "I believe as intensely as any Australian in the principle of free speech and freedom of discussion, but I would warn you to be on your guard against those who are ready to exploit such principles, not because of a love of democracy but because they want to undermine the democracy that allows them such freedom."

* *

Minister for External Affairs W. M. Hughes, who, like Lyons, sat originally in parliament as a Labor representative, said: "The federal constitution does not provide for free speech because we inherited the British political system, which is based on freedom of speech. Without freedom of speech the British system could not function effectively. Therefore we have taken freedom of speech for granted. It has been otherwise in the United States, where they began with a written constitution. We began with the constitution of England, which we adopted."

Conflicting violently with those passionate pronouncements were two recent incidents in which senior members of the federal government figured in what some described as Fascist rôles.

H. V. C. Thorby, minister for civil aviation [recently named minister for defense], in answering criticism of his policy by John Curtin, Labor leader, stormed: "If I had the power I would have all such traitors put up against a wall and shot."

Curtin merely had exercised his privilege of comment. The minister's rejoinder sounded strangely alien to Australian ears, from which have not yet receded echoes of the Mrs. Freer case, when a British national was barred from entering the commonwealth on the say-so of the then minister for the interior. A later apology probably postponed Thorby's removal from the cabinet.

Opposition circles said that a more flagrant example of the Fascist tendency was the sudden closing of the New South Wales Labor council's radio station at Sydney in the middle of a Christmas broadcast. This action was taken by Postmaster General Archie Cameron without consulting the cabinet.

It appeared that the station had departed from fact in its criticism of the minister and his policy. The ban was removed when the station agreed to broadcast an apology. But one politician's power to curb free speech shocked the land.

THE CONQUEST OF FEAR.

PEACE of mind is a goal which most of us strive to achieve and we like to think that we have arrived at that satisfactory state through our own efforts.

There was a time—centuries ago—when superstition, added to ignorance of the laws of nature, kept a certain portion of the populace in constant perturbation. Man emerged from the so-called dark ages only after the bitterest sort of struggle. Even today one may wonder if recent developments in some parts of the world have not shaken the faith of millions in our acclaimed principles of right. Will we who dwell in this American democracy be called upon to defend our fundamental concepts of government, the stability of which we have perhaps boasted too flippantly?

From the standpoint of health, happiness, and clear thinking we must recognize the pernicious influence of doubt and distrust. The one who feels that personal security is tottering may succumb to panic, as self-preservation is the dominant human instinct. The "madness of crowds"—of which we have had many illustrations in history, and which some of us have observed at first hand—can destroy judgment and set law at defiance. This comes about only when reason is dethroned. As a member of a mob an otherwise self-respecting citizen may commit acts incomprehensible even to himself in the afterglow of reflection. There is but a thin shell in any present day society between order and disorder.

But we can stop being apprehensive and the elements required to insure to every one a sense that "all is well" may be taught in childhood. We are told not to take unnecessary risks when crossing the street or when driving the family car; that touching a hot object may cause a burn; that neglect of health may bring severe illness or even loss of life. Pointing out danger need not inculcate fear, timidity, or cowardice. Its objective is to prevent our becoming foolhardy. This explains the attitude that many of us have toward national policies as we must realize that administrations are no wiser than the men and women who make up the official family.

Many a youngster will plead, "I am afraid" if left alone in the dark or placed in a strange environment. Out of touch with those whom he rightfully regards as his protectors, experience may not have shown him that he is safe. This is the time when love, affection, and trust must be so overpowering that he will know nothing can happen to him; that what at first blush may appear to be neglect is merely designed to establish self-confidence.

I am sure that there are many examples of nervous, jittery children who have been forced into highly emotional states because of lack of faith in their elders. They have never been reassured. We may grant that while too much mothering and coddling is likely to develop the helpless, dependent type—on the other hand, throwing a youngster into the water and watching his frantic striving for survival is even more cruel.

It is never wise to say to a child, "There is no such thing as fear." Why? Because he knows better. Should he be scolded because he remarks, "I am frightened"? The proper approach is to help him evaluate the possibilities—to conquer the hazard. In other words, if on a slippery surface he may walk more slowly with shorter steps. After a while he will learn that a glassy sidewalk does not mean a bad bump. Thus are inhibitions overcome. Confidence is justified only when it is based upon logic and truth. The lad may be told, "If you are careful there is no peril."

A senseless phobia will fade away after an investigation and a search for trouble may typify only prudence. As individuals many of us have learned that it is never wise to put to sea in a leaky boat, but the lesson is not deeply ingrained in our popular consciousness.

SLEEP HABITS.

Mrs. A. P. writes: I have a friend who finds it difficult to get to sleep at night. For this reason he reads until two or three o'clock in the morning. Isn't this a bad habit? How can he do his work during the day if he spends most of the night reading?

REPLY.

One can fall into bad sleeping habits easily. With the mind at rest and the body reasonably fatigued, slumber should come. One can practice auto-suggestion or adopt certain physical procedures that are helpful. A half-hour walk in the open just before retiring will usually bring a sense of relaxation. Worry and nervousness should be avoided. Often the simple expedient of covering the eyes with a black cloth is of value. Your reader-friend should have seven to eight hours of restful sleep. Perhaps he gets it in the daytime.

TOBACCO FORBIDDEN.

J. N. R. writes: A patient, aged 35, was advised that he is suffering from Buerger's disease in mild form. What would be the result of the continued use of tobacco? Is it possible to indulge in moderation without harmful effects? Is the use of a filter helpful?

REPLY.

In such circumstances the use of tobacco is forbidden because of its positive effect upon the capillaries of the extremities. In fact, the skin temperature may drop as much as eight degrees after a single cigaret. Those who develop Buerger's disease are extremely sensitive to nicotine.

We have a leaflet on this malady which we will be glad to send on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

UNDULANT FEVER.

Mrs. E. S. writes: What is undulant fever? What causes it? Is there a cure? What is the duration of the disease? Is it restricted to persons of a certain age?

REPLY.

Undulant fever is characterized by temperature, chills, headache, and perspiration, which come in waves or periods. It is caused by an organism called Brucella melitensis or abortus. This latter germ may be found in raw milk from infected cows. The duration varies from a few weeks to a year or more. It may respond to vaccine therapy or to sulfanilamide. All ages are susceptible.

AGE NO BAR.

Mrs. S. writes: I have been told that my tonsils are diseased and, inasmuch as I have rheumatism, they should be removed. I am 60 years old. Do you think it is safe for me to have this operation?

REPLY.

Age is no bar to removal. By all means place yourself in skilled hands and have them out. You will thus stop the absorption of a substantial amount of pus.

FOR A NEW CHICAGO PLAN.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Your thoughtful editorial concerning the development of our parks and the automobile thoroughfares in your issue of Jan. 26 is certainly timely and sound. I have often thought, on driving through Lincoln park, how completely the trafic destroys it for any real recreational use. On the few occasions when I have tried to ride horseback in Lincoln park I felt that the risk far outweighed any possible pleasure.

The city plans which American cities made so ambitiously thirty years ago are largely outmoded. The automobile and the high building have combined to destroy the validity of most city planning that we have done. Many of us who are interested in the subject believe that a new start must be made and that city planning in the future must be based on different conceptions. Some of us think that the neighborhood should be the planning unit and that the first concern should be to protect family life and the home, both with respect to surroundings and trafic dangers. Neighborhood units should be planned without through streets sandwiched between the trafic arteries. Progressive effort should be made to separate all pedestrian from vehicular trafic.

The beginning on this idea was made in the planning of Radburn, N. J., where pedestrians do not have to cross any thoroughfare at any time to get to any part of the community. If we base our city planning on some such conception as this we will not continue to maim and kill nearly a million people a year.

I know that Chicago has long been proud of its Burnham plan and has felt self-satisfied about its accomplishments in planning. The fact is that Chicago is not well planned for living purposes, however impressive its lake front and some of its parks may be. The evidence that Chicago is not well planned is irrefutable. The suburbs continue to grow at five times the rate that the city grows. The desire to escape from the city continues. No one wants to build a home in Chicago if he can possibly afford to build outside.

It is my belief that we need a new group of city planners in Chicago who will look at conditions as they are and try to correct the basic things that are wrong. Such a group must be willing to forget impressive pictures and charts of the past and concentrate its thought on making Chicago itself a pleasant place in which to live and in which to bring up children. If some such new start is not made, Chicago will continue, I believe, to be among the cities which show small progress in rebuilding and those who live and work here will scatter their homes over increasingly great areas outside the city, with consequent increases in operating costs.

If you will take a pencil and paper and do a little figuring you will find that if we deduct from the 212 square miles of the city's area its water, its parks, its streets, and its industrial and business properties, there is enough land within the city to house every family in Chicago in a single family dwelling on a fifty foot lot. Most people find it hard to credit such a statement, but it is a fact that at present one-fourth of all the privately owned areas of the city of Chicago consist of vacant lots on which many millions of dollars have been spent by way of streets, curbs, and services, and are unused. The replanning of land use within the city of Chicago on a simple basis constitutes the major problem of our community at this time.

HELIUM, PLANES, AND NEUTRALITY.

Kenosha, Wis., Jan. 31.—I recall the recent refusal to allow the sale of helium to Germany because our present administration deemed the policy as one which would result in the bombing of innocent civilians, despite the assurances of various expert military sources that the dirigible in the present stages of aeronautical development no longer is a potent military factor.

We restrain aeronautical progress through denying Germany the necessary raw materials, but we lose no time or enthusiasm in encouraging our former allies to purchase airplanes, which we recognize as being weapons of war. Perhaps this is neutrality; it is quite similar to that of the Wilsonian administration and its "keep America out of war" policies. We know the result of the latter. God forbid that our present course will parallel the ill-fated Wilsonian in its eventuality.

Are we being led as blind sheep into another bloody catastrophe on the side of the allies to "save the world for democracy"? Shall we sacrifice our young men to satisfy the avarice of the war mongers? Are we to become a degraded vassal of Great Britain and France? I for one hope not.

CARL BEGH.

ON BECOMING A CITIZEN.

Barrington, Ill., Jan. 31.—Your editorial, "On Becoming a Citizen," brings home a vital point. Becoming an American citizen means nothing to a person born in the United States because he does not know what it is all about when he arrives; he screams, and that makes him a citizen. But becoming an American citizen means something entirely different to a person who is not born in the United States; he must have become of voting age and he must know something about the constitution and government of this country before he can be made a citizen. He can scream but it does him no good. He must by oath renounce a foreign potentate and must swear allegiance to the United States. He considers that act the most important act in his life, except, perhaps, getting married.

Why cannot the American government contribute to the occasion something that will make the new citizen feel that he is wanted and welcome besides giving him merely a certificate of citizenship? It is a scream when the American citizen is born, but it is a greater scream when the American government does not even extend a hearty greeting of welcome to the naturalized citizen.

RENT PAYMENTS.

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We rent and occupy a house that has a large mortgage on it, $10,000 first and $2,500 second. Six different persons hold the first mortgage: One has $5,000 interest and five others have $1,000 interest.

1. We have been paying the rent to the woman who has the $5,000 interest and have been in the house almost four years. We have no lease on the property.

Today one of the men who has a $1,000 interest wrote us that he has acquired a quit claim deed from the person who originally owned the property, but who gave it up in 1932, and [2] this man advises us that we are to pay the rent in future to him. The woman who has $5,000 interest says we are to pay to her.

3. Should we continue to pay the rent to the woman we have been paying?

4. Should we pay it to this man who has acquired quit claim deed?

5. If we continue to pay rent to the woman, as in the past, can the man who has quit claim deed make us move out?

J. B.

1. The mere fact that there is a mortgage on the property does not justify the tenant in making these payments to the mortgage holder. You do not make clear whether foreclosure proceedings have been instituted or whether the owner of the property has consented to your making the payments to the mortgage holder.

2. He is right as far as the bare facts stated are concerned.

3. We see no basis for her claim on the bare facts that you state.

4. See preceding answers.

5. Yes. On the other hand, the holder of the mortgage may institute foreclosure proceedings and have a receiver appointed who can put you out. A tenant who deals with a landlord whose title is subject to the mortgage is running the mortgage risk.

VALIDITY OF GIFT.

Galesburg, Ill., Jan. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. "A" deeded to "B" and delivered deed on Feb. 26, 1926, to a certain piece of property. "A" reserved income for life and stated he would pay all taxes. Now, at "A's" death, will property be exempt from estate taxes? [In this case "B" is the son of "A".]

2. Would this deed constitute a special power?

3. How would this be interpreted by Illinois law?

P. L. C.

1. Where the grantor lives more than two years after the gift, the gift is presumed not to have been made in contemplation of death, and therefore would be exempt from the inheritance tax, but this presumption would not be conclusive and might be rebutted by circumstances showing that the gift was actually made in contemplation of death.

2. No.

3. See 1.

ORAL AND WRITTEN CONTRACTS.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Are all debts void after seven years?

2. Would this pertain to a chattel mortgage, where the furniture was signed over for security?

3. Can a furniture loan company take furniture at any time without a court order? That is, when payments are past due?

H. E.

1. The limitation period is five years on oral agreements and ten on written contracts.

2. As to third parties, the recording operates as notice for three years with privilege of one year's renewal, but between original parties the period is ten years.

3. In general, court proceedings are necessary for foreclosure on household furniture, unless it was executed in connection with the purchase of the furniture.

INTRODUCTION TO LIFE

A SCHOOL TURNS TOUGH KIDS INTO HAPPY CITIZENS

Kindly Guidance Secret of Chicago Parental.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

Dick Jones is a little boy who never went to school if he could hitch a train. He never went home if he could sleep in a baggage car. He never hung around with the fellows if he could find a brakeman. Dick was a railroad man. He was also a truant.

Now he is at Chicago Parental school, 3600 Foster avenue, where he is happier than he has ever been. Within a day after he was sent there by the Juvenile court, they all knew why he had been a problem child. Now he reads and plays in a band and tacks new soles on old shoes. When he is through with his work he designs trains. They're long and sleek and streamlined and practical enough to interest the president of one of the biggest railways in the middle west.

Just a Tough Little Guy.

Dick is just one of the tough little guys who have become normal, eager children under the kindly guidance of the Parental school staf. More than 18,000 boys and girls, many of them borderline criminals, have been sheltered there since the school's inception thirty-seven years ago. More than 75 per cent of them, according to the school's records, have overcome their delinquency. Failures, in most instances, have been blamed on the miserable homes to which the children returned after their three to six month period of adjustment at the school.

The children at Parental are the sharp eyed little kids you see on street corners late at night; the runaways who get caught snitching a bar of candy or an apple. They are the children of broken, poor homes, of overindulgent homes, or neglected homes. Parental school, for them, is the last stop this side of the law.

Understanding Basis of Cure.

Understanding, according to William J. Page, superintendent of the school, is the first arm of socialization practiced on Parental newcomers. They are psychoanalyzed and given mental tests. Their interests and abilities are studied. Their health is examined. Many of them, Supt. Page says, are greatly retarded in school. The intelligence quotient of the group hovers at 86, a low average. Most of them are undernourished. Many need glasses, dental attention, and operations.

Once they are understood, Mr. Page finds, half the problem is solved. They are assigned to cottages where thirty pupils live as a family unit with a man and his wife as heads of their household. They are given work, plenty of food, supervised play and athletics. They are furnished simple materials for hobbies. They are encouraged in their school work, where remedial methods are used. They work as individuals. No child knows how the other is graded in his studies.

Few Disciplinary Problems.

There are few disciplinary problems, instructors say. No corporal punishment is allowed. A privilege may be withheld if a child is recalcitrant. A merit system and their own student government take care of repeaters.

Although girls were admitted to the school in 1917, there is no co-education. The enrollment averages 200 boys and 20 girls. The girls attend their own studio-school room and live in their own cottage.

The school is operated as a part of the public school system. Clothing, and it is often needed badly, is donated through coöperating parent-teacher organizations and social agencies.

U.S. AND INDUSTRY AGREE ON JOBS—MORE ARE NEEDED

But Debate on Spending Rocks Legion Meet.

A business man, speaking for industry, and one of the administration's ranking WPA executives, speaking for the federal government, agreed yesterday that the only way to cure the relief problem is to create private employment. They disagreed sharply, however, as to whether President Roosevelt's spending policy was promoting this end.

The speakers were James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, and Howard O. Hunter, assistant administrator of the Works Progress administration. Both spoke before the closing session of the Illinois American Legion's conference on unemployment, in the Morrison hotel.

Denies Spending Makes Jobs.

Donnelly opposed spending. He said that despite the tremendous public debt incurred since 1931, 11,000,000 persons remained out of work and the durable goods industries are running more than 8 billion dollars a year below the 1919-'29 average.

"The indiscriminate spending of public funds, generally designated as 'pump priming,' is a futile and costly means of insuring business recovery and reducing unemployment. Our experience during recent years definitly demonstrates that lasting increases in the number of jobs in private enterprise cannot be accomplished by legislative panaceas.

"Unsound legislation has been one of the primary causes of business paralysis, with accompanying unemployment. If our federal government continues to advocate a policy contemplating increased dependence on the government, further intrusion by government into private business and additional restrictions and burdens on productive enterprise, the army of unemployed shall increase in size and become a permanent institution."

U. S. Must If Industry Doesn't.

Hunter favored spending.

"Some people have the cockeyed notion that if we stop providing WPA jobs, somehow or other that will create private employment for the unemployed. They tell us that if the government stops spending money, business will take care of unemployment.

"The government will stop spending money as soon as it safely can. The government will put its WPA workers into private jobs just as fast as the private jobs are created. It is going to be a long and hard task to create private employment. It can be done by earnest coöperation between business, government, and the public.

"It is to private industry that we look for the ultimate absorption, not only of the millions of workers on WPA projects, but of the larger number of millions of unemployed not on WPA. Government spending has increased as private spending has decreased. It will decrease as private spending increases."

BRING IN 50 SEIZED SLOT MACHINES FOR DESTRUCTION

Fifty slot machines seized in recent raids on taverns and filling stations in Cook county outside Chicago were brought to the County building yesterday to be stored pending their destruction at the Bridewell. Twenty-one were picked up by state highway police and the others by county highway police under Chief Lester J. Laird. Their confiscation followed the threat of acting Gov. John Stelle and Attorney General John Cassidy to throw the state's police power into the drive against the machines. Chief Laird said he welcomed the coöperation of the state highway police.

Plan for Industrial Care Admits Phone Employes

The Hospital Service corporation, which insures group subscribers of twenty-one days' hospitalization when needed at a cost of $9.60 a year, said the Bell group was the largest yet admitted to the plan.

'SILENT CHARLIE' KEEPS A SECRET, BUT DEATH BLABS

Find Hoarded Wealth of Oak Park Recluse.

For thirty-five years his gaunt figure stalked through the streets of Oak Park. "Silent Charlie" they called this strange man who rarely spoke to any one, who always wanted to be by himself.

It was in the summer of 1904, people said, that Charlie first came to Oak Park. He was about 50 years old then. His carriage was erect and his step firm.

Charlie found a job as a handy man for Attorney and Mrs. A. J. Redmond. In their barn he cleared a small space for his own, coming out of his retreat to dress up the lawn in the summer or to clean the snow from the walks in the winter.

Daily Walk Becomes Tradition.

Each day he took a walk through the streets. In the winter boys would yell, "Here's Silent Charlie!," and pelt him with snowballs. But Charlie would say nothing.

As the years passed, Charlie worked for other families, but was no more friendly than before. He never seemed to care for money. When there was an extra sidewalk that needed cleaning or a shutter to be repaired, old Charlie was always there to do it. But when he was offered a dollar or two he would shake his head and mutter in guttural tones, "Nah, twenty-five cents iss enough."

By the time the little boys who once threw snowballs had become lawyers, business men, or doctors, "Silent Charlie" and his daily walks were part of the suburb tradition. Then, last week, Charlie failed to show up.

Effects Give Suburb Surprise.

Dr. Irvin F. Hummon, 417 Kenilworth avenue, for whom Charlie had worked recently, went to the barn behind his home. There he found old Charlie on a cot, dead. There were a few personal belongings—some clothing, some furniture, a pipe—and a real surprise in the form of a bankbook in the name of Charles Trieloff—for that was "Silent Charlie's" full name. It showed he had deposited nearly $9,000 in the Oak Park Trust and Savings bank during the years he lived like a penniless recluse.

They buried "Silent Charlie" in the Forest Home cemetery. Only a dozen persons were there, but they represented the suburb's first families. Charlie's pallbearers were Dr. Hummon, County Commissioner H. Wallace Caldwell, Guy Clark, business executive, and Eben Roberts, architect.

Lemons in Snow Time

Elkhart, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Ponderosa lemons are ripening on a tree owned by A. G. Zelle, Elkhart undertaker, while a record snowfall lies on the ground, and northern Indiana is experiencing a cold snap. There are nine lemons on the small tree. Mr. Zelle attributes the high production to the fact that he keeps the tree well watered and places a tablespoonful of commercial fertilizer near its roots every month. The tree, which is twelve years old, blooms almost continuously. Mr. Zelle has the plant in his office now, but keeps it in his garden in summer.

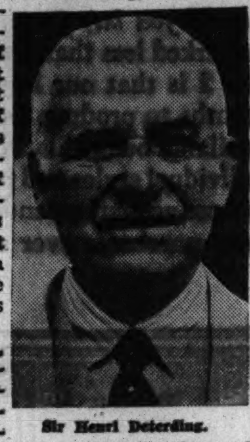
HENRI DETERDING, 72, DUTCH OIL MAGNATE, DIES

Succumbs to Heart Attack at Swiss Villa.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Sir Henri Deterding, who rose from poverty to become one of the richest and most powerful of the world's industrialists, died of a heart attack this afternoon at his villa here. He was 72 years old.



Sir Henri Deterding.

Sir Henri, the possessor of a personal fortune estimated at between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000, retired in 1937 from the director generalship of the monster Royal Dutch Petroleum company.

He was known as the "Rockefeller of Europe" and was the guiding genius in the development of his farflung enterprise, which at the time of his retirement embraced a group of 200 companies with 40,000 employés. He was knighted for his war services in 1921.

Frequent Visitor at St. Moritz.

Sir Henri, thrice married, is survived by two sons and one daughter by his first marriage, and two daughters by the second. His first wife died, a divorce dissolved his second marriage, and he was married in 1936 to his 38 year old secretary.

His sons maintain residences in England and the Netherlands. Two of his daughters are in schools at Dresden, Germany, and one was with him here.

To East Indies When 22.

Sir Henri was born in Amsterdam on April 19, 1866. His father, a sea captain, died when his son was 6. His widowed mother managed to educate her children, and when he was 16 he graduated from a higher citizens' school. He became a bank clerk. Six years later his mother prompted him to go to the East Indies as a clerk for the Netherlands Trading society. He won a promotion to representative at Penang, Straits Settlement. This, he later said, was the turning point in his career. He left the company a year later to enter the tiny Royal Dutch Petroleum company as an accountant. In ten years he was running the business, which he built into a $1,200,000,000 concern.

T. P. Lee, Texas Oil Man and G.O.P. Chairman, Dies

Houston, Tex., Feb. 4.—(AP)—T. P. Lee, 67 years old, Houston oil man and capitalist, died of heart disease tonight. He was born in Petroleum, W. Va., on March 19, 1871, and began work in the oil fields of West Virginia at 16. In 1903 he came to Texas from Ohio to be general superintendent of production for the Texas company. Later he became president of the Farmers' Petroleum company. In 1916 he and his associates organized the American Republics corporation, which he served as vice president. Lee had been Republican state chairman since 1933. In 1924 he was nominated for governor, but declined to run.

OFFER GLORIA'S NEW "MOTHER" 12 MORE BABIES

All day long the telephone at 5132 Deming place rang and rang. Soon the answers of Mrs. Joseph T. Faust, wife of a policeman at the Warren avenue station, came mechanically, like this:

Or, like this:

"No, no, no! I cannot get a baby for you."

Twelve times she gave the first answer. Five times she gave the second. In between she cared for her own adopted son, John, 3½ years old, and for Gloria, the 3 month old daughter of Mrs. Irene Marino, and gave counsel to Mrs. Marino, who abandoned the baby Tuesday, as to where to look for work. Whether she finds work or not, she told Mrs. Marino, she and Gloria now have a home with the Fausts.

Not until nightfall did she realize an error in her day.

"O," she sighed, "why didn't I take down the names and addresses of those women? Then I could have gotten them together, the ones who wanted to give their babies away and the ones who wanted babies."

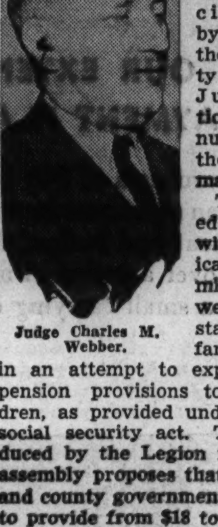
ILLINOIS JUDGES ASK LAWS TO AID NEEDY CHILDREN

Proposed state legislation to give dependent children social security benefits should also include delinquent children, it was decided yesterday by members of the Illinois County and Probate Judges' association at their annual meeting in the Hotel Sherman.



Judge Charles M. Webber.

The group voted to coöperate with the American Legion committee on child welfare and the state public welfare department in an attempt to expand mothers' pension provisions to include children, as provided under the federal social security act. The bill introduced by the Legion in the general assembly proposes that federal, state, and county governments match funds to provide from $18 to $25 for dependent children cared for by relatives.

"Children who have no relatives with suitable homes should also be provided for by the law," said Judge Charles M. Webber of Urbana, new president of the association.

ONLY THE KNEES REFUSE TO KNEEL TO VICTORIANS

Frills Back, but Women's Skirts Stay Short.

Women's skirts will remain near their knees this spring. Were it not for this, their reversion to the fashions of the Victorians would be complete. The flounces, frills, flower colors, and petticoats of the Victorian era all are back; only the skirt length is modern.

Twenty thousand buyers of women's apparel are expected to throng into Chicago's wholesale market this week for the 1939 spring apparel market. Most of the apparel displayed is the work of Chicago designers.

Highlights of the coming season will be shown at the Stevens hotel tomorrow and Thursday nights in the annual spring fashion show of the Style Creators of Chicago. In these, revivals of the Victorian and Edwardian eras will prevail.

Wasp Waists Are Back.

Evening dresses will have heart shaped decolletages and wasp waists. Necklines will be edged with ruching, ruffling, and ribbon. Skirts will be full, plaited, or multi-gored.

Hemlines are wide and rippling, and sleeves are becoming wider at the bottom. The jackets of 1890, too, are shown in abundance; long fitted reefers, softened by many tucks; square jackets with swagger backs and basque jackets.

The purple and violet hues of grandmother's day also are in with a vengeance, as are her combinations of rose and blue, rust and chartreuse.

Costume Suits Popular.

Many costume suits are being shown. In these, plaid, checked or striped jackets or casual coats are worn over monotone dresses, simply tailored. The classic tailored dress, the style creators say, is still the outstanding spring and summer dress.

Skirts, however, are very short. For the jitterbug young thing, they are knee length. For her supposedly more sedate senior, they are a bare inch longer.

SOMETHING NEW: A VICTIM SEEKS OUT A CON MAN

Usually a confidence man seeks out the sucker. Watson Tayman, 23 years old, an unemployed automobile jocky, reversed the procedure. From friends in a parking lot at Clark street and Jackson boulevard, where he formerly worked, Tayman heard that a man had come in looking for some one to drive a truck to Grand Rapids.

Tayman approached the stranger. They went to the stranger's hotel room. There Tayman parted with $5.60, as a bond for the truck driving job offered him. His benefactor appeared to Tayman to be a man who know the trucking business.

Yesterday Tayman told his story to the police. When he went to the loading platform for the truck, Tayman said, he found the stranger was unknown.

Tries 2d Time in 3 Months to End His Life; Rescued

For the second time in three months Clarence Cattaneo, 31 years old, a taxicab driver, tried to end his life yesterday. He took an overdose of sleeping tablets in his home at 6207 South Kilbourn avenue. Chicago Lawn police took Cattaneo to the Holy Cross hospital where physicians said he would recover. On Nov. 11 Cattaneo was revived after he piped exhaust fumes into his automobile. His wife, Evelyn, told police he has been despondent over finances.

STEALS DOCTOR'S MICROSCOPE.

The burglar who visited the office of Dr. Seth E. Brown, 1604 Chicago avenue, Evanston, early yesterday took a $275 microscope. Then he carefully locked the door when he left—to keep other burglars out.

Fashion's Edicts for Spring Are Modeled

These spring fashions and numerous others will be exhibited by the Style Creators of Chicago at previews tomorrow and Thursday evenings in the Stevens hotel. With the exception of the fact that skirts are approximately knee length most of the new modes are suggestive of the Victorian era.

This brown and beige tweed suit is set off by brown velvet banding on the pocket flaps, down the jacket front, and on the buttons. The maize felt swagger hat has brown accents.

Polka dots are used in band design on the black ribboned fabric of this jacket and dress costume. The jacket, ending at the hip bone, is set off with snowy pique revers and cuffs. Black and white dots feature the veil of the rough straw sailor.

MOODY INSTITUTE DEDICATES NEW OFFICE BUILDING

Dr. Will H. Houghton, president of Moody Bible institute, officiated yesterday at dedication ceremonies of the new twelve story administration building, La Salle street and Chicago avenue. Dr. Houghton paid tribute to Dwight L. Moody, founder of the institute, whose 102d birthday will be observed today at Moody Memorial church, North avenue and Clark street.

"This structure," said Dr. Houghton, "and the ideals behind it will carry on the spirit of the institute's founder. Since those days in the historic '70s when Moody began his work in Chicago with the construction of the old auditorium, Moody Bible institute has carried his mission of Christian service. The institute has taught more than 40,000 Sunday school teachers."

Four thousand persons saw Thomas S. Smith, vice president of the institute, accept the dedicatory keys to the new structure. Mr. Smith acted in place of Henry P. Crowell, president, who is in Atlanta, Ga.

PARKS ENJOYED BY 141 MILLIONS SINCE MERGER

Since 1935, when Chicago parks were consolidated, they have recorded an attendance of 141,084,000, George T. Donoghue, general superintendent, reported yesterday. This figure does not include attendance at bathing beaches, band concerts, lake front aquatic events, outdoor festivals, or park golf courses.

During 1935, the first year of consolidation, the attendance was 32,120,000. In 1936 it was 33,450,000; in 1937, 35,216,000, and last year, 40,298,000.

Donoghue said the most popular activities included in the attendance figures were children's playground groups, softball, indoor and outdoor gymnastics, baseball, and children's gameroom groups.

Donoghue reported that during the four year period the park district planted 118,148 trees and 822,991 shrubs, and that 714,349 pounds of grass seed were sown.

BEG YOUR PARDON

An item on Jan. 28 from Chenoa, Ill., told of the arrest of four men who were described as parolees from federal penal institutions. James V. Bennett, director of the bureau of prisons in the department of justice at Washington, D. C., said three of the suspects, Richard Weed, William P. Henry, and Harry A. Waxler, were not parolees, but are in custody under warrants issued for violation of conditional release. Mr. Bennett said the fourth suspect, Charles Weed, was not listed in his records.

Chinese Is Turned Over to U. S. for Deportation

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday dismissed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus seeking the release of Moy Chung Am, 42 years old, a Chinese, from the county jail. Am was ordered turned over to the labor department for deportation.

SOUTH SIDE GOLDEN GLOVES TRIALS OPEN TUESDAY

WEST SECTION FIGHTERS WILL PICK CHAMPIONS

Hold Finals in Six Other Centers.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Chicago's west side will pick its champions and the south side will begin its eliminations during the coming week of Golden Gloves competition. The northwest side joins in the following week and the north takes up the fight on Feb. 20. Meanwhile 47 other centers scattered through 16 states will be preparing their best boxers to join Chicago's survivors in the Tournament of Champions in the Stadium Feb. 27, 28, and March 1. Six out of town centers will name their champions this week.

The west side eliminations reached their halfway point during last Wednesday and Thursday's fighting in the Madison Athletic club. The survivors will resume action Wednesday and conclude on Thursday. The champions in each division will then be eligible for the bouts in the Stadium.

South Side Bouts Open Tuesday.

South siders will get their first view of their boxers Tuesday in White City. Bouts will continue Wednesday and Thursday. Three more nights of fighting during the following week will determine the makeup of the south side's team.

Some idea of the scope of the tournament is given by a glance at the territory from which boxers are drawn by each of the 47 newspapers coöperating with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in sponsoring Golden Gloves. For instance, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's tournament is subdivided into fifteen elimination meets held throughout Texas. Boys from Amarillo, Dallas, Galveston, Houston, Austin, and other cities come to Fort Worth to compete in the finals.

The Lexington Herald-Leader reports that its tournament will be the largest boxing event ever presented in Kentucky. Forty-five cities and towns throughout the state will be represented in the bouts.

Preliminaries in 12 Cities.

The Grand Rapids Press will hold preliminary tournaments in twelve other Michigan cities before putting on its finals. Ann Arbor, Battle Creek, Jackson, Flint, and Kalamazoo are among those which will send teams to Grand Rapids.

Similar situations prevail throughout Golden Gloves territory, each of the 47 centers having a wealth of material from which to draw. Every boy who comes to the Tournament of Champions, therefore, has been thoroughly tested, and any one who survives the rigorous competition in the Stadium deserves a place among the greatest amateur boxers in the world.

They Can Give and Take.

Time and again, in intercity and international competition, Chicago's Golden Gloves winners have proved that they can give and take punch for punch with the hardest hitters of New York and Europe.

The novices who have been fighting on the west side during the last week have a long way to go before they reach championship class, but their efforts seldom fail to rouse the spectators to enthusiasm. Some of the most unskilful boxers put on some of the most spectacular fights. Many a pair will get into the ring without a defensive idea between them. Each will be intent on putting over a knockout punch. The results are often surprising and amusing to the crowd.

Best Fights Sometimes Early.

The best novice fights often occur in the early stages of the tournament. Among the boys who step into White City's ring Tuesday night there will be many who have never performed before. Their actions will be all the more interesting because they will be entirely unpredictable.

There will be plenty of opportunity later on in the tournament to enjoy the precise work of the experts.

Michigan Ring Chief Jeers at Galento Kayo

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Frank MacDonell, chairman of the Michigan athletic board of control, described as "silly" tonight the National Boxing association's recent ranking of Tony Galento as No. 1 contender for Joe Louis' heavyweight title and imposed restrictions on all future bouts of Galento here.

At the same time he barred from further competition in the state Natie Brown, veteran Washington, D. C., boxer, who dropped to the canvas ten times before being counted out in the fourth round of a fight with the 234 pound Orange, N. J., tavern keeper here last night.

"It was disgusting," said MacDonell. "Brown is all washed up and I don't believe that Galento can lick me."

The boxing commissioner weighs 128 pounds. He explained Galento's status this way:

"Galento will have to win a fight from an outstanding fighter in some other state before I shall allow him to appear in Michigan again, and then it will be only against a top notch opponent."

Effective Only in Michigan.

MacDonell's suspension of Brown is effective only in Michigan because the athletic board was suspended by the N. B. A. last Sept. 12 for refusing to recognize bans the Illinois boxing commission slapped on Jimmy Adamick, Midland, Mich., heavyweight; Jack Trammell, Youngstown, O., fighter; Promoter Jack Kearns, Thomas Walsh, and James Brady, all of whom were associated in the management of Adamick, and James Buchanan, Trammell's manager. The men were suspended after Adamick knocked out Trammell in Chicago last June 8, the Illinois commission terming the affair "unsatisfactory."

Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker, was the promoter of last night's contest. Walsh is matchmaker and aide of Kearns in his Detroit fistic ventures, although MacDonell ordered him barred from fighters' dressing rooms some time ago.

Ask Probe of Adamick.

Until he met Roscoe Toles, Detroit Negro, here last fall, Adamick was the No. 1 drawing card for Kearns. Victim of a second round knockout, Adamick suffered injuries from which he has not yet recovered.

Two members of the Michigan legislature this week demanded an investigation of Adamick's boxing career to determine whether "he had been sacrificed by gamblers." Their resolution contended that unscrupulous persons "fixed" fights in order to build a reputation for Adamick, then allowed him to go into the ring while physically unfit for the bout with Toles.

JOE JACOBS IS RILED

Orange, N. J., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Tony Galento came back to his bar today in a bit of a fog as to why any one should find fault with his fourth round knockout of Natie Brown in Detroit last night. He let his manager, Joe Jacobs, reply to the blast of Frank MacDonell, chairman of the Michigan athletic board of control.

"Regardless of what MacDonell says, he can't knock Galento out of his No. 1 rating," said Jacobs, "because Galento knocks out every one who gets in the ring with him. And as for boxing in Michigan, I wouldn't let Galento fight there again as long as MacDonell is commissioner."

"After the fight MacDonell said everything was O. K., and he ordered the payoff," Jacobs said. "Now he comes up with this statement that Galento can't fight. Galento knocked out Brown in four rounds. Brown went ten rounds with Joe Louis in the same ring. What does he want?"

Barney Riley, One Time Chicago Ski Star, Dies

Grand Rapids, Minn., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Barney Riley, 47, Coleraine, Minn., ski rider who won championships as a representative of the Itasca Ski club, Coleraine, and the Norge Ski club of Chicago, died this morning while backing his car out of a garage. Riley was born in Ishpeming, Mich., and went to Coleraine thirty-three years ago. Seventeen years ago he went to Chicago and remained there twelve years, returning to Coleraine five years ago.

Al Butherus (No. 17), Northwestern forward, leaps to spoil a shot for Iowa's Charles Plett (No. 5) in the first half of last night's game in Patten gymnasium. A little less stretch by Butherus and the teams might have had to play overtime. Northwestern won, 27 to 25, achieving its second Big Ten victory. Other players are: No. 6, Ben Stephens; No. 25, Howard Irvine, and No. 16, Erwin Prasse, all of Iowa.

She is Mrs. Mattie Sandifer Dean, married to 65 year old Albert M. Dean, the boys' father, in Rockwell, Tex., Jan. 21. They met, the couple said, on Jan. 20.

The mother of the Dean boys died in 1919.

"I promised to do the cooking and the housework," said the new Mrs. Dean, "and to be pleasant. I am a good cook. He promised to make a good living and to buy me a car. But I haven't gotten the car yet."

CHARGE FLORIDA ATHLETES' WPA CHECKS GET LOST

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 4. — [U. P.] — Huber Earle, assistant state Works Progress administrator, said today he had ordered an investigation of charges that University of Florida football players were on the WPA pay roll—but did not receive checks—after they left summer jobs and returned to school.

The charges were made by Jimmy Mulcahy, Florida reserve back last season, who added that he and several other members of the football squad had been fired from the university pay roll.

Mulcahy quoted Tom Walker, regular end, as saying he had been interviewed by federal agents who "wanted to know why our names were still on the relief pay rolls and while we hadn't been getting the money since Sept. 1, somebody else had."

The university publicity department at Gainesville announced that four players had "resigned from school." They were listed as Frank Koscis, alternate captain last year, and Pete Kozlosky, Paul Eller and Vincent Dahar, sophomore players. The reason for their resignation was not given.

WES FERRELL AND P. WANER TO MEET IN GOLF FINAL

Belleair, Fla., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Wesley Ferrell of the New York Yankees, qualified today to meet in tomorrow's thirty-six hole final of the annual baseball players' golf tournament. Waner, the defending champion, eliminated Paul Derringer, Cincinnati pitcher, 3 and 2, while Ferrell, who won the event in 1937, beat Lloyd Brown, the veteran who now pitches for St. Paul of the American association, 5 and 4.

Eleven Badger Football Men Are Ineligible

Madison, Wis., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Four members of the University of Wisconsin football squad, all sophomores, will be dropped from the university for scholastic deficiencies, it was announced today.

They are James Flanagan of Oconomowoc, an end; Naptiste Mazza of Houston, Pa., and Alex Polaski of Cannonsburg, Pa., guards, and Henry Scheneman of Chicago, a tackle.

Seven Freshmen Fail.

Seven freshmen players also failed to meet the conditions of their probationary status and are lost for the 1939 season. They are Gerald Femrite of Madison, a guard; Gilbert Lindloff of Beaver Dam, a full back; Donald Sequin of Eau Claire, an end; Lloyd Wasserback of Baileys Harbor, guard; Edward Budreck of Chicago, a full back; Bernard Bullis of Milwaukee, a half back, and John Roberts of Des Moines, Ia., a guard.

George Paskvan of La Grange, Ill., sophomore understudy to Full Back Howie Weiss, winner of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's most valuable player trophy, has a condition to write off. Paskvan also is a shot putter on the track team.

Basketball Regular Lost.

Coach Harold [Bud] Foster lost Johnny Rundell, regular guard on the basketball team, who also has a condition to write off. Rundell and Paskvan will write these examinations Feb. 18. Paul Murphy of Madison, reserve forward on the basketball team, was dropped for failure to make the required number of grade points.

The baseball, boxing, and wrestling squads came through their semester examinations without casualties, but the swimming team lost one letterman, George Sutherland.

2 SKIERS SUFFER LEG FRACTURES IN EASTERN MEET

Waterbury, Vt., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Tony Matt, one of Austria's foremost skiers, making his first appearance in an American meet, today won the United States eastern downhill championship on Mount Mansfield, as six of the 78 entrants broke the course record of 2 minutes 34 seconds.

Matt's time of 2:20 2-5 for the one and a quarter mile run was two and three-fifths seconds faster than the time turned in by Ed Wells of Dartmouth, who was second. Dick Durrance, former Dartmouth star, was third in 2:29 2-5.

Ted Hunter of the Dartmouth Outing club and Serge Gagarin of Yale, both suffered broken legs. Hunter ran into a tree near the start of the race and Gagarin suffered his mishap near the finish line.

Death of Pyle Finds Him All Square Again

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Business associates said today that C. C. [Cash and Carry] Pyle, 56 years old, who made and lost fortunes as one of the nation's most colorful sports promoters, was "all square with his creditors" when he died yesterday.

As arrangements were completed for funeral services and cremation tomorrow afternoon, the exploits of the originator of America's first—and last—coast to coast "Bunion Derbies" were recounted.

Beset with Lawsuits.

Checking back into the career of the former Illinois theater man, who introduced Harold [Red] Grange, tennis stars Suzanne Lenglen, Vincent Richards, and other amateur celebrities into professional athletics, it appeared at one time that Pyle was as beset with lawsuits as he was with original promotional ideas.

At one time during the long drawn out procedure, Pyle declared he was "broke," but would try to make adjustments when he got on his feet. His debts then were estimated at $50,000.

Today associates of his last enterprise—he was president of the successful Radio Transcription Corporation of America—declared that as far as they knew "Pyle had just about paid off everything and was all square with the world."

Has Little Interest in Sports.

Pyle had lived here quietly for the last eight years after the organization of the transcription firm. In failing health, he took little interest in sports affairs.

The promoter's widow, the former Elvia Allman, radio comedienne, whom he married in 1937 after Mrs. Effie Pyle, the first wife, won a divorce the year before, was with Pyle when he died suddenly.

Cunningham 4:13 Victor in Millrose Mile

New York, Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—Glenn Cunningham, perpetual motion man of the track, won the classic Wanamaker mile before 16,000 fans for the sixth time tonight in the thirty-second annual Millrose games, but the veteran Kansan's performance was one of his slowest in recent years on the Madison Square Garden boards.

Tireless Glenn fought off a stern challenge by Charles [Chuck] Fenske, Wisconsin's Big Ten champion, on the home stretch and finished his run in 4:13 compared to the world record of 4:04.4 he set last year at Dartmouth. Blaine Rideout of North Texas State Teachers' college was third, followed by Archie San Romani of Kansas.

Wayne Rideout, Blaine's twin brother, was fifth; John Munski, Missouri's Big Six champion, sixth, and Josef Mostert, Belgian, was last.

Cunningham's victory was overshadowed, however, by an amazing performance by Roy Staley of the Southern California A. A., who broke the 60 yard hurdle mark in a qualifying heat and then equaled the new record in both the semi-finals and finals. Staley lowered the record to 7.3 seconds compared to the old mark of 7.4 seconds set jointly last year by Allan Tolmich, Wayne university, and Forest [Spec] Towns, Georgia.

Larry O'Connor of Toronto was second to the record breaking Staley, followed by Elmer Gedeon of Michigan and Tolmich of Wayne university, who missed his stride going over one of the barriers. Staley took the lead going over the first barrier and won easily.

John Borican, Elberton, N. J., colored speedster, joined Staley as a world record breaker by running the two-thirds mile in 2:39, breaking the record of 2:43.6 set in 1923 by James J. Connolly of Georgetown university. Mel Trutt of Indiana finished second and Howard Borck of Manhattan was third. Gene Venzke, the favorite, was last, suffering from a bad leg.

Cunningham's time was his second slowest in the Wanamaker mile, but his victory enabled him to retire his third big silver trophy from competition. Cunningham won over Fenske by a bare four feet. Chuck beat out Blaine Rideout by five yards and after that the boys were strung out.

Beetham's Spill Costs Race.

Battling around the last turn, Slater took command when Defending Champion Charlie Beetham of New York, former Ohio State star, misjudged the bend and fell to the floor while he was leading by a yard. Slater jumped over him and won by four yards over Olympic 800 Meter Champion Johnny Woodruff of the University of Pittsburgh.

Slater's time was 1:54.7, well over the world record of 1:51.4 set by Lloyd Hahn in 1928. The Fordham star did, however, run the race faster than last year, when Beetham won in 1:55.8.

Sanford Goldberg of New York was third, followed by Arthur Bodeau of Purdue university. Beetham picked himself up and managed to finish fifth.

"Millrose 600" to Wallace.

Wesley Wallace of Fordham university turned in a mild upset when he won the classic "Millrose 600" yard run with a powerful drive down the home stretch. Wallace pulled up into third, hitting the first turn of the last lap and took second place going down the back stretch. William Fritz, Olympic star from Kingston, Ont., was on top all the way until they reached the home stretch. Then Wallace pulled up even and beat Fritz by two feet.

Jimmy Herbert, N. Y. U.'s Negro star, who had won the last two Millrose 600s, finished third, seven yards behind Fritz. Harold Cagle of Oklahoma Baptist university, the favorite, was fourth and last.

Wallace was clocked in 1:12.3, compared to the world record of 1:11.1 set by Herbert last year in the Knights of Columbus games.

Equals 60 Yard Record.

Herb Thompson of New York equaled the accepted world record of 6.1 seconds as he won the 60 yard dash finals in a blanket finish with Norwood Ewell of Penn State, who was second. Ben Johnson, who was shut out in the semi-finals, and Perrin Walker, Oglethorpe university, created the mark last year. Johnson set a 6 second record in the Millrose games last year, but it has not yet been accepted. Kenneth Clapp of Brown university was third in the finals, and Eulace Peacock of Elberon, N. J., was last.

An upset was recorded in the pole vault when Dick Ganslen, Columbia's national indoor champion, beat out the two hot men from the Pacific coast, Earle Meadows of the Southern California A. A., Olympic champion and co-holder of the outdoor record, and Cornelius Warmerdam of the San Francisco Olympic club, national outdoor champ.

BUCKEYES WIN IN OVERTIME; N. U. TRIUMPHS

Wildcats Turn Back Iowa, 27-25.

Minneapolis, Min., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Ohio State's basketball team battled its way to first place in the Western conference race tonight with a thrilling overtime victory over Minnesota. The score was 31 to 30, the deciding point coming on Dick Baker's free throw after more than three minutes of overtime action. The score at the end of the regular playing time was 30 to 30.

A record crowd of 15,700, the second gathering of over 15,000 to see a basketball game in Minneapolis this season, jammed the Gopher fieldhouse for the contest.

The defeat dropped Minnesota to third place with a record of five games won and two lost. The Buckeyes have won five games and lost one. It was the first defeat for the Gophers on their home floor in twelve games.

Schick Leads Ohio Offense.

Baker wasn't the only Buckeye hero. Johnny Schick, 6 foot 4 inch center, sank six baskets and Capt. Jim Hull, leading conference scorer, three baskets and a free throw to provide the most substantial portions of the victorious Ohio total.

Schick, after a short rest on the bench in the second half, reëntered the game to score three consecutive baskets that put the Buckeyes ahead, 30 to 27, after they had been trailing, 25 to 24. Schick soon went out on fouls, but the Gopher cause then was beyond salvage.

The two guards—Johnny Dick and Paul Maki—played most brilliantly for the Gophers. It was Dick's guarding that prevented Hull from scoring more points and Maki led his team in scoring with nine points.

Bitterly Fought Game.

The game was bitterly fought, with neither team having a very great advantage at any time. The Gophers held a 5 to 4 lead early in the game, but Ohio was ahead, 13 to 12, at the half. Minnesota tied the score with one minute and 24 seconds to play, Gordon Addington sinking a free throw.

N. U., 27; IOWA, 25

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern climaxed an uphill fight last night in Patten gymnasium by erasing Iowa's seven point lead in the final six minutes and continuing on to defat the Hawkeyes, 27 to 25. Four thousand watched the battle, which made up in bitterness what it lacked in technical perfection.

Northwestern trailed after scoring the first point on Bob Koble's free throw, being behind 12 to 4 midway in the first half and 24 to 17 just before Bob Shepard, substituting for Al Butherus, touched off the victorious assault.

Iowa Leads at Half.

Iowa led, 15 to 13, at the intermission and then, after the Wildcats had tied the score at 17 to 17, drew ahead to what seemed an insurmountable advantage. In this time, however, the Hawkeyes suddenly developed a keen dislike for Bob Voigts, sturdy Northwestern guard, and their play seemingly was directed more at bouncing Voigts around than at hitting the basket.

Each team fouled sixteen times, but Iowa took honors in this department since Erwin Prasse who, with Capt. Ben Stephens and Charley Plett, accumulated four personals, drew a technical foul from Umpire Glen Adams when he bounced the ball belligerently at the official.

Ad Vance, whose offensive play was nil, also was excused on four personals, but Voigts, with three personals in the first half, stayed all the way.

Voigts Scores from Side.

It was Voigts who scored from the side after Shepard's goal, and then after Les Harman's followup basket had brought Northwestern within a point of the Hawkeyes, Voigts tied the score at 24 to 24 on Prasse's fourth personal foul.

Less than three minutes remained to play. Koble sent the Wildcats ahead, 26 to 24, on a pivot shot and Shepard's conversion of Howard

IT'S SHARPSHOOTERS' NIGHT WHEN LOYOLA AND DE PAUL MEET

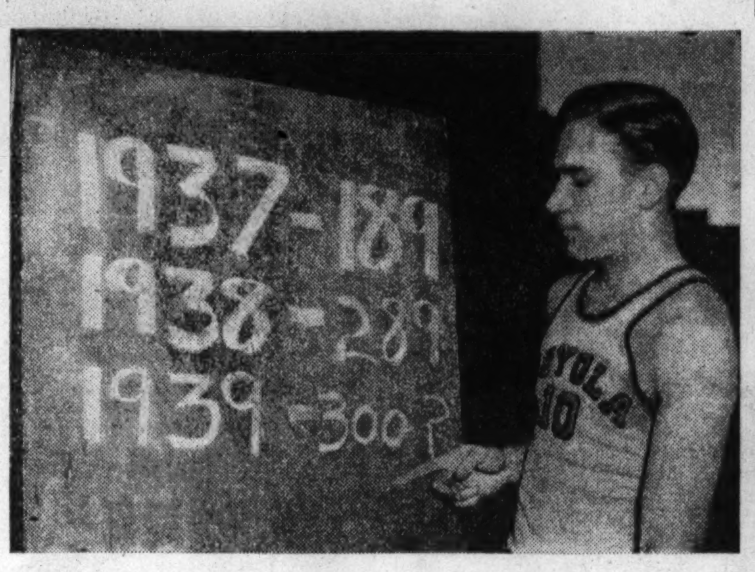
Big Mike Novak, center, who measures 6 feet 9 inches and weighs 220 pounds is regarded as the best Loyola player at this post since Charles (Feed) Murphy, star of 1930. He is second in the Loyola scoring column to Kautz.



Kautz, Loyola guard, hopes to score 300 points this season. His scoring records for the last two years are shown on the blackboard. He made 18 points against De Paul in 1937 and 20 in 1938.

Misses Berg and Kirby to Meet in Final

Coral Gables, Fla., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Playing at the peak of her game, Patty Berg of Minneapolis today beat Laddie Irwin of Glen Ridge, N. J., for her fourth straight victory in the Miami Biltmore golf tournament. She meets Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta in the 36 hole final tomorrow.

The freckle faced national champion had a nine hole card of 36, one over men's par and four under women's, as she trounced the 18 year old Jersey girl, a close friend of hers, 7 and 5, in the semi-final.

Miss Berg had six birdies, four of them in a row. Miss Irwin matched two of Patty's birdies and scored a third herself, but she lacked the consistency to cope with her opponent's long woods and accurate approaches.

Miss Kirby, who won the qualifying medal with a 79 to tie the women's course record, also shot sub-par golf in her 3 and 2 victory over Ellamae Williams of Chicago. They reached the turn all square, both shooting 38s, two under par.

A birdie on the tenth put Miss Williams ahead but Miss Kirby won the next two with birdies and the long fifteenth in par five. She closed out the match with her fifth birdie on the sixteenth.

OHIO WINS OVER MINNESOTA FOR LEAD IN BIG TEN

Irvine's pushing foul gave Northwestern a 27 to 24 lead with less than a minute to go. Shepard immediately fouled Anapol, who made the point. Then Vance committed his fourth foul on Stephens. With the chance to tie the score if he made both free shots, Stephens missed the first and then deliberately missed the second in hope a field goal might be made on the rebound.

Northwestern obtained the ball. Anapol missed another free throw on Butherus' foul and when Stephens committed his fourth personal, Koble missed for Northwestern. The game ended before Irvine could shoot from midfloor.

Bulla, Nelson Card 68s for Phoenix Lead

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Johnny Bulla, husky 24 year old Chicago professional, and Byron Nelson, veteran from Reading, Pa., shot 68s to lead a field of seventy-eight golfers at the conclusion of the first eighteen holes in the $3,000 Phoenix open tournament today. Par for the course is 71.

The rain-soaked course earlier had proved the undoing of some of the nation's leading golfers. With momentary letups, it rained from early today until after competitors had posted their scores. At noon the temperature was 40 degrees.

Bulla appeared to have the lead clinched when Nelson, member of the 1937 Ryder cup team, came on the eighteenth tee with a 63. Informed he would have to par the five stroke hole, Nelson went ahead to tie Bulla. Bulla and Nelson each had five birdies.

KAUTZ, NOVAK PROVE PUNCH IN LOYOLA ATTACK

Two boys who are almost sure bets to be rated among the nation's best basketball players this season, will be seen in the Loyola lineup Wednesday night in Chicago Stadium when Loyola and De Paul universities' squads clash in the annual game sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization.

The boys are Wilbur [Wibs] Kautz and Mike Novak. These two stars have played together for the last four years, and are outstanding at their respective positions. Novak is a center and Kautz plays one of the guard positions.

Mike and Wibs have been largely responsible for the impressive record Loyola has piled up this season. Playing some of the leading quintets in the country, the Rogers Park five enters the De Paul battle undefeated for the season. Loyola has played fourteen games and has won them all.

Novak, one of the tallest men in basketball, standing six feet, nine inches, is not only one of the high scorers of the team, but because of his height plays excellently at defense, works well at passing and stops many an opponent's ball from dropping into the basket. As a ball is headed for the basket he leaps into the air and knocks the ball down. He also is a fine feeder for Kautz. With hands extended over his head, Novak's finger tips are only thirteen inches from the rim of the basket.

Novak feeding Kautz has made it possible for Wibs to lead the team in scoring three years in a row and to break the school individual scoring record. In 1937, Kautz scored 189 points; last year he scored 289 points, and this season he is well on his way to breaking the 300 mark. Thus far he has scored 240 points.

END 3D ROUND IN ARENA HOCKY LEAGUE TODAY

The quartet of Arena Amateur Hockey league teams will finish their third round robin series when Pepsi-Cola meets the Hornets in the opening game at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon, followed by the C. Y. O. Shamrocks and Planerts contest. The games will be played in the Chicago arena, 333 East Erie street.

Each team has met their opponents of today twice during the season. The Hornet-Pepsi-Cola game is expected to be the top attraction. These clubs played 3 to 3 and 1-all tie games in their other two starts. Each has defeated the C. Y. O. Shamrocks once this year and each has one of the leading scoring lines. The Hornets' trio of Louis Zeman, George Vokac, and Dick Hammond has scored 19 points and the Pepsi-Colas' trio of Ack Teevin, Eddie Janelle, and Jack Merril has accumulated 13 points.

Paul Thompson, manager of the Blackhawks, will present the Maj. Frederic McLaughlin amateur hocky trophy to the Arena league today. Clifford Thomson, coach of the Eveletti hocky team, will be guest of honor.

Merion Club Selected for Davis Cup Play

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The United State Lawn Tennis association, at its annual meeting today, adopted the recommendation of its Davis cup committee of management that the 1939 challenge round be awarded to the Merion Cricket club at Haverford, Pa.

Walter Pate, chairman and captain of the United States Davis cup team, told the association its committee favored the Merion courts over those of the Germantown Cricket club because the latter were in bad condition for the United States-Australia matches last year.

Pate was supported by Walter Merrill Hall, chairman of the Davis cup and international play committee, and Louis J. Carruthers. Both Hall and Carruthers are former presidents of the U. S. L. T. A.

Germantown Bid Fails.

Percy Clark, president of the Germantown club, pointed out the championship courts had been reconditioned. Paul Gibbons, president of the Middle States Tennis association, and Julion S. Myrick, former president of the national organization, also argued for Germantown, but to no avail.

The only change in the slate of officers was the election of Gordon F. Small of Cincinnati to replace Ralph Westcott of Chicago as secretary. Holcombe Ward of New York was reelected president; Joseph E. Wear, Philadelphia, first vice president; Lawrence A. Baker, Washington, D. C., second vice president, and Russell Kingman, Orange, N. J., treasurer.

Play to Start Sept. 2.

The Germantown delegation, not content with the oral vote, called for a proxy vote and was beaten again.

The challenge round will be played Sept. 2-4 after the interzone finals have been decided, probably at the Longwood club, Brookline, Aug. 24-26. Preceding the inter-zone play, the national doubles also will be played at Longwood, Aug. 14-19.

Dates for the national singles championships at Forest Hills were fixed at Sept. 7-16. Other tournament dates:

National clay courts, June 18-25, Chicago.

DI MAGGIO SHUNS INTERVIEW; HE'LL LET YANKS TALK

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Joe Di Maggio wasn't available for an interview today, or yesterday either for that matter, but his brother, Tom, took occasion to deny reports that the Yankee outfielder was a baseball holdout or anything resembling such a thing.

Tom, manager of Joe's restaurant, declared that Joe had not opened negotiations to the $1,850 deducted from last season's salary for missing the first ten days of the schedule.

"That ain't so," said Tom, punctuating it with considerably stronger language. "Joe hasn't even been in touch with the club. He hasn't even talked with anybody outside the family about his contract. He's going to let the club give out any announcements about him this year."

I. A. C. Water Poloists Beat Pittsburgh, 10-6

TERRY PICKS HIS LINEUP—AND HIS GIANTS ONE-TWO

Sees Reds Main Threat; Signs Three Players.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The lull in contract signing at the offices of the Giants came to an abrupt end today when Bill Terry arrived from his Memphis estate.

He quickly signed up three players—Hal Schumacher, Cliff Melton, and Thomas Padden—and then with characteristic frankness plunged into his annual midwinter forecast. He outlined what he hoped would be his 1939 lineup and expressed confidence this cast would finish "one, two."

The prospective lineup and batting order reads:

Still Interested in Mungo.

George Myatt, 3b; Burgess Whitehead, 2b; Joe Moore, lf; Mel Ott, rf; Zeke Bonura, 1b; Harry Danning, c; Frank Demaree, cf; Jurges, ss, and the pitcher to be selected from the prospective four starting hurlers—Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher, Cliff Melton, and Harry Gumbert.

Reminded of contract trouble with Danning and the transplanted Cub, Demaree, Terry indicated he considered this among his lesser worries.

Asked whether he was still interested in Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn pitcher, Terry replied:

"Certainly I'm interested in Mungo and ready to make a deal for him any time any one over there is ready to talk sense."

Sees Reds as Chief Rivals.

The Giants' pilot does not concede the Dodgers with a ghost of a chance of finishing in the first division.

"I look for the Cincinnati Reds to give us the toughest battle," he said. "I still don't like Bill McKechnie's second base combination, but if Bill can strengthen that weakness of last year those Reds will be a real threat."

By reason of the three-for-three trade with the Cubs last December, Terry does not believe the Cubs will be as strong. The Pirates, he figures, will be about the same as last season, serious contenders only if the others bog down. He concedes the Cardinals a chance of crashing the first division.

Juror De Shong Asks Release to Go to Camp

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Jimmy DeShong, pitcher for the Washington Senators, asked Judge Paul N. Schaeffer today to release him from the grand jury which is investigating campaign charges against fourteen state Democratic leaders, so that he can report to the Senators for spring practice. DeShong, a resident of Harrisburg, said he'd rather be tossing a baseball than sitting in a jury box. Judge Schaeffer took the request under advisement. The grand jury is winding up its eighth week of work today.

U. S. HOCKY TEAM BEATS GERMANS; SECOND VICTORY

BASLE, Switzerland, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The United States hocky team won its second straight match in the world's amateur championship tournament today, blanking Germany, 4 to 0. Yesterday the American team trounced Italy, 5 to 0.

Czecho-Slovakia and Switzerland also remained on the unbeaten list. The Czechs, who swamped Jugo-Slavia, 24 to 0, yesterday, whipped Latvia, 9 to 0, today, while Switzerland, 12 to 0 winner over Latvia in its opening engagement, downed Jugo-Slavia, 23 to 0.

Poland, defeating Hungary, 9 to 0, and England, trouncing Belgium, 3 to 1, made their opening starts today. Italy came up with a victory by outscoring Finland, 5 to 2.

Skier, 17, Wins Title; 167 Feet His Best Leap

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—A 17 year old St. Paul boy took advantage of a wide open field in the 1939 National Ski jumping tournament today to win over twenty-six class C, or junior, entrants. He was Gene Lewis of St. Paul, who put together leaps of 167 and 157 feet off the new 242 foot Battle Creek ski slide to score 210.15 points.

Gjardar Iverson, also of St. Paul, outleaped a field of seventeen senior, or veteran jumpers, to take top honors. He jumped 165 and 162 feet and scored 211.05 points.

A wind at times threatened to throw the jumpers entirely off the course. Lawrence Kaja of New London, Wis., suffered the most severe injuries. He was cut and scratched when he fell and crashed into a pile of snow and ice covered rocks.

The longest jumps of the day, 178 feet, were made by Ole Tverdal of Seattle, Wash., and Henry Hansen, Minneapolis. Tverdal's second leap was 177 feet, but he fell on both jumps and failed to place. Hansen's second jump of 173 feet also was well up in the running.

A crowd of 8,000 filled the natural amphitheater in which the landing run is located.

ARMSTRONG MAY FIGHT MONTANEZ; TITLE AT STAKE

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Henry Armstrong may defend his world welterweight boxing championship against Pedro Montanez, the Porto Rican, in Madison Square Garden March 31. If the match is made it would mean the proposed Armstrong-Lou Ambers bout for Armstrong's lightweight title would not be put on until July or August.

It was learned today that Promoter Mike Jacobs has been thinking over both July and August dates for the Armstrong-Ambers rematch [Henry won the 135 pound crown from Lou last year]. He leans toward the August date, so that a proposed heavyweight championship fight for Joe Louis in June would not overshadow the lightweight battle.

Should the Armstrong - Montanez bout be set for March 31, it would mean a proposed bout between Louis and Bob Pastor on the same date would be abandoned.

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The University of Illinois wrestling team handed Nebraska's matmen a solid trouncing today, 23 to 3, sweeping all matches but one. The feature was the match between Illinois' Paul Petry and the Nebraska captain, James Knight. Both were undefeated until Knight came through to win the referee's decision.

OVERLIN ENDS TRAINING TODAY FOR QUAILL BOUT

Ken Overlin, Decatur boxing master, who handed Billy Celebron a lesson last month, will finish training today for his ten round bout with Al Quaill, Pittsburgh middleweight, in Marigold Gardens tomorrow.

Overlin will be in quest of his eighth victory in as many Chicago appearances. After whipping George Black of Milwaukee in 1935 Ken returned last September to resume his march at the expense of Celebron [twice], Jimmy Clark, Nate Bolden [twice], and Milton Shivers.

Quaill is a stranger to Chicago fans, but he is known as a good trial horse in the east. His last year's record includes draws with Babe Risko and Oscar Rankin.

Nelson to Meet Davis.

George Nelson, Chicago 145 pounder, has been obtained to oppose Verle Davis of Kankakee in a five round semi-final. Nelson earned the assignment by knocking out Johnny Williams of Danville, Ill., in the third round in White City Jan. 20. In his latest bout Davis whipped Bob Fonzo of Quincy, Ill. It was Davis' tenth consecutive triumph since he turned professional after being eliminated in the 1938 Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions. Fonzo was the fifth of his victims to last the limit.

Marion Mosley, Burnside, Ill., heavyweight, will clash with Mike Adler in one of three matches of four rounds. Mosley has scored three victories and two draws in five professional starts.

Nyberg Meets Williams.

There also will be an amateur boxing show in Coulon's gymnasium tomorrow and a professional card in White City Friday and four professional wrestling programs—in White City tomorrow, Cicero stadium Tuesday, and Rand Boys' club and Rainbo Fronton Wednesday.

Tony Musto, Blue Island heavyweight, and Clarence Brown, former Catholic Youth organization champion, meet in an eight round headliner on Friday. FIGHT TO SAVE UPPER MICHIGAN FOREST STAND

BY BOB BECKER.

Residents of the upper peninsula of Michigan are hard at work these days trying to save their last great stand of virgin timber, which makes the streams and highlands around the beautiful Porcupine mountain one of the scenic areas of the central states. This great area of rolling hills, small lakes, trout streams, and miles of magnificent maples, hemlocks, pines, and birches, which never have seen an ax, is facing destruction by logging operations. The Ironwood Chamber of Commerce, aided by conservationists, sportsmen, and north woods residents, is trying to keep this area intact for its beauty and recreational assets.

The section threatened consists of the highlands and timber generally called the Porcupine mountain country. In it are the valleys of the Black, Presque Isle, and Rainbow rivers. This area is about thirty miles long and thirty miles wide. For rugged natural beauty that reminds you of the west, for trees that are unbelievably tall, and for camping, fishing, and all around recreation we know of nothing overnight from Chicago to equal this country along the south shore of Lake Superior.

Offers to Donate Land.

One of the largest owners of the area is the General Motors company. This company has offered to donate some of its land to the United States Forest service if some plan is brought forward to save the balance. Representative Frank E. Hook of Michigan has introduced a bill in congress providing for a working agreement whereby the forest service would be able to save in its untouched state much of the timber that is now to be logged.

We have seen and camped in this country around the Porcupine mountains, so we're not surprised that every effort is being made to conserve at least part of it for future generations.

Starts at Lake Gogebic.

We started at Lake Gogebic with a small pack train, rode through the virgin forest to the little bass lakes and the small brook trout lake called Mirror lake, camped at several places along the trail and finally had our breath taken away when we caught sight of the Lake of the Clouds which lies at the foot of Porcupine mountain. From the top of this rocky plateau one can look for miles over a virgin forest that cannot be duplicated in the central states.

International League Opens 154 Game Race April 20

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The International Baseball league today adopted a 154 game schedule, beginning on April 20. The opening games will find Montreal at Baltimore, Toronto at Syracuse, Buffalo at Jersey City, and Rochester at Newark. On May 4 the other cities will have their openers with the same teams opposing each other. The regular season will close Sept. 10 and the Shaughnessy playoffs start two days later.

PRO FOOTBALL BOSSES TO OPEN MEET THURSDAY

Rule Makers Convene in Congress Hotel.

Natonal Football league coaches and officials will assemble in Chicago this week for their twentieth anual meeting, which begins Thursday and continues through Sunday in the Congress hotel.

Drafting of the 1939 league schedule is the most important business of the meeting. Several other procedures, such as executive meetings of the rules, finance, and resolution committees, the consummation of several important player deals, and the formation of a policy, with the idea of improving officiating generally, are also expected to generate action.

Carr Will Preside.

Joe F. Carr, president of the league, will preside at the meeting. Carr was unable to attend last year's meeting, which was held in Philadelphia, because of illness. His presence is expected to add to the meeting, too, as several important measures were tabled last year because of his absence. Vice President Carl Storck will be secretary.

The world champion New York Giants will be represented by Tim Mara, founder and treasurer; John V. Mara, president; Wellington T. Mara, secretary, and their veteran coach, Steve Owen. Lee H. Joannes, president; Coach E. L. [Curly] Lambeau and his assistant, Richard [Red] Smith, will represent the Green Bay Packers.

Lions Send Alfs, Shaver.

William A. Alfs and Bud Shaver, vice presidents, will be the executive delegates of the Detroit Lions, in the absence of George Richards, president, who is recuperating from illness in California.

Four to Represent Bears.

George S. Halas, owner-coach; Ralph Brizollara, secretary, and assistant coaches Red Grange and Luke Johnsos will represent the Chicago Bears. Owner Charles W. Bidwill and his new coach, Ernie Nevers, who succeeded Milan Creighton, will be the Chicago Cardinals' delegates. Nevers, who comes to the Cardinals from the University of Iowa coaching staf, was formerly the playing coach of the Cardinals.

Owner Art Rooney and Coach John [Blood] McNally will look after the Pittsburgh Pirates interests, and Bert Bell, owner-coach of the Philadelphia club, and his assistant, Jim MacMurdo, will be the Eagles' delegates.

HAWKS HOPE FOR 1ST VICTORY AGAINST BRUINS

Battle Boston Tonight on Stadium Ice.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Boston, 12 goals; Chicago, 2.

That is the score between the Bruins and the Blackhawks for the four games they have played prior to their meeting in the Chicago Stadium this evening.

It's not a very satisfactory summation to the Hawks, holders of the Stanley cup and the world championship, and they are in no mood for a continuance of the condition. Thursday night the Chicagoans lifted themselves out of the worst slump through which they have struggled in ten seasons by defeating the Canadiens in Montreal, 4 to 2. That was their first victory since they defeated Toronto, 1 to 0, on Jan. 8 in the Stadium. In the interim they have tied two and lost six.

Bruins Win All Four.

In the Boston-Chicago feud of this season the Bruins have won all four games to date. It all began on Dec. 4 in the Stadium, when Frankie Brimsek, the Bostonians' unyielding goalie, shut them out while his associates were collecting five goals off of Mike Karakas and the Hawk defense. Two nights later Brimsek whitewashed the Chicagoans again, the while his mates were scoring two goals. On Jan. 5 the Hawks were beguiled into thinking they might escape with a tie against the Bruins until the nineteenth minute, when Mel Hill scored alone to give Boston a 2 to 1 decision. Jan. 10 saw the Bruins win again, this time 3 to 1.

The sudden and pleasing resurrection from the slump also saw the Hawks' No. 1 sharpshooter of this and many another season snap out of a slump. He is Johnny Gottselig, the slim veteran, who was running away with the individual scoring race until he went into the ruck with such a thump that he scored only one point in ten games until Thursday, when he came through with a goal and three assists. Ably assisting Gottselig in all this was Joffre Desilets, who also collected four points. Incidentally, Joff is one of the two Hawks who have been able to beat Brimsek all season, the other being Earl Robinson.

Regains Scoring Leadership.

Gottselig's performance against the Canadiens restored him to the scoring leadership of the league with twelve goals and seventeen assists for a total of 29 points. Two New York Americans, Tommy Anderson and Sweeny Schriner, who had overhauled him during his slump, slipped back to second and third places with 28 and 27 points.

The victory over the Canadiens was as handsome a one as they have scored all season, the Hawks said yesterday, for the simple reason that if they had lost they would have been just half a game out of last place, a position still retained by the Flying Frenchmen.

No Introduction Needed.

True hocky fans need little introduction to the Hawks' opponents of this evening. The league standings show the Bruins leading in goals scored with eighty-six and also in goals scored against with a minimum of forty-one, thanks to Brimsek. The latter has allowed only thirty-three goals in the twenty-six games since he joined the Bruins, for an average of slightly more than a goal per game.

Honored guests in the Stadium this evening will be Mrs. Ann Starkovich, mother of Mike Karakas; Mrs. John Brimsek Sr., mother of Frank, and Coach Clifford Thompson, all of Eveleth, Minn., home town of the opposing goalies. They arrived in Chicago yesterday after a popular subscription had been raised by the Eveleth Clarion to send them.

GREAT BRITAIN AIMS TO CAPTURE WINCHESTER CUP

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The earnestness of Great Britain's challenge for polo's Westchester cup was emphasized today after the arrival of Gerald Balding, field captain of the British team.

"There may have been in England at the start a disposition to just make a good showing," he said, "but that has been changed now and the expedition is here with the definite purpose of winning.

"We feel we have the best ponies in the empire and with the inclusion of Pat Roark and Ivor Balding we think we have the best players in the empire, with one possible exception, Capt. Humphrey Guinness, who is now assigned to duty in Palestine."

Flying Lee Triumphs in $10,000 Race

With 35,000 turf fans gathered under clear skies for the day's biggest race, Headley's 4 year old filly and 17 to 1 shot overtook Norman Church's Sweet Nancy in the closing strides of the mile and one-sixteenth event and held on long enough to capture the verdict in a photo finish. The time was one minute 47.1 seconds.

Jocky Sammy Renick gave Flying Lee the whip in the stretch after keeping her close to the pace, and Sweet Nancy's two length lead dwindled. Mrs. Emil Denemark's Genie Palatine ran third.

Twelve entries went to the post, Marica, the pre-race favorite; Real Clear and Pattycake having been scratched.

Sweet Nancy, winner of the recent Santa Susana stakes for fillies, had little trouble going to the front at the three-quarter pole, and seemed headed for victory until Jocky Longden apparently relaxed and Flying Lee came up with a rush.

Winner in only one out of four starts at Santa Anita this winter, Flying Lee, victorious in the Kentucky Oaks last fall, was almost overlooked by the betting fraternity and paid $37.40, $12.80 and $7.40 across the board. Sweet Nancy paid $4.20 and $3.80 to place and Genie Palatine $8.20.

ROYAL PAM WINS

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Royal Pam, a filly, qualified handsomely for the $20,000 Flamingo stakes by winning the Bahamas handicap at Hialeah Park today, but a much more impressive eligible, to a great many observers, was Roll and Toss, first in the comparatively obscure third race.

The Bahamas winner earned $4,790 of a gross purse of $6,540, while Roll and Toss gained merely $700 out of a $1,000 purse. However, he appears more like the Flamingo favorite than does the filly. The Flamingo is set for Feb. 20. It formerly was known as the Florida Derby.

Royal Pam carried the silks of the Kentuckian, J. N. Camden, and scored decisively by a length and a half at the end of a hard run seven furlongs. She was going within herself and seemed well able to handle as keen a colt as Technician, which ran coupled in the betting with the filly Inscoelda as the Woolford Farm entry. Technician got the place by three lengths over Early Morn.

Roll and Toss actually was being eased through the last furlong of the seven furlongs he ran. Yet there was three lengths to spare over the nearest of the others.

Warlaine, a 4 year old son of Man o' War carrying the silks of Weston W. Adams of Boston, won as an odds-on favorite should win in the $1,000 Broward handicap at Gulfstream Park.

Warlaine, with Eddie Robart up, galloped to a two-length victory over Mrs. P. A. Shaw's Holluschickie in the track record time of 1:45 4-5 for a mile and one-sixteenth. C. M. Mooney's Teddy Haslam finished a nose back in third place.

The winner paid $3.70 for $2.

WINTER TRACKS GIVE IMPETUS TO DISTANCE RACES

Santa Anita Boosts Value of San Juan Capistrano.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The movement toward distance racing has received new impetus during the winter season, breeders, commissioners, and race track officials giving the matter considerable attention.

Santa Anita has made its contribution to the cause by boosting the added value of the San Juan Capistrano handicap from $7,500 to $25,000 and increasing the distance from a mile and an eighth to a mile and a half.

Hialeah is putting quite a few distance races on its program and is offering special prizes of $50 to $200 to trainers of horses winning races of 1 3-16 miles or over.

Four Long Races at Belmont.

Although most of the great races of England and France are at a mile and a half or longer, there are only six of the more important American stakes over comparable routes. Four of these are at Belmont, one at Bowie and the sixth at Santa Anita.

This lack of opportunity for distance runners was brought to the attention of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners in their recent convention in Miami. A. S. Hewitt, a Virginia breeder, pointed out that the racing programs at American tracks do not furnish horsemen with sufficient information to select the best prospects for use in the stud. He held that most of the great stallions have been stayers, whereas the racing schedules throw the emphasis on sprinters. He advocated a program of races at the "classic distances" to counteract the tendency of the breed to increase speed at the cost of stamina.

Often Become Farces.

Advocates of distance racing are called upon to answer the objection that the longer events now on the calendar often develop into farces, so called "cheap" horses winning them in competition with highly regarded thoroughbreds. J. A. Estes of Lexington, Ky., gave the commissioners the answer to this by pointing out that a first class distance horse would inevitably get a false reputation for cheapness when most of his competition was necessarily in races where early speed counted for more than stamina. If the order of things were reversed and the stress placed on route running, many of those highly rated sprinters would become "cheap" horses.

An interesting comparison was made between the winners of the Belmont Futurity, as the most important two year old sprint, and the Belmont stakes, the leading event at a mile and a half. Nearly twice as many great sires appear among the Belmont stake winners as among the Futurity winners.

Develop Gradually in France.

Whereas in this country, many expensive, well bred two year olds are put through rigorous campaigns, a French juvenile which shows promise will get very little racing. He will be developed gradually and be ready for the two mile races when he gets older.

The important American events at a mile and a half or more are the Belmont stakes, the Lawrence Realization, the Jocky Club Gold cup, the Manhattan handicap, the Bowie handicap, and the San Juan Capistrano handicap.

Many Nearly Two Miles.

In glancing over a list of the leading French and English stakes it will be seen that many of them are in the neighborhood of two miles.

Occasionally, an American thoroughbred is able to go abroad and run well against English horses at their own distances and over their own courses. Reigh Count, owned by Mrs. John Hertz, did this in 1929 when he won the Coronation cup at a mile and a half and finished second in the Ascot Gold cup at two and a half miles.

Omaha also ran second in the Ascot Gold cup of 1936.

Ohio State Breast Stroke Relay Team Breaks Record

Columbus, O., Feb. 4.—U. P.]—An Ohio State university 800 yard breast stroke relay team set a new world's record today in an exhibition race as Ohio defeated Wayne university, 56 to 28, in a dual meet. The record-breaking relay team smashed the University of Michigan's week-old mark by almost 6 seconds. Ohio State's time was 10:08.6 compared to the Michigan time of 10:14.4.

Pedens Rank as Top 6 Day Brother Team

There have been brother teams in six day bicycle racing before, but none with the competitive appeal of the Canadian giants, Torchy and Doug Peden, who come from Victoria, B. C. They will ride in the six day race opening in the Stadium next Sunday night.

In looking back over the history of cycling, the team of John and Menus Bedell is discovered. They came from Lynbrook, L. I., and for years were a figure in every New York six day bicycle race, but never won one. Then along came the Belgian team of Henry and Theodore Wynsdau, Marcel and Rene Boogman, and the German team of Henry and Walter Nickel. These teams never acquired any great glory.

The Pedens Are the McCoy.

The Peden boys are the real McCoy. The fans don't need to be told much about Torchy. They have seen him ride. In fact he has the most brilliant record of any six day rider in the world. Peden has won thirty-two races, finished second in nineteen, third in ten, and fourth in thirteen.

Torchy's record has been made since the fall of 1928, for in the summer of that year Torchy was a member of the Canadian cycling team in the Olympic games.

Tells About Brother Doug.

Doug was born April 18, 1916, in Victoria, B. C. He stands 6 feet 1½ inches and weighs 194 pounds. The name Tiny has stayed with him since he has two older brothers. Doug was one of Canada's best all around athletes, having made his name in football, track, swimming, cycling, and finally in being high scorer for Canada in the Berlin Olympic games, in basketball. Canada lost in the final to America.

Torchy has won four races with Doug as his partner, scoring victories in Buffalo, San Francisco, Montreal, and Toronto.

Weather Forces Postponement of Soccer Contests

Weather conditions yesterday caused postponement of soccer matches scheduled today. The scheduled games included the second match of the two game series for the Otto Kudrle shield between Sparta, national champion, and the Manhattan Brewers, Peel cup holders, and an amateur cup match between the Olympias and Oak Park Acorns. Sparta won the first game, 4 to 1, and holds a wide advantage since it is a total goal series. The Manhattans will benefit by the postponement and plan a shakeup in their lineup.

The Swedish American club, whose teams won both class A and B indoor titles last week in the seven a side tournament, will celebrate the event by holding a dance saturday at 4616 North Clark street.

An announcement of plans to have a team of Scottish soccer stars visit Chicago following their tour of Canada next summer was made yesterday.

40 Drivers Will Race on Midget Card Tonight

Forty of the best known indoor auto race drivers in the country will compete for title points and prize money tonight in the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, where a 40 lap main event will head the program. Time trials start at 7 o'clock, with the first race at 8:30.

Ray Richards, because of his victory in the feature event last week, appears the favorite. Drivers in a position to beat Richards are Pete Nielson and Cowboy O'Rourke of Los Angeles, Tony Willman of Milwaukee, Jimmy Snyder, Ted Tetterton, and Bert Knight, all of Chicago.

The first three events tonight will be elimination races in which the drivers will line up in the reverse order of their time trials. There will be a handicap for the eight fastest cars, a class B handicap and a consolation heat for chauffeurs who fail to qualify for the main event.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Perhaps it was because there was snow on the ground. Anyhow, Herb Freitag walked into the Gold Coast Recreation announcing that he felt pretty good as he made ready to bowl with the Williams Jewelers in the Gold Coast Major league.

Freitag, long one of the city's ten pin experts, started with a 243 game. Then came 278 and another 278, which gave him a total of 799, a new all-time record for the Gold Coast Major league. During his scoring spree Freitag made 31 strikes out of a possible 36 and to carry out his declaration of feeling pretty good Freitag made three more strikes in a shootoff of a tie game with the Triangle Shirts, the Williams Jewelers' opponents on Tuesday night.

With this kind of help from Freitag the Williams won the rolloff and the other two games as well. Those who witnessed the exceptional bowling said Freitag did not miss the pocket once.

Windy City League.

Because of the heavy snow, the Windy City Major league postponed its matches last week. The regular schedule will be resumed tomorrow night on the Windy City alleys, with the following match:

Pickwick Cameras vs. McKesson's Old Crow; G. & W. 5 vs. Mineralites; Budweisers vs. J. M. Kralovecs; Blazek Tailors vs. Whitecaps; O'Keefe Coals vs. Quality Wet Wash; Soper Brothers vs. Vogel Brothers; Congressman Macejewskis vs. Burlington Zephyrs; Meister Braus vs. Furman Funerals.

Classic League.

The feature match will bring together the Pabst Blue Ribbons and the Baby Ruths when the Classic league bowls tonight in the Forest Park Recreation, 400 Des Plaines avenue, Forest Park, at 8 o'clock. The other matches are Monarch vs. Ambrosia, Schlitz vs. Prager, and Thompson Restaurants vs. Power House.

Randolph League.

The Birk Brothers, Randolph league champions last year, expect to repeat now that they have jumped into first place with 39 won and 18 lost. They swept their series with the Mineralites, shooting games of 1,042, 1,069 and 1,109 to 1,009, 1,021 and 1,105, while the Joseph L. Gills were losing a pair to the Whitecaps. The Gills are now second with 38 and 19, the Budweisers are tied with the Joseph Butler at 37 and 20, and the Burlington Routes have slipped to 35 and 22. Eli Maricich of Nonebetter Ice Cream remains the individual pace setter with 216 average. Two 700 series were shot, George Notz of the Birks getting 714 and Paul Krumske of Wagner and Hanson hitting 710.

North End League.

Despite the snowstorm, four teams rolled their scheduled matches in the North End Traveling league. Of this quartet the champion Birk Brothers did the best with games of 1,093, 1,080, and 1,005 for a 3,178 total, which netted a clean sweep over the Sid & Mikes, whose best effort was 1,027. The Michelobs took two from the Kruse Stations.

On North Side Alleys.

The Wallace Coals increased their lead to five games in the Samuelson Major league when they won three and the second place Samuelson Kids dropped a pair. The leaders have 43 victories and 23 defeats. Individual sharpshooters were Roy Anderson, 662; Chuck Collins, 654; John Small, 632; Harry Ledene Jr., 620; Ed Kleindienst, 619; John Podmers, 613; Axel Sandquist, 604, and Les Flaska, 603. . . . Bennett's Arcade has gone into a tie with Neumann Tailors for the lead in the Greater Chicago Traveling league, which has two series over the week-end. High individuals last week were John Casti, 685; Al Weimar, 675, and P. Orseske, 643.

On South Side Alleys.

There's only a two way tie for first place in the Stevenson Major league now. The Budweisers and Eden Insurance kept apace by winning three games, but De Young Fuel dropped a pair to Interstate Engineering and is in third place. Emil Landman of the Budweisers was high individual with 686. . . . Herb Swanson put together games of 226, 276, and 245 for a 747 series in the Bruck Major league.

About the Women.

Ann Weiller led the Congress league with 616 and helped the Logan Square Buicks roll a 2,791 series. Florence Waterman hit 601 and Bess Fender collected 600. Henrietta Wolman was next with 592, nor was Carrie Enders with 587. . . . Reservations are being received for the Chicago Women's Bowling association's annual banquet Feb. 14 in the Morrison hotel. . . . With the Major league matches postponed, the Senior league scores hit the spotlight in the Pioneer Arcade. Elaine Bedini led with 537, two more than Viola Matson totaled.

TVA WILL PAY $78,600,000 FOR LARGE UTILITY

Tennessee Deal Seen as Peace Omen.

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The long and bitter feud between the New Deal and one of the nation's biggest utilities was brought to an end today. An amicable arrangement under which TVA will purchase all electrical properties of Commonwealth and Southern corporation in Tennessee was announced. Agreement was reported in Knoxville, Tenn., by TVA officials and in New York by Wendell L. Willke, president of Commonwealth and Southern.

The TVA agreed to pay $78,600,000 for the electric properties of the Tennessee Electric Power company, a subsidiary of Commonwealth and Southern. Wall street sources said this figure was only slightly under Willkie's asking price. The TVA had first offered only $55,000,000 for the properties.

Government Makes Concessions.

Local utility executives in other systems said the end of the six-year Willkie-TVA feud was made possible by major concessions on the part of negotiators representing the federal administration. These include:

1. Recognition for the first time of "equity" or common stock value in utility systems.

2. Recognition of "going business" value in utility financial structures, also for the first time.

3. Recognition of investments not strictly for purchase of operating property, another precedent.

The utility will receive under the arrangement approximately $8,000,000 in cash in return for the common stock of Tennessee Electric Power, all of which is owned by Commonwealth and Southern. In addition, the company will get something under $3,000,000 in other assets applicable to the common, which have a book value of $17,000,000. Heretofore, federal utility administrators have refused to recognize common stock or equity values in similar transactions.

Pays Par for Bonds.

TVA, it was understood here, will pay par value for the bonded investment of the company. Bonds will be redeemed at par under a "liquidation escape" clause. The indenture covering outstanding bonds would have provided 5 to 10 points premium above par if called for payment. Preferred stockholders also will be paid par for their holdings.

Commonwealth and Southern owns about $7,000,000 of bonds and about $750,000 of preferred stock of Tennessee Electric Power and will receive par for the investment. The remainder of the bonds and preferred stock is owned publicly.

The total price will be brought up to about $80,000,000, since the TVA will pay separately for south Tennessee properties, plus accounts payable, cash, and certain other considerations, including the return of a valuable new dynamo.

As soon as technical details of the present arrangement have been worked out, including TVA's allocation of purchased properties to municipalities in its area, Willkie and TVA negotiators will try to work out a similar agreement covering Commonwealth and Southern's electric properties in northern Alabama and Mississippi.

Believed End of Competition.

Utility executives regard this impending negotiation of even more importance because it is understood that Willkie will press for a definite promise which will demark the extent of TVA's future operations. Willkie said he believes this to be the first step in a new understanding which he hopes will end further expansion of government competition with private business.

Willkie predicted that privately owned utilities would spend not less than a billion dollars a year in new capital outlay each year for the next three or four years if the administration went a few steps further and:

1. Made a definite pledge not to "compete with private business in the utility field" in any new areas.

2. Took steps to prevent further PWA loans to states or municipalities for non-federal "competition" of this nature.

3. "Clarified" policies under the public utility holding company act.

4. Ceased "continued attacks" on the utilities.

Will Pay Off Investors.

Although all of the common stock in Tennessee Electric Power is owned by Commonwealth and Southern, a large number of private investors holds bonds or preferred stock of the company. Under the arrangement, Willkie's company will pay off these investors at 100 cents on the dollar in the course of the liquidation of Tennessee Electric Power.

Wall street speculators missed a profit chance today as a result of the deal. The 7 per cent first preferred stock of Tennessee Electric Power sold from $83 to $85.25 a share on the New York Curb exchange. The liquidation price is $100.

Tennessee Electric Power 6 per cent bonds of 1947 "A" closed on the New York Stock exchange at $990 per $1,000 bond. The 5s of 1956 in the Curb market ended at $960 per $1,000 bond. They too will be paid off at par value, or $1,000 each.

All of the utility's securities had been moving up this last week, but the preferred stock had lagged behind the bonds.

Ask Tax Return Due to Cut in Dollar Volume

The first suit brought in the federal courts in which the reduction in the gold value of the dollar is a basis for claiming a refund on income taxes will come up next Thursday before Judge James H. Wilkerson. A date for trial is expected to be set by Judge Wilkerson at that time.

Attorneys assert that the case is one of the most important that has arisen as a result of the devaluation of the dollar by President Roosevelt.

George A. Bates, an investment trust manager, on whose behalf the action was brought, asserts that in 1935 he incurred a loss of $50,416, instead of an indicated profit of $41,018 as a result of the devaluation.

Asks Refund and Interest.

Bates asks that the government refund $7,134 of the income taxes he paid in 1935, together with accrued interest.

The bill, which was filed in the District court last August, sets forth that Bates demanded a refund on the taxes in December, 1937. The bureau of internal revenue, the bill recites, neither allowed nor rejected his claim. The bill names the United States of America as defendant.

Bates asserts that he bought securities costing $134,464 in 1932, which he sold three years later for $175,482. On the transaction he realized an apparent profit of $41,018. However, this was not a profit, he asserts, because in the interim between the purchase and sale of securities the gold content of the dollar was reduced from 25.8 to 15 5-21 grains.

Charges Dollar Worth Less.

The devalued dollars he received from the sale of the securities, Bates sets forth, were worth, in gold, only 59.06 per cent of the pre-devaluation dollars which he paid for the securities.

The purchase price of the securities in terms of the present dollar, he says, would have amounted to $225,899. Thus, in obtaining $175,483 for the securities at the time of sale, he asserts he actually incurred a loss of $50,416 instead of the profit on which the government collected taxes. He charges that the $7,134 tax paid on the paper profit was "illegally and erroneously collected."

David Bazelon, assistant United States district attorney, has filed an answer, in the nature of a demurrer, on behalf of the government.

Federal Brief Denies Relief.

The answer asserts that Bates has failed to make a claim upon which relief can be granted. The constitutionality of the gold reserve act has already been upheld by the Supreme court, the government's answer says.

Attorney Herbert Pope, who represents Bates, pointed out yesterday that the suit marks the first time in which the constitutionality of the dollar devalution has been challenged in an income tax case. Pope said he will carry the case to the Supreme court if he fails to obtain a favorable ruling from the District court.

Bates lives at 1500 Lake Shore drive and has offices at 135 South La Salle street.

I. C. C. BANS BOOST IN MIDWEST RAIL RATES ON STEEL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—The interstate commerce commission today refused to permit railroads to increase freight rates on carload quantities of iron and steel articles moving from Chicago, Peoria, Ill.; Manitowoc, Wis.; Milwaukee, St. Louis, and Kansas City to points in Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Missouri en route to the Twin Cities and Duluth.

The road had sought to continue reduced rates between the southern points and the three large Minnesota terminals, but to charge higher rates for traffic moving to intermediate cities.

The proposal was protested by manufacturers and distributors of iron and steel articles at Des Moines, Waterloo, Cedar Rapids, and Mason City, Ia., and manufacturers and chambers of commerce at other points.

PEOPLES GAS CO. SEEKS LOAN TO PAY OFF NOTES

The Peoples Gas Light and Coke company has applied to the Illinois commerce commission for permission to borrow 2½ million dollars from two Chicago banks, it was learned yesterday.

This loan and other funds held by the company will be used to retire short term notes outstanding. Notes of the company maturing in 1940-'42 and bearing interest at 1½ and 2 per cent will be sold to the First National bank and the Harris Trust and Savings bank. The company is paying interest of 2¼ to 3 per cent on outstanding notes.

The notes to be retired are part of an original loan of 7½ million dollars obtained by the company in 1936. The present operation will effect a half million dollar reduction in the principal amount outstanding, cutting the total to 2½ million dollars.

CLOSED BANK REPAYS IN FULL, THEN ADDS 10 PER CENT INTEREST

Liquidation of the closed Midland National bank of Chicago was completed yesterday with announcement of an interest payment of 10.3 per cent on total claims of depositors and creditors. The bank previously had paid 100 per cent of the principal claims in four instalments.

The interest distribution totals $29,825 and is equivalent to slightly less than 5 per cent for the average time the depositors' money was tied up. The state law requires payment of 5 per cent in bank receiverships if assets are sufficient to cover interest.

The Midland National closed June 24, 1932, with deposits and other obligations totaling $289,567. The last payment on the principal of the claims was made Oct. 15, 1936. No assets remain for distribution to stockholders, W. J. Garvy, the bank's receiver, said.

Garvy asked creditors to call at 4192 Archer avenue for the interest checks not later than March 2. After that date the checks will be sent to the office of the controler of the currency at Washington, D. C.

CHICAGO STEEL PRODUCTION TO RISE THIS WEEK

Steel operating schedules for this week indicated yesterday that mills in the Chicago area will increase ingot production 2.4 points to 49.6 per cent of theoretical capacity.

The rise in Chicago operations is a continuation of recovery in steel making in the district from the slight decline in the second and third weeks of January. Operations at the start of this week will be 0.9 point above the rate scheduled four weeks ago and 26 points above that of a year ago.

The operating rate in the Pittsburgh district will start this week unchanged from last Monday's schedule. Output will be at 46 per cent of capacity, compared with 44 per cent a month ago and 27 per cent a year ago. The rate in the Youngstown district will rise 2 points to 44 per cent.

Birmingham district mills worked at 80 per cent of capacity last week and were expected to start this week at that rate. Removal of an open harth from production by the Bethlehem Steel company at Buffalo reduced the rate in that district to 37.5 per cent, the lowest since July.

Stock Market in New York Runs at Loss

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The stock exchange and its affiliated companies today reported a net loss of $1,548,417, exclusive of $312,000 in initiation fees, which are considered as capital contributions, for 1938. In 1937 the net loss was $140,376, exclusive of $332,000 of initiation fees.

Consolidated net worth of the exchange was stated to be $26,945,147 on Dec. 31, 1938, a decline of $546,394 during the year.

"This decrease," according to a statement by William Martin Jr., president, "is caused primarily by the net loss of $1,548,417 for 1938, reduced by initiation fees of $312,000 and by adjustment of building valuations and depreciation reserve thereon involved in an income tax compromise of items charged off in previous years."

Exchange Cuts Expenses.

In 1938 expenses of the exchange were reduced by about $420,000. This resulted chiefly from reductions in the number of employés and in salaries and wages. Salaries and wages for 1938 totaled $4,056,927, against $4,290,052 in 1937. The item for last year does not reflect fully the reductions made since certain dismissal salaries were included.

"The total annual pay rate as of Dec. 31, 1938," according to the president, "for all employés and officers of the exchange and subsidiaries was $3,597,402, as compared with an actual wage and salary outlay of $4,056,927 for the full year 1938 and with $4,290,052 for 1937."

On Dec. 31 the number of employés had declined by 225 to a total of 2,114.

Dull Market Cuts Income.

Total income from members or their firms for 1938 was $4,170,951, against $4,865,872 in 1937. This decline resulted chiefly from the slowing of share turnover. Other income totaled $1,493,991, against $2,627,511. The biggest decline in this category was in listing fees, which totaled only $483,016, whereas in 1937 the total was $1,438,276. The total of income from all sources was $5,664,943 for 1938 and $7,493,383 for 1937.

Taxes were slightly higher, rising from $925,405 in 1937 to $943,945 in 1938. Sizeable reductions in such items as printing, stationery, and office supplies and telephone and telegraph were shown. On the other hand expenses for professional services, including accounting and legal charges, rose from $305,670 in 1937 to $360,111 last year.

ARGENTINA BIDS LOWEST ON NAVY BEEF CONTRACT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Navy officials, studying Argentine and United States bids for a contract to supply 48,000 pounds of corned beef, said today there was a difference of more than 50 per cent between the lowest domestic bid and the lowest Argentine bid.

The Argentines, they said, had offered to supply the beef for 9.7 cents a pound, plus 6 cents duty, whereas the lowest competitive domestic bid was about 24 cents.

Navy buyers said the domestic price on corned beef had risen steadily each year. In 1932, they said, domestic packers supplied the product at about 11½ cents, the price rising to almost 22 cents last year.

The officials added, however, the amount involved in the contract would not effect the domestic market, adding the largest order awarded by the navy was 120,000 pounds, dropping to 26,000 pounds the following year.

INDUSTRY FAILS TO MAKE USUAL SEASONAL GAINS

Different Lines Show Varied Trends.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Industrial trends varied last week. There were more gains than losses among the leading indices, but some of the increases were less than normal for this time of year. With seasonal trends considered, the main drift was downward.

Without allowance for seasonal factors, improvement was shown in the following lines of activity in the latest weekly period for which figures are available: Steel production, electric power output, railroad freight, retail trade, new financing, bank clearings, business loans by Chicago and New York federal reserve member banks, and engineering construction awards.

The volume of automobile production, wholesale trade, residential building and cotton textile manufacturing was smaller.

Commentators Are Optimistic.

Commentators were inclined to optimism. They stressed comparisons between the present and a year ago. The Standard Statistics company said industrial output is 26 per cent above the level of a year ago. It predicted production in February will "run along at about the same rate as for the three preceding months."

The National Association of Purchasing Agents reported "a further reduction in industrial inventories and an improvement in the underlying tone of business." However, it added that one reason for the dwindling of inventories is the lack of any inducement for replenishment.

Steel mills operated at 52.8 per cent of capacity, compared with 51.2 per cent in the preceding week and 30.5 per cent in the corresponding 1938 week. Automobile production was 79,410 cars and trucks, compared with 89,200 a week earlier and 51,443 a year ago.

Freight Shipments Larger.

Freight shipments were 594,379 cars, or 0.7 per cent larger than in the preceding week and 7.4 per cent more than in the 1938 week. Electric power production was 2,292,594,000 kilowatt hours in the week ended Jan. 28. In the week ended Jan. 21 output was 2,289,659,000 kilowatt hours. The latest week's total was 9.2 per cent larger than the year ago figure.

New financing soared to $151,107,200 in the week ended Feb. 2, from $26,463,572 a week earlier and $72,721,762 in the 1938 week. Offerings included $105,000,000 of securities of the North American company, one of the largest corporation financing operations in recent years. Tomorrow the federal treasury will offer 300 million dollars of notes of the Recnstruction Finance corporation.

Investors to Receive Less.

Meantime, the nation's investors faced the prospect of receiving smaller combined interest and dividend payments this month than in February, 1938—$263,740,000 against $268,711,000.

Followers of events in the petroleum industry were given an indication of what American oil companies plan to expend on drilling this year. A trade publication estimated $561,270,000 will be spent on drilling equipment, about 4 or 5 per cent more than in 1938. Fewer wells will be sunk, however. The companies were said to be hesitant about making drilling budgets, because of political uncertainty and problems within the industry.

Diplomatic obstacles to trans-Atlantic passenger and mail service by plane from New York to Ireland and England were cleared away when Great Britain gave the Pan-American Airways permission to start regular service. Pan-American may begin flights by May 15 if it can get through American government red tape by then.

Britain Revalues Gold Stock.

Banking, gold and foreign exchange matters figured in the week's news. The Bank of England revalued its gold stocks at the current market price, boosting the stated worth of holdings to $1,041,000,000 from $594,603,000. The Bank of Mexico was reported preparing to stabilize the peso at 20 cents, about its present value.

Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board, urged congress to give the board complete power over bank examinations and more power over excess reserves. Other federal agencies on whose toes he stepped were openly resentful.

Yield to Progress?

The Bedford building (corner) and Temple Court building, which may be torn down if the Dearborn street subway weakens their foundations. Picture was taken looking southeast from Dearborn and Adams streets.

May Raze Two Buildings for Dearborn Tube

Construction of the Dearborn street subway may make it necessary to raze the thirteen story Bedford building, 203 South Dearborn street, and the adjacent eight story Temple Court building, it was learned yesterday. Both structures were built about forty years ago and are owned by the Cyrus Hall McCormick estate.

The buildings occupy the entire block on the east side of Dearborn street between Adams and Quincy streets. Judson F. Stone, manager of the McCormick estate, said yesterday that tenants of both buildings were notified late last week that their leases have been canceled.

Have "Floating" Foundations.

Cancelation was necessary, Stone said, to protect the estate in the event that the buildings must be torn down. He explained that both of the old buildings have "floating" foundations which do not extend to bedrock. Neither is supported by caissons in the modern method of construction. It is a question, he said, as to what effect construction of the subway under the street immediately in front of the buildings might have on them. It would be an expensive procedure to sink caissons and put in new foundations, he said.

Will Watch Construction.

The actual decision as to whether the two buildings will be razed will be made later, after the effects of the subway construction are known more clearly, he said. No plans have been made as to what sort of buildings will be constructed on the properties, he said.

William H. Sexton, city traction attorney and now a special attorney on subway construction, said subway engineers will check the condition of buildings along the right of way as the work progresses. Accurate checks on the condition of foundations can be made by means of a seismograph, which records vibrations, he explained.

Guard Against Property Damage.

Subway officials asserted that every precaution is being taken to protect property along the lines of construction against damage.

Whether the city is responsible for damages caused by the subway construction is disputed. Many property owners along the routes have joined to form the Property Owners' Committee on Subways for Mutual Protection.

In the event of damage to property, the committee will aid in fixing responsibility. Members of the committee pay dues amounting to $2 per foot of frontage plus 1-5 of 1 per cent of the assessed valuation of their property, excluding the land.

Poland Given Credit to Buy American Cotton, Copper

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—The Export-Import bank extended today a $6,000,000 credit to Poland for the purchase of American cotton and copper. The loan is guaranteed by the National Economic Bank of Warsaw and is repayable within nine months, according to Warren Lee Pierson, head of the Export-Import bank. He said that approximately $2,000,000 of the loan already has been allocated for purchases of cotton and that future conference would be held to determine the allocation of the balance.

CHICAGO BANK TOPS LIST FOR 1938 EARNINGS

Chicago's Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, which ranks fifth among the nation's banks on the basis of deposits, had the largest profits for 1938 of any bank in the country, a survey of bank reports disclosed yesterday.

The Continental's net income available for common stock amounted to $14,790,518, or $9.86 a common share.

Net income of the Chase National of New York, whose deposits are the highest of any bank and top the Continental's by nearly a billion dollars, was $300,000 less than the Chicago bank's net income. The Continental's net income before provision for preferred dividends was $15,565,518.

Bank of America Second.

Chase's earnings were in third place, about $70,000 less than net income of Bank of America of California. Bank of America's gross earnings, however, were more than twice the Continental's gross earnings, although net income was smaller than the Continental's.

These comparisons of leading banks' 1938 earnings are available now after extensive studies by accounting experts of the sketchy reports actually issued by most banks. But the comparisons were not available early in January when the banks reported, because bank earnings reports lack uniformity and seldom carry an ordinary statement of income, such as industrial companies issue.

Accounting Systems Differ.

What is "net earnings" to one bank may not be considered as such by another. A simple bank income statement on operations is the exception.

Of the country's fifteen largest banks, three did not issue an annual report to their stockholders for 1938. Only three banks reported at all on the amount of their gross earnings.

Only two of the fifteen, the Continental Illinois of Chicago and the First National of New York, published income statements in substantially the form officially required by the controler of the currency. All national banks are required to prepare for the controler a detailed earnings report in a prescribed form. State banks belonging to the federal reserve system must report in the same manner to the federal reserve authorities.

What Reports Might Show.

But when it comes to telling their stockholders and the public, most banks do not give out even a skeleton income statement showing main classifications. If banks did use the main headings of the controler's form in telling their stockholders about operations, they could issue an income statement with seven items, as follows:

1. Gross earnings from operations.
2. Operating expenses.
3. Net operating earnings [item 1 minus item 2].
4. Recoveries and profits on securities sales.
5. Total, item 3 plus item 4.
6. Losses and depreciation on securities.
7. Net income [item 5 minus item 6].

For 1938 all national banks used the above form plus detailed breakdowns of each item in reporting to the controler. None of the first fifteen banks, however, used the form, with or without breakdowns, in reporting to stockholders. The reports to stockholders by the Continental of Chicago and the First of New York, however, were closest to the form required by the controler.

Some banks told only the amount of their net income, with no other information. Others, instead of issuing reports, simply sent out press releases from which figures had to be culled here and there, because no income statement was given.

In the case of some banks, information in annual reports was orally supplemented by remarks of officers

STOCKS FINISH WEEK'S TRADING IN HAPPY MOOD

List Extends Upturn of Preceding Day.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Stocks ended the week on a cheerful note today as the list extended yesterday's advance. Gains ran from fractions in the majority of issues to as much as 2 point. Heavy industrial shares were the best performers.

Attendance in the brokerage houses was smaller than it has been on recent Saturdays, but the number of orders executed was fair for an abbreviated session. Total volume amounted to 486,160 shares, compared with 582,530 on Saturday, last week.

Practically all groups finished with gains, although in many cases the changes were regarded as insignificant. Of a total of 588 issues that saw action 376 advanced, 76 declined and 136 closed at yesterday's levels.

Prices Best In First Hour.

Stocks reached their best levels in the first hour on a turnover of 260,000 shares. Demand slackened thereafter and fractions were chipped off the early gains. Not much ground was given up but the finish was dull.

Wall street continued to fasten its eyes on the storm raised in Washington over the country's foreign policy, but observers were of the opinion that the only price making news consisted of advices to the effect that steel operations next week will rule unchanged from the current week.

Bethlehem set the pace for the steel shares, closing with a profit of $1.25 after showing a gain at point in the sessions of over 2 points. A small fraction was the best that United States Steel could do. Continental was up more than a point in a thin market. Fractional advances were registered by Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube.

Utility Shares In Demand.

Utility stocks met with good buying, but gains in most cases did not exceed fractions. Columbia Gas and Electric had one of the best turnovers in the list at a slightly higher price.

Railroad shares followed the industrial and utility shares into higher ground, but their advances were small. Gains of less than a point were made by Atchison, New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, Illinois Central, and Great Northern.

Westinghouse Electric was one of the more volatile issues, finishing 2¼ points higher. J. I. Case spurted 2 points on a single sale. Sears-Roebuck came forward briskly to close with a gain of 1¾ points.

Other good gains were contributed by Du Pont, up 1½; Monsanto Chemical, 1½; Loews, 1¼; International Nickel, 1; Safeway Stores, 2; and Union Carbide, 1 point.

PRICE OF MAY CORN DECLINES BELOW 50 CENTS

Liquidation by a few holders of corn futures carried the May delivery a fraction of a cent a bushel under the 50 cent level on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. All options declined ⅜ to ½ cent to the lowest level since Nov. 10. Wheat was easier in sympathy with corn, and closed ⅛ cent a bushel lower.

Speculative interest in the wheat market was limited. A small amount of short covering attributed to Chicago operators caused a fraction of a cent rally from the low price. Brokers paid little attention to reports that 500,000 bushels of Pacific coast hard winter wheat had been sold for shipment to Vladivostok.

The American sale of cash wheat in the Siberian port had some effect on Liverpool early, but the English market eased later on the slow United Kingdom demand for cash grain and expectations of large world shipments. Closing Liverpool trades were ¼ to ⅝ cent lower. Winnipeg reported trading was unusually light with futures closing unchanged to ⅛ cent lower.

FARMERS FLOUT AAA WARNINGS; RAISE MORE PIGS

Regard Nation as Able to Absorb Supply.

Farmers apparently are heedless of the warnings that they may eventually create a situation similar to that in 1933, when the Agricultural Adjustment administration killed millions of pigs and breed sows to curb the output of pork. Most hog raisers are planning to increase pig production during the next few months at the fastest rate in many years.

Private surveys indicate that the increase may be even larger than that predicted by the department of agriculture in its last crop report. The bureau placed the number of sows bred for farrowing next spring at 8,238,000 head, an increase of 21 per cent over the number that farrowed during the spring of 1938. The pigs from these sows will be marketed for slaughter mostly during next fall and winter.

Charge Alarms Hurt Market.

Many leading hog raisers selling stock in the Chicago market during the last few days asserted the alarm being spread by the AAA is harmful to the market. In their opinion the situation confronting the market for next fall and winter is being greatly exaggerated.

Farmers say they are mindful of the fact that a huge crop of hogs may mean lower prices next fall and winter, and that the decline may be sufficiently sharp to force the price of hogs relatively low compared with corn. However, they refuse to become panicky by warnings from the AAA, and as long as the ratio is as favorable as it has been the last few months they intend to increase production.

Slaughter Supply Smaller.

With farmers holding back more available supplies of slaughter stock the Chicago stockyards available supplies were reduced last week.

Prices advanced unevenly 5 to 20 cents. Only pigs failed to score a gain. The week's average hog price at $7.65 was highest for any full week since the middle of November and only 55 cents below the corresponding period in 1938.

Other live stock was uneven during the week. Beef steers closed steady to 25 cents lower. Yearlings were mostly steady. Beef cows ruled strong to 25 cents higher. Most hefers made gains of 25 cents.

A sensational rise swept calves up 75 cents to $1.00 in six days. Stockers and feeders were weak.

Aged sheep advanced to a new high for the season during the week, old ewes reaching $5.00.

AAA HINTS NEW PLAN TO REMOVE FOOD SURPLUSES

Seeks Cheaper Prices to Increase Consumption.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—Officials of the Agricultural Adjustment administration are seriously considering a program of coöperation with private business to eliminate surplus foodstuffs rather than by compulsion.

The idea is to encourage private business to reduce profit margins on surplus foods in order that consumption might be increased among the low income groups, and at the same time reduce farm surpluses.

Agriculture department officials say that such a program is merely in the nebulous stage and is under discussion by the informal program committee of the AAA.

No Specific Plan Yet.

"There is no specific or concrete program about to be popped," said an official. He said experiments have been conducted on some item, particularly the citrus fruits. The additional experiments may be expected in particular areas.

He declared there has been a general misinterpretation of the program because of certain information published that a wide scale program is planned for the near future. He said this was very premature. The idea is being toyed with by AAA planners at the direct instigation of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

The secretary said recently that one of his pet ideas, the two-price system, has been abandoned. This would have allowed two prices on particular commodities, one price for low income groups and the higher regular price for other consumers.

"Laughs Off" the Scheme.

Wallace declared that he had only used the "two-price" phrase in a cynical mood in reply to a suggestion that a two-price system be applied to exports—a fixed price for home consumption and a lower price, with government subsidy, for foreign dumping. Rather than give foreigners the benefit of low prices he wanted them applied at home to aid the poor, Wallace said.

The two-price system, however, could still be made a part of the foodstuffs drive, and officials admit that it is still in the running.

The new program would ask producers, handlers, shippers, wholesalers, and retailers to reduce charges by increased efficiency in distribution to bring prices down for the benefit of consumers. No compulsion would be exercised. Nor would government subsidies be used unless absolutely necessary.

What the Experts Expect.

Agricultural economists foresee a two-fold result of the program: Reduce surpluses and improve the health of the low income group. They find the glut in the market is principally in those foodstuffs which have a high nutritional value and for which there is a flexible demand.

There is one main objection to the plan and that is that it will not relieve the two main surplus problems: Wheat and cotton.

Economists have found that there is little room for increasing consumption of wheat, which is now considered one of the lowest priced foods. Cotton, of course, is out of the realm of foodstuffs, and besides, the economists are at a loss to find means for increased everyday consumption.

There are broad possibilities in dairy products, vegetables, fruits and meats, the experts find.

Lumber Defects and Blemishes.

Last Sunday we mentioned the various terms relating to defects and blemishes to be looked for when buying southern pine. Other types of pine also have their peculiar faults.

Holes: These defects may extend partially or entirely through the piece of lumber and result from any cause. Standards for grading set up by the industry require that when holes are permitted their size shall be given.

Imperfect manufacture: This item means defects or blemishes that have resulted from the manufacturing process at the mills.

Knots: These defects are classified according to size, form, quality, and occurrence. The Southern Pine association lists fourteen varieties of knots.

Pitch: This is an accumulation of resin in the wood cells in an irregular patch.

A pitch pocket is a well defined opening between rings of annual growth, usually containing, or which has contained, more or less pitch, either solid or liquid. Bark may also be present in the pocket. Pitch pockets are rated as to extent and size.

Pitch streaks are well defined accumulations of pitch in a more or less regular streak.

The result was that to find the 1938 net incomes of banks and place the incomes on a comparable basis, it was necessary to "work backwards." This is done by taking the amount which a bank paid out in dividends during the year and adding to this any additions to surplus and undivided profits. If surplus and undivided profits had been reduced by expenses of operations or charge-offs, then the reductions were subtracted from the amount of dividends to determine net income.

Confusion Confounding.

The confusion which results from the present habits of haphazard reporting was illustrated this year by earnings statements of many big banks. Bank of America of California, for example, issued a press release saying that net earnings were $25,622,000 prior to adjustments. The "adjustments" amounted to deductions of more than $11,000,000—for depreciation, asset writedowns and bonuses to employés—leaving actual net income of $14,553,000.

Irving Trust company of New York reported a net profit before adjustments of $3,114,000, but "special charges" of $8,911,000 turned Irving's profit into an actual net loss of $5,797,000. Besides these special charges, reducing undivided profits and surplus, Irving used up an additional $5,000,000 reserve, which had been set up out of previous years' earnings, to write down asset values.

The National City Bank of New York in 1938 for the first time charged its federal deposit insurance assessment as an operating expense. In its annual report the bank showed net earnings, but no formal income statement.

SEC PLANS TO RESUME PROBE OF GIANNINI CONCERN TOMORROW

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The Securities and Exchange commission hopes to resume its proceedings against Transamerica corporation by Monday afternoon, O. John Rogge, counsel for the SEC, said today.

A. P. Giannini.

Transamerica, big California holding company of A. P. Giannini, branch banker, is charged with filing false and misleading financial statements and must show cause why its stock should not be delisted from exchanges. Resumption of SEC hearings awaits the filing of findings of fact in the federal District court on the unsuccessful petition of Bank of America, subsidiary of Transamerica, for an injunction against the SEC.

HOLLAND MONEY STRENGTHENS IN EXCHANGE TRADE

The Dutch guilder continued to strengthen yesterday, closing at 53.93 cents at New York. The gain for the day was 0.08 of a cent, and for the week 0.29 of a cent. The week's recovery marked a reversal of the downward trend which had prevailed since early in January.

One influence in the rise was said to be the recent increase in the price of raw rubber, benefiting Dutch rubber interests and quickening the demand for guilders.

The British pound sterling and the French franc were unchanged yesterday at $4.68 and 2.64½ cents, respectively. The Belgian belga was 0.015 cent higher, at 16.89½ cents, and the Swiss franc closed at 22.59 cents, up 0.005 cent.

Engagement of $732,000 of gold in Holland and $125,000 in England for shipment to the United States was reported by the New York Federal Reserve bank.

Commonwealth Edison was unchanged yesterday at 27⅝. Middle West was up ⅛ from Friday at 8. Heileman Brewing was up an equal fraction at 7¼, and Bendix Aviation was up ¼ at 26. Aviation and Transportation was off ⅛ at 3¼.

The volume of trading last week was 132,000 shares, compared with 207,000 shares in the preceding week and 116,000 in the corresponding week of 1938. During the period 193 issues were traded, of which 118 advanced, 35 declined, and 40 remained unchanged.

BUSINESS SIGNS POINT FORWARD, SURVEY REVEALS

Forecast Based on Study of January Results.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Net results of business in January augur well for the succeeding months, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States said today. It said that gains made during the latter part of 1938 were maintained in January and in some directions new progress was made.

"January is always a month of mixed tendencies," said the survey. "In some fields, it is normally a period of declining operations. In others it is usually a period of increasing activity. The checks which can now be made show that where an increase has been customary there has usually been an increase in January, 1939, and that where decreases are normal, they have frequently been on a smaller scale than usual.

Comparison is Favorable.

"Comparisons of January, 1939, with January, 1938, are favorable. The favorable comparisons range all the way from lumber production to most of the textiles. General indicators make it plain that the level of industrial production during the first month of this year has been well over the level for January, 1938."

The report said that the most favorable comparisons with a year ago were in eastern, southeastern, and north central regions. The least favorable were in the southwestern and western regions.

"During January there has been persistence of strength in the general business situation despite more threats abroad of international disturbance on a large scale," it said. "Such persistence can be accepted only as evidence of a strength in the current situation that should assure continuation of improvement, if new domestic handicaps are not imposed."

Expects Peak Level of 1937.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation predicted tonight that business this year may equal levels of 1937 when the peak of the recovery movement was reached.

If 1937 levels are attained, a national income of approximately $70,000,000,000 is in prospect. In 1937, national income exceeded $69,000,000,000, and preliminary indications are that in 1938 it dropped to approximately $62,500,000,000.

Knudsen Predicts Gain.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 4.—(AP)—President William S. Knudsen of General Motors corporation predicted today his corporation's business would be "25 to 33 1-3 per cent better this year than it was last year."

"And I think all business is going to be that way," Knudsen said. "There's nothing wrong with America."

PRICES OF BONDS FIRMER ON SMALL BUYING ORDERS

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Small buying orders were enough to keep the rise in the bond market going today under momentum of the recovery which continued most of the week. Some utility and rail issues—the center of the demand—extended previous gains a point or more.

The buying was attributed partly to hopes for resumption of industrial expansion as spring approaches. Expectations of improvement in relations between the government and private power interests seemed to have an influence in the rise of power company loans.

A higher level of rail trafic compared with a year ago, together with hopes for rail-aid legislation in this session of congress, favored the carrier liens. The week-end gains helped make it one of the best weeks the market has had in some time.

Stocks of Chicago Banks Are Firmer for Last Week

Chicago bank stocks were generally higher last week. Closing bids were from $7 lower to $5 higher, compared with those of a week earlier. The only loss was registered for shares of the Merchandise National bank, which dropped $7. Increases were made by the following: First National bank and Lake View Trust, $5; Northern Trust, Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust, Chicago Title and Trust, and Harris Trust and Savings, $2 each, and Terminal National bank, 50 cents.

WALL STREETERS' FAVORITE INDOOR SPORT GETS A RAP

Forecasting Reliable? Bah, Says Presley.

"The best scientific talent in this country, over the years in which serious study has been given to economic statistics, has failed to produce anything approaching a reliable system of business forecasting," he said in the corporations' annual report.

Thwarting efforts to read the business future, he asserted, is the "dominating influence of human emotion on economic movements" and such "fortuitous events as widespread strikes, national crop failures, wars, and legislation affecting our profit system."

How to Beat the Market.

As a formula for beating the market he laid down this rule: Buy stocks of sound companies in growing industries.

"The representative wealth accumulated in this country over the past generations is attributable essentially to investment in companies with long term potentialities," he said. "Unfortunately the multitude of business forecasting devices in circulation has turned too many people away from straight, old-fashioned thinking and converted them to the belief the easiest and largest profits in common stock investment can be made through the employment of such devices."

Earnings as a Guide.

Earnings in a single year, he held, are no guide to share values.

"The only fundamental basis of valuation," he said, "is estimated future earnings over a reasonable period of time, averaging good and bad years alike."

The corporation reported it had net assets at the end of 1938 totaling $18,237,851, compared with $16,022,676 at the close of 1937. Assets were equal to $6.19 a share on the capital stock against $4.80 at the end of 1937.

INDUSTRY FAILS TO MAKE USUAL SEASONAL GAINS

forts were made to find out how England and France are paying for planes bought in the United States. President Roosevelt said they must pay cash.

Suspicions arose that some roundabout method of arranging credit, possibly involving the dollar stabilization fund, had been used. Secretary Morgenthau denied the fund had been used to help France.

Associated Press Index.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity declined to 89.1 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. A week earlier it was at 90.3 per cent and a year ago it was 70.2 per cent. The index, with its seasonably adjusted components, compared as follows:

	Last wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.
Automobile prod.	82.1	88.7	60.5
Steel mill act.	70.9	68.7	41.2
Cotton mfg act.	104.7	109.1	78.4

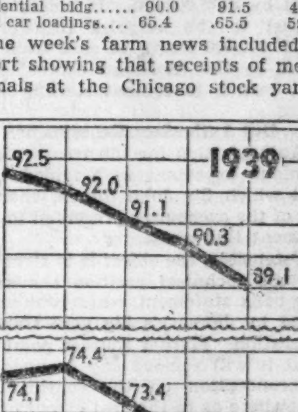
Total car loadings	65.4	.65.5	59.4

The week's farm news included a report showing that receipts of meat animals at the Chicago stock yards in January were the smallest for a January in fifty years—912,000 head.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and shows the corresponding activity a year ago (1929-'30 average equals 100).

It was learned that federal farm officials plan to give back to growers 4,000000 bales of cotton stored as security for federal loans, if congress approves. These officials said there is a shortage of good cotton for export and manufacturing purposes. They said the plan would solve this problem and help cut the cotton surplus. Farmers would be required to sell the 4,000,000 bales and cut the 1939 plantings by the same amount.

Farmers Flail Federal Plans.

At a senate agriculture committee hearing, farmer witnesses said federal crop curtailment has reduced yields and prices to such an extent that farmers face a new wave of mortgage foreclosures.

Additional reports covering December and the year 1938 were issued. Chicago business in December was reported to have been the best for any month in nearly a year and a half. The National industrial conference board said employment in the nation gained 0.3 per cent, or 174,000 jobs, in December, leaving 9,952,000 unemployed.

The United States Steel corporation reported it had a loss of $7,755,914 in 1938, compared with a profit of $94,930,836 in 1937. Its fourth quarter profit was $4,394,454, compared with a $5,847,791 loss in the third 1938 quarter.

Du Pont Earnings Decline.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.'s 1938 profit was $50,190,827, nearly thirty-eight million dollars less than in 1937, a preliminary report said. The Illinois Bell Telephone company reported its 1938 profit declined to $11,036,479 from $13,207,545 in 1937. However, it said there was a pronounced upward trend after the first half of 1938.

A brokerage house issued a report showing that the market value of 100 representative common stocks fell $1,412,799,000, or 7.4 per cent, in January. The decline was said to be the sharpest since the preceding March.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—I feel it is only proper for me to express the satisfaction of many of my friends, as well as myself, for the clear, helpful New York stock transactions reports, showing the 1938-'39 high and low, the dividend rate, sales, etc.

They surely are as clear as a bell, and at a glance we see all: Dow-Jones, many writeups, reports of transactions, etc. THE TRIBUNE has many new readers due to your complete, clear, and helpful work. You deserve much credit and thanks.

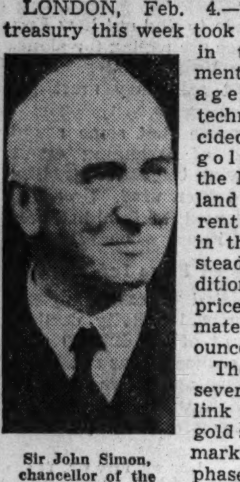
BRITAIN TAKES ANOTHER STEP TO MANAGE MONEY

Method Is Revaluation of Its Gold Stocks.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The British treasury this week took another step in the development of managed currency technique. It decided to revalue gold stocks of the Bank of England at the current market price in the future instead of the traditional "parity" price of approximately $21.25 an ounce.



Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer.

The maneuver, severing the last link with the old gold standard and marking a new phase in the evolution of the British monetary system, involves the writing up of the bank's gold holdings by $475,000,000. It comes as a sequel to the surprise transfer of $1,750,000,000 worth of gold from the bank to the exchange control fund last month to combat sterling gamblers.

Bill Authorizes Experiment.

Authorization for the treasury's ingenious expedient is provided in a bill which Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, presented to parliament this week.

Ostensibly, the object is to strengthen the technical position shown by the bank statement, which was weakened by January's big gold transfer operation. Market sources point out that it will remove any grounds for misconception on the continent or elsewhere as to the real extent of the backing behind sterling, which nominally has been understated by undervaluation of the gold coverage.

Deny Influence on Pound.

British authorities this week insisted that the revaluation policy did not involve stabilization or inflation of the pound from the current level. Under the present arrangements a paper profit of $475,000,000 will be held as a reserve by the exchange fund.

The decision to write up gold stocks had a stimulating effect on the gilt edged and gold markets. Some observers saw behind the treasury's move to strengthen the props under the pound a bid to encourage business in the London market coincident with launching a drive for much needed expansion of export trade.

YOUR INCOME TAX.

[This is the first of a series of articles on your personal income tax. These are written in response to numerous income tax questions that have been received by the Investors' Guide in recent weeks. Our aim in this series is to let you know whether you should pay an income tax, and if so, to explain how to figure it.]

WHO MUST FILE RETURN?

1. Any one who had gross income in 1938 of $5,000 or more. Gross income includes all income except life insurance benefits, gifts received, tax-free interest and certain other items. Exactly what is and is not included in gross income will be explained in a later article of this series.

2. Any single person or married person not living with husband or wife whose net income in 1938 was $1,000 or more.

3. Any married person living with husband or wife who had net income of $2,500 or more in 1938.

The term "net income" means gross income less deductions allowed for such items as interest paid, certain taxes, charitable contributions, losses on securities sales, and uncollectible debts. Just what deductions are allowed will be explained in a subsequent article.

HOW TO MAKE RETURN?

Get blanks for "individual income tax return" from the bureau of internal revenue. Those with a 1938 net income of more than $5,000 must use form 1040. Those with net income less than $5,000 use form 1040A.

You must make out your return in duplicate and file the original and a duplicate copy with the internal revenue bureau. The penalty for failing to file a duplicate is a $5 fine.

WHEN AND WHERE TO FILE?

Your return must be in the office of the internal revenue bureau on or before March 15. Your actual income tax must be paid in full when the return is filed or in four equal instalments: the first by March 15, and the others by June 15, Sept. 15 and Dec. 15.

"DON'TS" IN FILING.

Don't prepare your return without reading instructions or without doing a careful, thorough job. Care will save you money. The revenue bureau says that one of the most common errors is that taxpayers pay too much.

Don't procrastinate. Get your blanks soon and begin to figure.

Don't destroy notes used in figuring your tax. You may want them later.

Don't omit explanations, if they are needed to make your return clear.

[The second article on "Your Income Tax" will appear Thursday.]

STAPLES PRICES ARE IRREGULAR IN LAST WEEK

Gains and Losses About Equally Divided.

Gains and losses were divided among commodity futures last week. Wool tops, coffee, rubber, cocoa, copper, lead, and zinc finished the week at higher levels than a week ago. Losses were recorded by sugar, hides, and tin. The Dow-Jones index of eleven commodity futures closed at 47.01, compared with 47.09 on the preceding Saturday.

Rubber futures were among the biggest gainers, advancing 0.51 to 0.52 cent a pound for the week. Cocoa climbed 0.24 to 0.38 cents a pound, and lead was up 0.18 to 0.24 cent.

Sugar Contracts Decline.

Domestic sugar contracts dipped 0.04 to 0.05 cent a pound under levels of the preceding week. The world futures were off 0.01 to 0.08 cent. Hide futures closed 0.12 to 0.14 cent a pound under closing quotations of the preceding Saturday.

An advance in the price of export copper cheered metal traders. Final quotations yesterday placed the price at 10.23 cents a pound, compared with 10.07 cents a week earlier. Domestic copper continued unchanged at 11.25 cents.

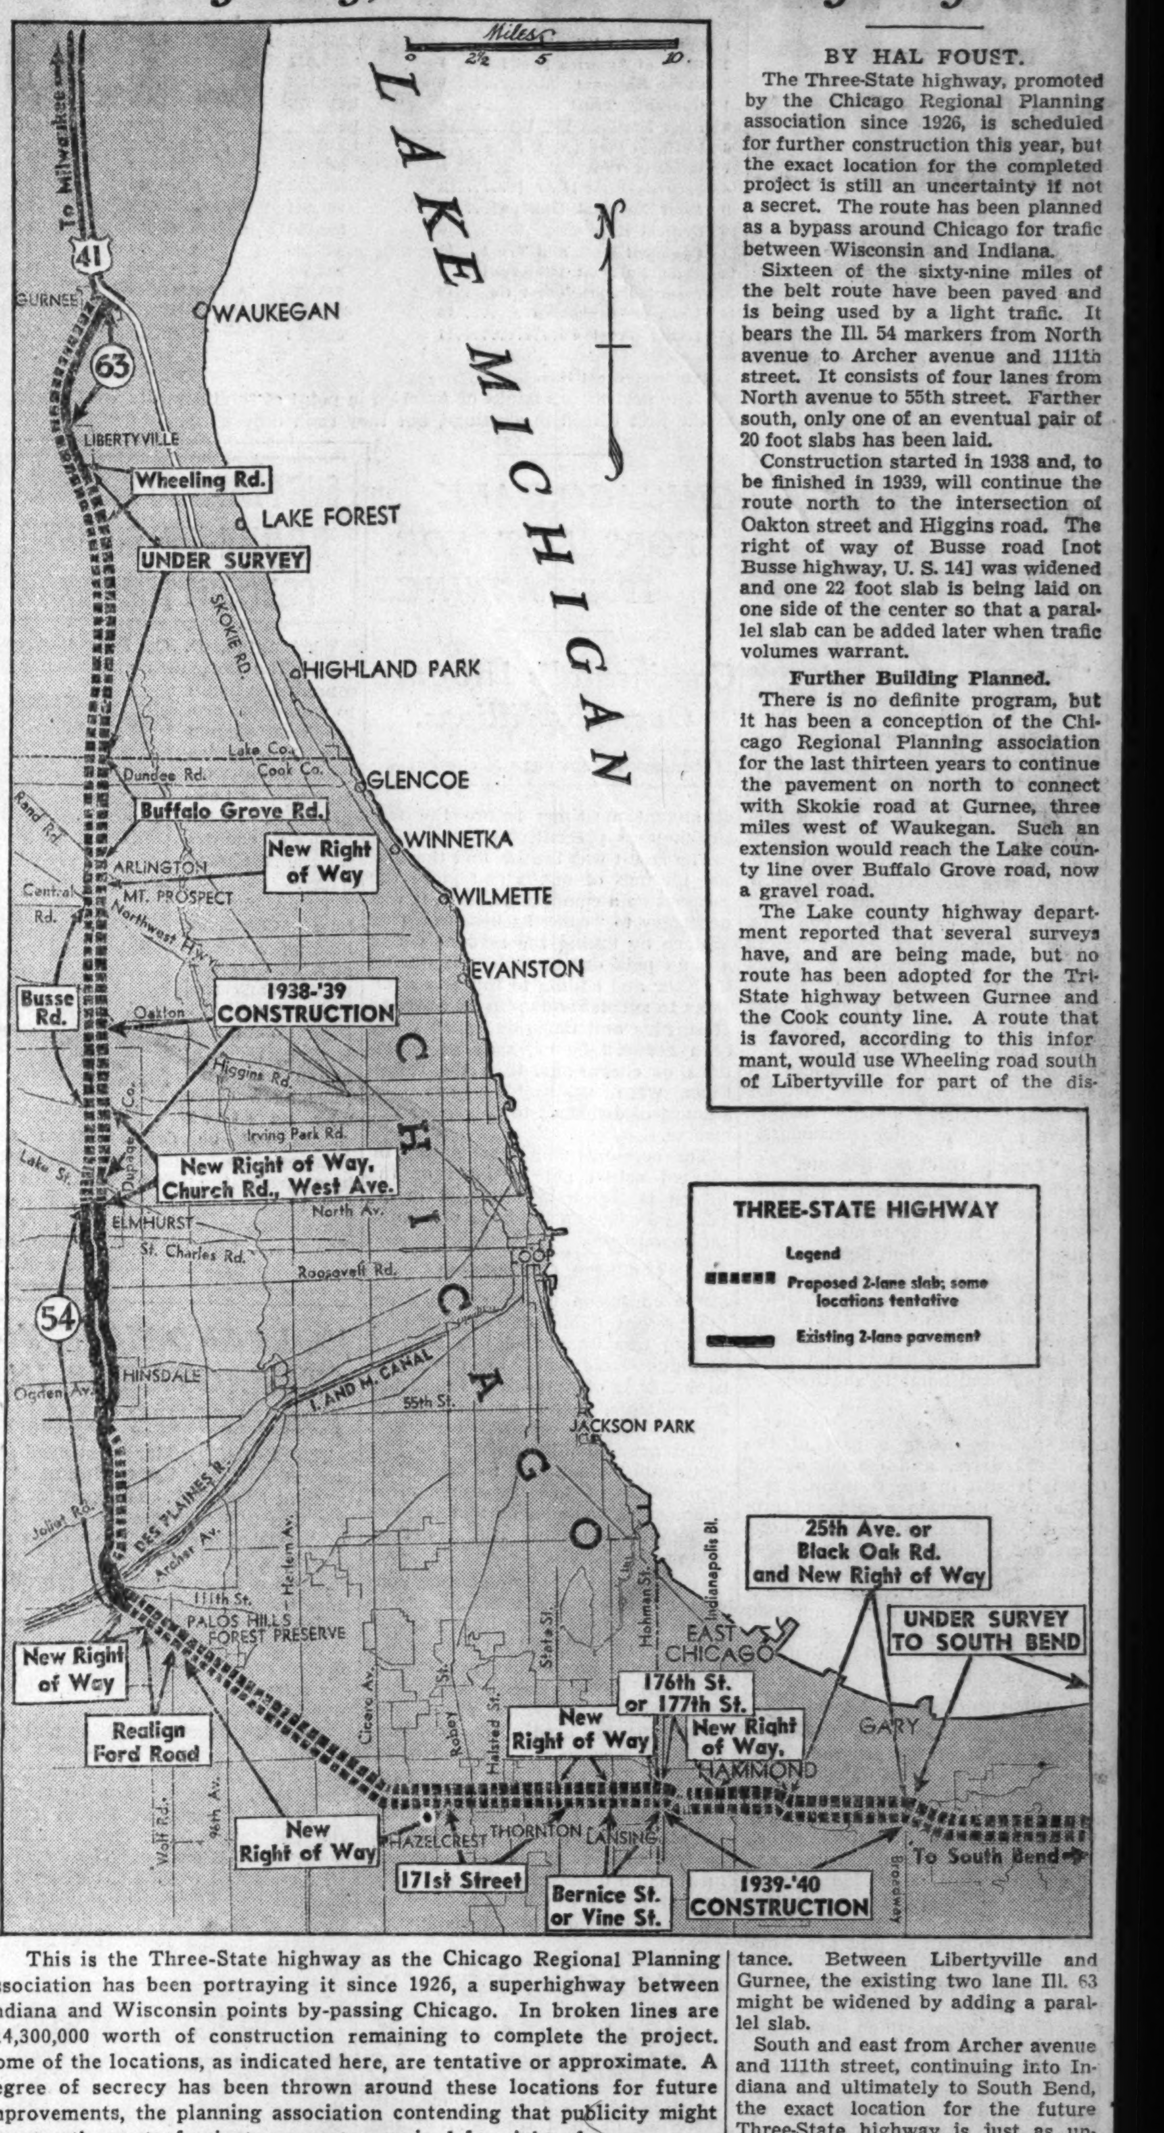
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Secrecy Veils 1939 Work on Tri-State Highway; Planned as Chicago By-Pass



BY HAL FOUST.

The Three-State highway, promoted by the Chicago Regional Planning association since 1926, is scheduled for further construction this year, but the exact location for the completed project is still an uncertainty if not a secret. The route has been planned as a bypass around Chicago for trafic between Wisconsin and Indiana.

Sixteen of the sixty-nine miles of the belt route have been paved and is being used by a light trafic. It bears the Ill. 54 markers from North avenue to Archer avenue and 111th street. It consists of four lanes from North avenue to 55th street. Farther south, only one of an eventual pair of 20 foot slabs has been laid.

Construction started in 1938 and, to be finished in 1939, will continue the route north to the intersection of Oakton street and Higgins road. The right of way of Busse road [not Busse highway, U. S. 14] was widened and one 22 foot slab is being laid on one side of the center so that a parallel slab can be added later when trafic volumes warrant.

Further Building Planned.

There is no definite program, but it has been a conception of the Chicago Regional Planning association for the last thirteen years to continue the pavement on north to connect with Skokie road at Gurnee, three miles west of Waukegan. Such an extension would reach the Lake county line over Buffalo Grove road, now a gravel road.

The Lake county highway department reported that several surveys have, and are being made, but no route has been adopted for the Tri-State highway between Gurnee and the Cook county line. A route that is favored, according to this informant, would use Wheeling road south of Libertyville for part of the distance. Between Libertyville and Gurnee, the existing two lane Ill. 63 might be widened by adding a parallel slab.

South and east from Archer avenue and 111th street, continuing into Indiana and ultimately to South Bend, the exact location for the future Three-State highway is just as uncertain. What is wanted is a straight line from this intersection on the south bank of the Des Plaines valley to approximately the intersection of Cicero avenue and the George Brennan highway. For a couple of these miles, the right of way of Ford road, bounding the Palos Hills forest preserve, will be used. For the rest of the distance, there is no existing right of way.

Aimed at Indiana.

From Cicero avenue, it is planned that the highway will head due east into Indiana. The most likely location passing through Hazel Crest is 171st street and for the passing through Lansing, Bernice street or Vine street, according to the Chicago Motor club.

"We don't want to publish which of alternate routes we favor," said Robert Kingery, manager of the regional planning association, "because owners of real estate needed for right of way might jump their prices. Furthermore, the availability of right of way might be the determining factor in the selection of the route."

The same uncertainty or secrecy was encountered in Indianapolis, although, according to Mr. Kingery, the Hoosier highway department hopes to build from the Illinois line to Gary's Broadway in 1939 and '40. On this section, according to the motor club, a likely location would be 177th or an adjacent street in Hammond and 25th avenue or the north bank of the Calumet river in Gary. East of Broadway to South Bend, the Indiana highway department is making location studies.

Cost Put at $14,300,000

Mr. Kingery estimated that $14,300,000 is needed to complete the four lane route 185 miles long from Milwaukee to South Bend. This includes the cost of grade separations at railroads and important highway intersections.

In Indiana alone, it's a $7,900,000 job to carry the superhighway type of design from the Illinois line to South Bend. The first ten mile unit, as far east as Broadway, includes five railroad grade separations. These structures and the grading are expected to be started before next fall, the structures finished and the paving laid next year.

In Illinois, Kingery estimated that $6,400,000 worth of construction remains to finish the job. This he divided as follows: A separated four lane slab from North avenue the Libertyville, $2,700,000; a second two lane slab from Libertyville to Skokie road at Gurnee, $250,000; eleven grade separations, $1,100,000; second two lane slab from 55th street to Calumet Sag channel, $250,000, and a four lane divided pavement from this channel to Stony Island avenue, $2,100,000.

This is the Three-State highway as the Chicago Regional Planning association has been portraying it since 1926, a superhighway between Indiana and Wisconsin points by-passing Chicago. In broken lines are $14,300,000 worth of construction remaining to complete the project. Some of the locations, as indicated here, are tentative or approximate. A degree of secrecy has been thrown around these locations for future improvements, the planning association contending that publicity might increase the cost of private property required for right of way.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

HORN BLOWER.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—There is nothing more annoying than the actions of a selfish person. These case hardened souls push their way through life without consideration for the feelings of others. To give an example:

This morning at 10 o'clock a man driving a blue sedan parked across from St. Mary's church at 9th street and Wabash avenue. He immediately blew his horn—an exceptionally loud one—for about a half minute, attracting the attention of many persons. I went into church and after a while he gave another exasperating demonstration. Later, during the sermon, the same man—I almost said moron—blew the horn again for about a minute to the discomfort of the priest and the entire congregation.

What his purpose was in making all that unnecessary noise, I don't know, but I do know that if all persons were as inconsiderate life would certainly be unbearable.

A. R. H.

FOSTER AVENUE DELAYS.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Through trafic on Foster avenue is often held up by drivers making left hand turns against oncoming trafic at Ashland avenue and at Clark street and, as it is possible for cars to make their turns a block ahead I believe that it would reduce delay and long lines of cars if a no left turn sign were put on these corners. It would also speed up the trafic if cars would not park in the short block between these streets during rush hours.

TOM JOHNSON.

COPS SCATTER CINDERS.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—What do I see in Milwaukee the other day, but a policeman scattering cinders and ashes at icy intersections. If that's what a Socialist mayor stands for then I say let's have one in Chicago.

Seriously, Cook county seems to be the only part of the middle west that does not scatter cinders and ashes at intersections and icy hills. Instead they talk of superhighways and overpasses, when a little elbow grease would avert many accidents.

TRAVELING MAN.

CHICAGOANS DIG IN WEST.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—In connection with your article in Sunday's Tribune with reference to "World Record Pontoon Bridge" in Seattle, thought you would be interested in knowing that Bates & Rogers Construction corporation of Chicago has the contract for highway tunnel shown in the foreground of your picture. I thought you would like to have known of this earlier to give a little color to your article.

A. FLETCHER MARSH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Five more persons were killed in trafic accidents in Great Britain last year than in 1937 and 499 more were injured, according to the report of the ministry of transport.

Fatalities last year totaled 6,595, compared with 6,590 a year earlier, and the injured numbered 226,854, against 226,355 in 1937.

The increase in total casualties, killed or injured, was .22 per cent However, the number of mechanically propelled vehicles in Great Britain increased by 6 per cent in the same period, which indicates a reduction in the number of casualties per vehicle.

Fewer persons were killed last year on roads which had no speed limit than in 1937. The figures are 2,622, against 2,695. Fewer bicyclists were killed—1,392, compared with 1,492—but more pedestrians lost their lives—3,023, compared with 3,895 in 1937.

The number of fatalities in the metropolitan area of London dropped from 1,057 to 958.

The killed and injured on Britain's roads in the last 11 years total 2,347,173, more than 120,000 in excess of the total British casualties in the world war.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Manufacturing improvements and new sales methods were discussed by W. S. Zehrung, president of the Pennzoil company, at a meeting in Chicago last week of representatives of company branches and distributing organizations.

The Firestone Tire and Rubber company is introducing a new Champion tire. The product, the company said, is a result of years of experience and laboratory research. It is streamlined in appearance and features a new development known as the gear grip tread. Its cord construction is said to have greater blowout protection than has been previously attained.

William J. McKeown, who sold the first pneumatic tires for the B. F Goodrich company in Chicago in 1910, has been awarded a pin by the company marking the completion of his 20 years of service.

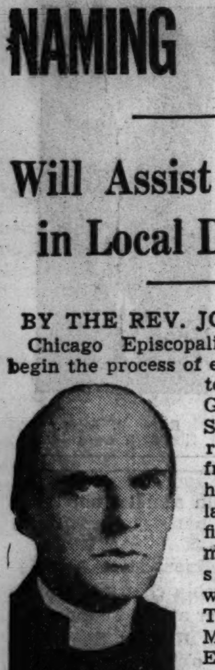
DEMOCRATS FACE FACTIONAL FIGHTS

EPISCOPALIANS TO OPEN TASK OF NAMING BISHOP

Will Assist Stewart in Local Diocese.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago Episcopalians this week begin the process of electing a bishop to assist Bishop George Craig Stewart who is recuperating from a serious heart attack of last summer. The first step will be made at a diocesan convention which assembles Tuesday at St. Mark's church, Evanston, when under church laws the bishop asks the convention to elect an assisting bishop. Summer or early fall probably will see the process completed.



Bishop Stewart.

The lengthy procedure then calls for a special election convention not earlier than sixty days, if the convention approves Bishop Stewart's request. After the convention elects a bishop, then a majority of all bishops of the American Episcopal church and a majority of all standing committees of all dioceses must give formal consent to the election. This requires six or eight more weeks. The elaborate ordination and consecration service then follows.

Choice of Two Kinds.

Members of the convention have not been told which of two kinds of assisting bishop will be requested by Bishop Stewart, coadjutor or suffragan. The former has right of succession at Bishop Stewart's death or resignation. A suffragan bishop merely assists and, as a suffragan, cannot succeed although he may be elected to succession by the diocese.

It is believed by most members of the diocese that Bishop Stewart will ask for a suffragan. Lay members of the diocese do not have the right to vote on nominees, but have veto power. However, it is expected that the newly formed Laymen's association of the diocese, headed by Austin J. Lindstrom, will exercise strong influence over the voting of the clergy, who alone have the right to elect under local diocesan laws. In nearly all other dioceses, clergy and laity vote concurrently for their bishops.

Spokesmen for lay groups are urging the clergy to elect a clergyman from Chicago to the office. Local clergymen most frequently mentioned are Dr. Dudley S. Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's church, 1434 North Dearborn parkway, Dean Gerald G. Moore of St. Luke's procathedral, the Rev. Walter K. Morley, head of social service work of the diocese, Dr. Harold Holt of Grace church, Oak Park; Dr. Harold G. Bowen of St. Mark's church, Evanston, and the Rev. Carlton Story of the Church of the Mediator, Morgan Park.

Detroit Dean to Speak.

Some observers have pointed to tomorrow night's guest speaker at the preconvention dinner at Hotel Sherman as a probably nominee, the Very Rev. Kirk B. O'Farrall, dean of St. Paul's cathedral, Detroit, Mich. Other principal speakers at the dinner will be Bishop Stewart and Bishop James E. Freeman of Washington, D. C. Bishop Freeman is tonight's speaker at the Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall.

This year's convention will present one innovation. Convention sessions instead of being held in a church will be held in Evanston Country club. The opening service at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning will be in St. Mark's church. Tuesday night a youth mass meeting will be addressed by Bishop H. P. Lyman Abbott of Lexington, Ky., former rector of St. Chrysostom's church.

More than five hundred young people of the Luther League of Chicago will attend the 8th national convention of the Augustana synod Luther league which opens on Wednesday at Omaha, Neb. "The Open Door" is the theme of the conference. Chicago leaders participating in the four-day program include the Rev. Frederick Schiotz, secretary for the student service commission, who will conduct two seminars on campus work; the Rev. Joshua Oden, pastor of Irving Park Lutheran church, and the Rev. Carl E. Lund-Quist,

Proceeding with the formation of a permanent youth organization of the Chicago round table of Christians and Jews, a second dinner meeting will be held Wednesday at the Y. W. C. WEST CHICAGO PLANS SHARE IN CENTENARY FETE

To Give Re-enactment of Famous Debate.

West Chicago having been the scene of the only Lincoln-Douglas debate in Du Page county, reënactment of the historic event is planned for July 29 as a feature of the Du Page county centennial celebration. Allan Wheeler, 405 Main street, West Chicago, contends the time is also appropriate for emphasizing the community's present day activities and its potential possibilities.

"The outstanding achievement in recent years," said Mr. Wheeler, "is the development of the city park, an expansive recreational ground embracing many playground facilities, located in the northwest section of the city. According to the Chicago Regional Planning association, West Chicago ranks first in park acreage among cities in fifteen northern Illinois counties, with 97 acres devoted to that purpose.

Plan Sewage Plant Park.

"Plans are being formulated to landscape the ten acres surrounding the new sewage disposal plant. Specifications include an extensive reforestation program, flagstone walks, drives, and hedges. West Chicago was the first city to undertake the construction of a new sewage plant following the state investigation of river pollution. City Engineer George Nelson of Glen Ellyn designed the plant.

"For several years a small improvised library located in the city council chambers with a part time attendant served the community, the tax revenue derived yearly being inadequate to maintain an independent one. This income was set aside over a period of years and was recently used to establish an extensive circulating library located in its own building on Main street. Miss Catherine Vergie, a graduate of North Central college in Naperville, devotes her entire time as librarian.

School Ranked High.

"The local Community High school with an enrollment of 276, an accredited institution, has consistently received the state's highest ranking. C. C. Byerly, superintendent of schools, revised the system in the elementary schools along the lines of efficiency until that department has also been given a very high rating.

Organized Musical Women to Hold Business Meeting

The organized women musicians will meet Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Woman's Symphony room of the Auditorium building. There will be a business meeting preceding a musical program.

Chicago Croats Find Joy in Songs and Dances of Native Land; Care for Their Needy and Sick

Various nationality organizations of the west side help provide relief for the needy and cultural and educational service among their own people. This is the second story in a series telling the purpose and work of several of these clubs and associations.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

When the factory whistle blows quiting time and the trading of the day is over, the people of the city, released from the standardized rôle of working for a living, become individuals again. That is the time when lights are turned on in the flat building at 1726 South Racine avenue, when bright skirts flash in the intricacies of the kolos and tamburitza gives out its delicate haunting song.

Ivan Jurinic.

The tamburitza plays a history book of melody, the song of the Cratian people who lost their kingdom as far back as the tenth century and have adjusted themselves to rule under Italy, under Germany, Turkey, Napoleon of France, under Austro-Hungary, and since the world war have been a section of Yugo-Slavia. And the Croatian-Americans of all their varied heritage seem to want to remember most how to dance and sing.

Have Seven Organizations.

Not one organization, but seven, provide the approximately 40,000 Croatian people on Chicago's west side with the drama, music and literature that means their recreation and social life. Transplanted into the congested 18th street district where snow splattered with soot hugs the curbstone, are May time scenes from that corner of Yugo-Slavia where the Danube bends toward the sea.

The Croatian social rooms at 1802 North Racine is the meeting place for the Nada Dramatic society, Joseph Horvat, president; the Tamburitza society Shar Planina, Martin Kapudya, director; the Social Club Nada for young people, John Semenich, president, and the Educational Workers' society, Joseph Matonickin, business manager.

The Nada Dramatic society, organized fifteen years ago, has made 200 appearances, traveling as far as Detroit and St. Louis, and giving plays of all countries and historic periods translated into the Croatian language.

Directed by Mr. Matonickin, with Ivan Jurinic, who is active in many of the clubs, as secretary, the group studies costuming and stage setting and is many times accompanied by the Tamburitza society.

The tamburitza, national instrument of the Croatian section of Yugo-Slavia, is much like the guitar in shape and native made instruments have inlaid mother of pearl work of delicate tints. Every Friday night these instruments are played as the Social Club Nada for young people holds classes in the kolos, the native dance which, translated, means circle.

The dancing school is free of charge to any one who wishes to learn the steps. The youth club was organized to take boys and girls off the streets and give them healthful fun under supervision.

The most ambitious project of the Educational Workers' society is the publication of a journal which serves as an announcement bulletin and educational treatise for members of all the clubs.

The fifteenth anniversary edition of this paper, the "Znanje," was printed in January. The editor is Theodore Cvetkov. Explanations of the plays being produced by the drama club are printed there, parts of informative lectures given in the neighborhood and book reviews.

Women Have Club.

For philanthropic work the wives of club members have organized a Croatian Woman's club which gives assistance in money and goods to needy families of the Croatian nationality. Active in this work are Mrs. Matilda Ludwig, Mrs. Mary Zuro, and Mrs. Caroline Welley.

The oldest Croatian singing society in America is the Zora, which was founded July 2, 1902, and has sixty-five mixed voices. Through Walter Aschenbrenner and the Chicago Symphonic choir, the society has been able to sing before large Chicago audiences and last summer made a concert tour of Jugo-Slavia.

The newly elected officers in this group are Marko Kirin, president; Vinko Kovacic, vice president; Joseph Vodovic, treasurer, and Frank J. Pavelin, secretary.

The Zora will open its thirty-seventh year of activity with a spring concert on May 14 in Pilsen Sokol hall, 1814 South Ashland avenue. Not only has the group studied Croatian melodies and folk songs but has brought operettas and operas by Croatian composers to the people throughout the United States. The Zora meets at 1802 South Racine avenue.

Smaller Singing Group.

A smaller group, which has been in existence for eight years, is the Singing Society Croatia which meets for rehersals in the St. Trinity church, 1843 South Throop street.

The organization, which includes most of the Croatian-Americans, is the Croatian Fraernal union which has thirty lodges on the west side. There are more than 100,000 members in the United States. About 8,000 are Chicago residents.

The lodges maintain an orphanage in Des Plaines, provide insurance for men who are unemployed because of sickness or accident and do widespread good cheer work at holiday time.

In describing the acceptance of the seven clubs' offerings to the people, Mr. Matonickin said, "We are not rich in money but we have great wealth." And by wealth he added the long list of men and women who study drama for the fun of it, who dance the kolos with the abandon of a people at last free, and who sing to the fine melody of the tamburitza and the smaller bisernica, which means pearl-like.

PARTY DIVIDED ON CANDIDATES IN COUNCIL TEST

Kelly Forces Out to Aid Incumbents.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

There will be Democratic fights of varying degrees in most of the twelve west side aldermanic contests. This became apparent last week as the sixty-three remaining aspirants for the twelve council seats chose up sides for the campaign that will reach its climax with the elections on Feb. 28.

In most cases the forces working for the reëlection of Mayor Kelly are also rooting for the return of the sitting aldermen to the council. The one west side exception is the 27th ward, where the Kelly faction is attempting to unseat the incumbent.

In at least ten of the wards supporters of State's Attorney Courtney in his race for the Democratic mayoral nomination are sponsoring aldermanic candidates against the regular organization choices. In several instances there are aldermanic candidates with the indorsement of the Republican ward organizations.

Party Lines Drawn.

Thus, while technically the aldermanic race is a nonpartisan affair, true to tradition, party lines have been sharply drawn and the council battles have become part and parcel of the mayoral fight.

Issues began to emerge from the babel of oratory as the contestants moved toward the home stretch. These revolved mainly about neighborhood considerations such as garbage removal, transportation, playgrounds, and the like.

The board of election commissioners began last week to hear objections that were made to the nominating petitions of 121 of the 366 candidates in the fifty wards. The board is expected to announce its rulings soon.

Twentieth—Peter Bagnuolo, a Courtney ward committeeman, loomed as the most important rival of Ald. William V. Pacelli, Republican, who has the support of the Kelly machine. Harry Teune, young law student and former Democratic senatorial committeeman, and Angelo Bagnole are the other candidates still in the race. The 20th ward includes the Pilsen and Midtown communities.

Twenty-first—The fight here is between Ald. Joseph F. Ropa, city hall choice, and Assistant State's Attorney John J. Phillips, a Courtney committeeman. Casimir F. Lutynski, an electrical salesman, is the only other candidate. Ald. Ropa's petitions have been challenged by Roman R. Stachnik. The 21st ward is in the Pilsen neighborhood.

Twenty-second—There is no Courtney candidate against Ald. Henry Sonnenschein. Anthony L. Goluzinski, the Republican ward committeeman, is one of three additional candidates. The others are Charles Miska and Edward Placek. Placek's petitions were challenged by William F. Kocourek, and Placek filed objections to those of Ald. Sonnenschein. The 22d ward takes in parts of the Douglas-Lawndale and Lawndale-Pulaski neighborhoods.

Twenty-third—Emil Zahradnik, another Courtney committeeman, is pitted against Ald. Joseph Kacena Jr., the regular Democratic choice. Frank S. Holly, a printer, and Joseph Berke are the other candidates. The 23d is also in the Douglas-Lawndale and Lawndale-Pulaski communities.

Twenty-fourth—Ald. Jacob M. Arvey, regular Democratic wheelhorse, is strongly intrenched here, but the Courtney faction has declared in favor of Irving J. Karlin. Leo E. Horwitz, a Republican, is the only other candidate. The 24th is in the Douglas-Lawndale community.

Twenty-fifth—Edward D. Buckley, a Courtney committeeman, is the most serious threat to Ald. James B. Bowler, regular Democratic committeeman. The other candidates are Samuel W. Alpert, Harry Caprio, and Roy R. Colangelo. Leo V. Roeder has challenged all but Ald. Bowler's petitions. The 25th ward includes parts of the Madison-Kedzie, Douglas-Lawndale, Lawndale-Pulaski, Midtown, and Pilsen neighborhoods.

Twenty-seventh—John J. Broderick Jr., the city hall choice whose nominating petitions were refused because they were not offered before 5 p. m. on the Jan. 24 filing deadline, has reappeared as a candidate against the Courtney-backed Ald. Harry L. Sain. Broderick obtained a mandamus writ ordering the election board to accept his petitions. John J. Moore, who has regular Republican support, is the only other candidate. Milton H. Miller and Frank Anderson have challenged Moore's petitions. The 27th takes in part of Garfield Park, Midtown, and Madison-Kedzie neighborhoods.

Twenty-eighth—Andrew G. Castor, a druggist, has Courtney support against Ald. George D. Kells, who has city hall backing. John Ciani Jr. is the only remaining candidate. John B. Mascarella, a candidate who withdrew, has challenged Ciani's petitions. The 28th is also in the Garfield Park, Midtown, and Madison-Kedzie sections.

Twenty-ninth—Joseph S. Gillespie, an associate of Public Administrator Martin J. O'Brien, Courtney stalwart,

DISCUSS TRANSIT IMPROVEMENTS FOR WEST TOWNS

Suburbs, Traction Line Agree in Part.

With a view to solving some of the transportation problems brought to the attention of the Illinois commerce commission through a complaint filed by officials of several west suburbs, a series of informal conferences have been conducted during the last three months. Suburban officials and the Chicago and West Towns Railways, Inc., have participated.

Improvements agreed upon by both of the communities and the railway company as needing immediate attention are:

Improvements Under Way.

Several of the items, together with other minor improvements, have already been undertaken by the Chicago and West Towns Railways, Inc.

The interior of one of the cars now in service on Lake street has been brightened with light colored paint and new lighting fixtures. The exterior of the car carries the color scheme of the new motor buses operated in the west suburbs by the traction company.

Through better power facilities the voltage on the trolley wire has been increased in some instances as much as ten per cent which makes available better lighting in the cars and faster acceleration.

Stop Spots Changed.

Where certain far side stops created a trafic hazard by interfering with the free movement of motor trafic across the intersection, they are to be abandoned and a study made of improved safety islands.

At the request of the traction company and the suburban representatives, the commerce commission assigned one of its transportation engineers to conduct the informal conferences.

James M. Slattery, chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, indicated that the conferences would prove beneficial and eventually result in the development of a comprehensive program of modernization and improvement. He said he hoped that whatever might be agreed upon in the informal conferences could be incorporated in an order of the commission which would not be subject to appeal by either party.

All ages, from 8 year olds who feel at home with a bunch of rusty nails in their pockets to the adolescent age when furniture is put in a room just to trip a fellow, will be considered through this, Boys' week, which commemorates the 29th anniversary of the Boy Scout movement.

BISHOP J. E. FREEMAN TO TALK TONIGHT AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Last fall the American Bankers' association, meeting in Houston, Tex., heard the Episcopal bishop of Washington, D. C., the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, utter a jeremiad against political pressures that were sapping the moral fibre of the nation and the lenient treatment of unAmerican doctrins. Tonight in Orchestra hall the Sunday Evening club will receive another message of similar import from the same source. "Beyond Patriotism" is the title and it will be Dr. Freeman's twenty-fifth address from this platform.

Bishop Freeman.

Bishop Freeman was for fifteen years an executive of the New York Central railroad. Under the guidance of the Rt. Rev. Henry C. Potter, then bishop of New York, he forsook business, turned to preaching, and after sundry pastorates in the middle west and the east he was finally consecrated Episcopal bishop of Washington, D. C., in 1923. From this episcopate he is enabled to carry on his ministry on an international scale since Washington cathedral is a center of worship for the foreign legations. Because of his association with successive occupants of the White House, Bishop Freeman is often referred to as "bishop of the presidents."

Service Club to Meet.

The Mount Sinai Hospital Junior Service club will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Morrison hotel to plan an intensive membership drive.

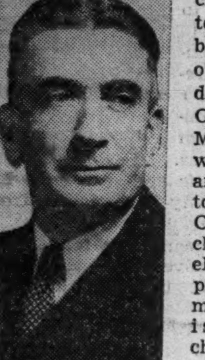
CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH SELECTS NEW MINISTER

Dr. Oswald McCall Comes from West Coast.

A new voice will be heard from the pulpit of New First Congregational church, Washington and Ashland boulevards, at 11 o'clock next Sunday morning. Dr. Oswald W. S. McCall, author, world traveler and former pastor of the First Congregational church of Berkeley, Cal., will preach his first message as minister of the church which has served Chicago Congregationalists since 1851.



Dr. Oswald W. S. McCall.

Welcoming Dr. McCall next Sunday will be the combined choir of 150 members who will sing, directed by George L. Tenney. Dr. William Lester will be at the organ. A reception for Dr. and Mrs. McCall will be held by the congregation Wednesday evening, Feb. 15, in Pilgrim hall of the church.

Ordained in Australia.

Dr. McCall, who succeeds Dr. Amos Morgan as the church leader, has appeared before Chicago audiences as guest lecturer for the Chicago Sunday Evening club. He was ordained in 1912 by the Methodist church of Australia, his boyhood home.

He has been pastor of the Berkeley, Cal., church since 1922. He was the summer preacher at City Temple, London, Eng., in 1924, 1929, and 1936. He is the author of the following books. "Cardinals of Faith," "The Stringing of the Bow," "Christ's Shining Way," "The Uses of Literature in the Pulpit," and "The Gods of Men." Dr. McCall served as chaplain of the National Council of Congregational churches in 1931 and spent 1936 in the British Isles.

The church which Dr. McCall will direct is one of Chicago's oldest. One of its charter members was Philo Carpenter, pioneer druggist, who came along the shores of Lake Michigan in a canoe, shipped in drugs, and started a thriving business when cholera was raging in Fort Dearborn. The women of the church took in the homeless during the Chicago fire. In 1910 the church, which was organized as the First Congregational, joined with the Union Park Congregational and took the name New First.

Invited in November.

An invitation was sent to Dr. McCall by Andrew R. Dole, chairman of the board and of the pastoral committee, on Nov. 28, and the invitation was accepted in December.

The church staf with whom Dr. McCall will work includes the following: Glenn A. Packer, director of field service; Adah A. Collins, church visitor; Gladys M. Greenlaw, director of girls' work; Walter Wright, director of boys' work; Albertine Bischoff, secretary; Mrs. Glenn A. Packer, parish assistant; Henry A. Hautau, clerk; Arthur R. Brooksbank, treasurer, and Martha M. Nickell, matron of girls' residence.

A House for $5,000

The small but very modern concrete home recently built by Mr. and Mrs. William J. Beck at 1900 Sycamore avenue, Homewood, is an illuminating answer to the question asked on all sides today: "Just how much house can I build for $5,000—or less?"

TEACHER QUITS AFTER 36 YEARS TO TEACH SELF

BertDeBoerAlsoHopes to Write Stories.

Last week Bert De Boer closed his desk at McKinley High school, 2040 West Adams street, and quit a 36 year teaching career so he could start to study.

Bert De Boer.

Mr. De Boer is quiting work but he is not retiring. He has bought a piece of lovely landscape in Zeeland, Mich., which he has wanted since boyhood. Armed with a rake, hoe and philosophy, and all the books he has wanted to read but didn't have time for and some ideas for short stories that he never had time to write, the veteran teacher will go to school by himself.

One of the most popular teachers at McKinley, Mr. De Boer graduated with his class. He was the division teacher of the January graduates from the time they were freshmen. When he stated his intention to retire last June, a delegation from the class begged him to remain until after commencement.

Started Teaching Early.

Mr. De Boer, who for five years has been head of McKinley's commercial department, started teaching in 1903 in a one room school near Grand Haven, Mich., three months after he was graduated from high school. He kindled the fire in the morning before he kindled interest in knowledge. He swept the floors at night.

He soon became principal of a two room school in Ferrysburg, Mich., and then went to Vriesland. That was one of his favorite schools because there he met the girl who became his wife and saw the farm that he has wanted to own ever since. The year after they were married, Mr. and Mrs. De Boer went to a business college in Ypsilanti, Mich., and a few years later returned to finish their college course.

To Chicago in 1924.

His career has taken him to the California Normal school in Pennsylvania and a high school in Monessan, Pa., and in 1924 he came to Chicago to teach for nine years at Herzl High school, the building now occupied by Herzl Junior college.

Mr. De Boer has had no discipline trouble in all his 36 teaching years. He says the answer is the use of imagination as well as text books. "Let's pretend" has been his preface to all realism. And many of his students became secretaries to important executives or salesmen in thriving factories. That was the way he taught them the A B C's of a business career.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 6.

It is always best to test seeds before sowing. Seeds can be tested by putting them between damp sheets of blotting paper, placed where it is warm. Home collected seeds should be placed in a bag and kept in a fairly cool place, away from the possible attacks of mice or vermin.

Tuesday, Feb. 7.

There is nothing more useful than a hotbed. It may have only a single sash or as many as desired. The cost is not excessive for a complete outfit—sash, frames, and all. A hotbed should be placed where the sun will reach it, be protected on the north, and water facilities should be at hand. Soil may be taken from the garden. The heat may be obtained from the fermentation of fresh manures alone or mixed with leaves, straw, or other material or an electric outfit may be used. Seeds that should be sown early may be efficiently cared for in a hotbed and later the seedlings transplanted into flats and the flats placed in a second frame. The seedlings may be potted and the pots plunged in the soil in the hotbed. A coldframe is indispensable for hardening off plants preparatory to planting in the garden, for storage during winter, and for many other purposes.

Wednesday, Feb. 8.

Trees and shrubs should be pruned. Keep the dead wood removed and the specimen or mass in shape. Old, rundown shrubs that are filled with wood are rejuvenated when surplus wood is removed and the new wood encouraged to develop. Old lilacs should be cut back, some of the oldest wood cut to the ground, or nearly so, to force new wood to grow. It will take two to three years for the plant to regain its beauty and freshness, but it will be better for it.

Thursday, Feb. 9.

A fine group of plants for those who rent their homes is found in the annual flowering plants. One can have a complete garden of flowers in one season. Consult a seed catalog and arrange the garden on paper before ordering. One reason for failure in growing annuals is too late sowing of the seeds; another reason is not sowing thick enough. Seeds are often sown too deep or the plants are not thinned at the proper time. Some annuals must be sown very early, for they require a long season before blooming. They should be sown in boxes or in the hotbed not later than March.

Friday, Feb. 10.

Among the annuals that should be sown early are the following: Petunia, phlox drummondi, thunbergia, verbena, pennisetum [fountain grass], lobelia, and centaurea. Soil is important when sowing seed indoors. The seedlings will do well in the average garden soil, but quite often it packs so hard it is impossible to remove the seedlings without injuring the roots. To overcome this condition, add about one-fourth well rotted cow manure and enough sand to prevent the soil from becoming too hard.

Saturday, Feb. 11.

House plants should be watched carefully at this season for insect attacks. The white fly can be controled by spraying with Black Leaf 40, diluted at the rate of one part to forty to fifty parts water. The mealybug can be knocked off the plants by syringing with water under pressure or by hand washing the leaves or by using a soft brush; the red spider can be eliminated by syringing frequently. Do not permit the house plants to become weak and have long, straggling stems. Cut these stems back to force a compact habit and turn occasionally to the light. Water intelligently.

SUBURBAN HOME BUILT FOR $5,000 CAN BE EXPANDED

Concrete First Floor Is Safe Money Saver.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

How much house can I build for $5,000? Not for $5,500 or $6,000, but for $5,000 or less?

This is a problem on which architects and builders are working hard the country over. And any individual solution of this problem is of interest to a vast number of people at the present time.

The owners are Mr. and Mrs. William J. Beck, and the home was designed and built to meet their own particular needs. At present, it has four rooms finished, with bath and shower; in the future, a second bedroom and bath will be completed on the second floor, making a five room home with two baths and a full basement at a cost of less than $5,000. Present estimates of the completely finished house place the cost between $4,700 and $4,800.

Higher in Some Cities.

The cost would run higher in some localities and cities. Quoting costs is perilous business, but the above estimates are present time estimates in the vicinity of Homewood.

Naturally, economies were practiced wherever these were compatible with sound construction.

FIRST FLOOR

A floor plan with an eye to the future! Now the room at right of entrance is used as a bedroom, but when a second bedroom and bath are completed on the second floor the closet will be knocked out, an archway substituted, and the space becomes a dining room. One bedroom is already finished on the second floor.

spirit. The house is built of concrete masonry, with exterior walls left exposed except for a coating of white cement paint. The interior walls were finished with an attractive, paneled insulating board, which eliminated the cost of plastering and interior decoration.

Money was saved again by merely painting the concrete first floor, and laying down rugs. This installation of a concrete first floor on precast concrete joists not only increases the fire safety of the dwelling, but provides a beamed ceiling in the basement, which needs no further decorating, but can be painted or stained for added decorative effect.

Planned for Future.

The floor plan is ingenious and practical and considers the future at the same time that it adapts itself to the present.

In brief, as it now stands, the home has a large living room at left of entrance, 13 feet by 23 feet, with windows on three sides, and a cozy fireplace. Its walls are of buff paneled insulating boards.

A passage from the center of the inside wall of this room leads to bath and linen closets, and two clothes closets, to stairs leading to second floor, and then to the kitchen, 10 feet by 11 feet at the back, and the bedroom or "future dining room," 10 feet by 11 feet at the front.

Until the second bedroom and bath are finished on the second floor, this room at the front of the house is to be used as a bedroom. It has windows on two sides and is furnished in a cream shade with cocoa brown trim. When the time comes to convert this room into a dining room, all that will have to be done is to knock out the wall in the closet wall which now separates the room from the entrance hall and living room, as well as from the kitchen.

One Bedroom Finished.

One bedroom has already been finished on the second floor, and all the conduits and plumbing necessary to install the second bath and complete the second bedroom are in place. These rooms also are finished with insulating wool, with extra insulating wool installed as a protection against heat and cold.

EXPECTS $22,000 IN NEW REFUND BY CLOSED BANK

State Auditor Reports on Last Quarter.

Prediction that the Marshall Square State bank might make a new repayment to its 3,000 depositors was made last week by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett. Such a payment would add about $22,000 to the purses of these people. Mr. Barrett's forecast was based on reports made to him by receivers for the 138 closed state banks in Cook county. Charles H. Albers is general receiver for all but two of these banks.

Three west side banks made new disbursements in the closing quarter last year, Mr. Barrett announced. The Melrose Park State bank returned $32,500 to its 4,000 depositors. The Novak and Steiskal State bank made a new return of $32,000 to its 2,500 depositors. The Lyons State bank returned another $10,500 to 1,200 depositors.

FIRST ITALIAN STATE BANK—Total receipts, $971,520. Paid on prior claims, $378,361. Paid depositors, $275,785, or 32½ per cent. Costs: Receivers, $8,039; legal, $48,265; clerical, $58,638; interest, $2,928; advanced to protect assets, $84,359, with $76,966 refunded. Cash, $34,271. Indications point to another 10 or 15 per cent eventually.

FOREST PARK TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK—Total receipts, $1,021,159. Paid on prior claims, $292,085. Paid depositors, $378,630, or 30 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $8,164; legal, $22,635; clerical, $65,405; interest, $899; advanced to protect assets, $212,194, with $209,894 refunded. Cash, $41,142. It still appears that the payout may attain 40 per cent.

GARFIELD STATE BANK—Total receipts, $4,251,196. Paid on prior claims, $1,029,034. Paid depositors, $807,705, or 44 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $55,384; legal, $141,688; clerical, $283,153; interest, $36,089; advanced to protect assets, $561,425, with $405,383 refunded. Cash, $22,158. No estimate of the future refund possibilities is available.

LARAMIE STATE BANK—Total receipts, $221,951. Paid on prior claims, $153,267. Paid depositors, nothing; Costs: Receivers, $7,738; legal, $15,813; clerical, $31,776; interest, $4,180; advanced to protect assets, $8,231, with $2,974 refunded. Cash, $941. It does not appear that depositors may ever realize much from this bank.

LYONS STATE BANK—Total receipts, $250,032. Paid on prior claims, $112,433. Paid depositors, $73,702, or 35 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $4,022; legal, $9,910; clerical, $20,995; interest, $334; advanced to protect assets, $26,237, with $23,582 refunded. Cash, $2,395. There may be another 5 per cent distribution before this receivership is terminated.

MADISON SQUARE STATE BANK—Total receipts, $871,853. Paid on prior claims, $502,735. Paid depositors, $46,708, or 6 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $5,200; legal, $30,633; clerical, $45,566; interest, $47,542; advanced to protect assets, $171,763, with $147,674 refunded. Cash, $21,701. The total eventual payment may not exceed 10 per cent.

MARSHALL SQUARE STATE BANK—Total receipts, $567,078. Paid on prior claims, $199,823. Paid depositors, $142,306, or 30 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $6,324; legal, $33,937; clerical, $43,698; interest, $12,017; advanced to protect assets, $99,120, with $91,759 refunded. Cash, $29,849. Predictions are that the payout may be increased to 40 per cent.

Costs: Receivers, $8,481; legal, $24,882; clerical, $58,254; interest, $1,613; advanced to protect assets, $236,966, with $206,770 refunded. Cash, $27,586. There are indications that the payout may attain 40 or 45 per cent.

MELROSE PARK STATE BANK—Total receipts, $899,748. Paid on prior claims, $268,056. Paid depositors, $293,140, or 45 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $8,868; legal, $17,383; clerical, $64,757; interest, $812; advanced to protect assets, $233,546, with $216,250 refunded. Cash, $13,182. Depositors can expect another 5 or 10 per cent return before the receivership is lifted.

MID-WEST STATE BANK—Total receipts, $66,498. Paid on prior claims, $37,356. Paid depositors, $6,124, or 10 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $2,373; legal, $2,416; clerical, $8,971; interest, $3,553; advanced to protect assets, $1,923, with $1,361 refunded. Cash, $3,778. The next distribution of 5 per cent or perhaps a little more may be the last.

MILLARD STATE BANK—Total receipts, $579,060. Paid on prior claims, $38,096. Paid depositors, $326,224, or 45 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $15,378; legal, $37,247; clerical, $37,783; interest, $383; advanced to protect assets, $107,625, with $99,401 refunded. Cash, $16,319. Only a small additional return can be expected.

RIVER FOREST PLANS HEARING ON WATER MAINS

A public hearing on proposed new water mains in River Forest will be held Tuesday night in the village hall.

While the law does not require the board to hold a public hearing on the project, as there is to be no special assessment or additional taxes, the president and trustees felt they wanted citizens to know what was going to be done to supply the water needed to fight fire in all parts of the village. Consideration will be given to other plans if suggested.

The need of an improved distribution of water throughout the village has been generally recognized and no criticism, except of a constructive nature, is anticipated.

CO-EDS AT HERZL GIVEN MODERN LOUNGING ROOM

Club Begins Activities for Semester.

The co-eds at Herzl Junior college, 3711 Douglas boulevard, have something they believe really makes their school a college, and it has nothing to do with books. For tea time and co-ed conversation, a luxurious lounge has been furnished for them in a soft green and old cedar rose color scheme through the coöperation of Miss Agatha Cavallo, dean of women.

The lounge opens this week as the semester's program of activities begins for the Co-eds club. Committees that will meet there are the special events group, the Charm guild, the Woman's Athletic council, the Drama Guild, and social service committee. Tea will be served at all meetings.

Officers of Club.

Officers of the club this semester are Lucille Aries, president; Doris Lurie, vice president; Victoria Varon, recording secretary; Paulette Goldstein, corresponding secretary, and Miriam Bernstein, treasurer.

More than 100 visual aid materials, which were made by the Museum Extension Aid project of the WPA and sponsored by the Chicago board of education, will be shown. The exhibit is held as a part of Herzl's registration week.

The exhibit will include models, charts, maps, cycloramas, dioramas, and scientific apparatus. There are plaster models which show the geological relationship of the Zion, Bryce, and Grand canyons; blocks to demonstrate Mendel's law of heredity; diagrams that show the relation of events in the heart and circulatory system and aids to teaching languages.

Model of Parthenon.

The most outstanding model is that of the Greek Parthenon which will be used in the humanities, fine arts, and ancient history courses. The model is scaled according to the Penrose drawings and is an example of Doric architecture.

There will also be models of the Shakespearean theaters and stage settings for use in the literature courses. Small figures are dressed in the costumbes of all periods and countries for use in the history and literature courses.

BERWYN SCHOOL COST ESTIMATED AT $1,204,148

Architect Offers Plans for New High.

A high school building accommodating 2,500 pupils could be built in Berwyn for approximately $1,204,148, according to the figure recently submitted to the "high school for Berwyn committee" by J. C. Llewellyn, architect. Such a building, it is explained, would provide equipment for shops and laboratories and physical and cultural education.

Among the high schools that have been designed by Mr. Llewellyn are those at La Grange, Maywood and Elmhurst. He estimates the cubic foot cost of the proposed Berwyn school at 33 cents, which under certain conditions could be reduced a few cents per cubic foot.

Plans for School.

The submitted plans reveal a three story structure containing an auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,800; a girls' gymnasium, a swimming pool, an unusually large boys' gymnasium, a community room, a band room, a library, study halls, shops, laboratories, offices, board room, and some eighty class rooms.

The possibility of a PWA federal setup whereby the government would provide two-thirds of the cost of the project and the local governmental unit the remaining one-third has been pointed out by speakers to interested groups. This would mean, it is explained, that if Berwyn is granted its own high school district, the school could be built without the community exhausting its bonding power.

Petitions Are Circulated.

Petitions seeking creation of a Berwyn High school district are being circulated in the suburb. Success of the volunteer workers in gathering the necessary 20,000 or more names is anticipated. A "500 club" has been organized, each member of which will be asked to obtain fifty signatures.

The petitions ask the trustees of schools of township 39 north to create a Berwyn High school district, to be co-extensive with the city limits and divorce the community from the Cicero-Stickney Township High school district 201.

THIS BAND PLAYS BY MOOD ALONE; NEEDS NO SCORE

'Pop Goes the Weasel' Is Big Hit.

There is a band on the west side that plays by mood instead of written music. The reason is the members can't read a note.

The piano accompanist alone plays the composition as written. The drummer joins in when he thinks he's needed. Sometimes everybody plays at once. Sometimes only two play and often a few bars are carried by one. Their feature selection is "Pop Goes the Weasel" and they do it differently every time. Always it is stirringly interpreted.

The musicians, who will get new red uniforms this week, are members of St. Patrick's academy rhythm band and the average age is 5 years. The young drummer, who does excellently with "Pop Goes the Weasel," thinks they soon ought to be playing swing music.

Will Be Guest Artists.

Before they graduate into swing they will be guest artists at a meeting of the St. Patrick's Academy Mothers' club on St. Valentine's day evening in the assembly hall, 2300 Washington boulevard. This will be the first public appearance of the band for the kindergarten is in its first semester of existence. It was organized by the school recently upon request from mothers who were former academy students. The rhythm band, the kindergarten's main project, is a forerunner of an extensive music course which is a part of the school curriculum.

Rehersals are held every morning for the entertainment on Feb. 14. A drum solo will be played by Lesley Hahn while the band parades into the assembly hall in their uniforms, red caps and capes trimmed in gold.

Is Alternate Drummer.

Billy Raycraft is the alternate drummer. The tambourine players are Joan Sheahan, Marianne Kavanaugh, and Kathleen McGee. Triangle players are John Adams, Stuart Jester, Bobby O'Connor, and rhythm stick players, Donna Feeney, Helen Sourpas, and Jean Simmons. Others are Margaret Tustin, Bobby Dowling, Maryanne Malone, Georgianna Mollin, John O'Keefe, Joseph Quinn, and Joseph Mundo. The band accompanist is Sister Mary Dorothy, director of the kindergarten.

The children also will give a series of folk dances including the minuet. The dramatic part of the program is being arranged by Mrs. Cordelia McMahon.

NEW 'NO-STATIC' RADIO IS CALLED FULL OF PROMISE

Sound Reproduced with Great Fidelity.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A fortnight ago Maj. Edwin H. Armstrong of Columbia university announced his new no-static, high fidelity method for radio transmission, the answer to the listener's prayer. Ever since, Maj. Armstrong has been asked for explanations of how it works.

"We modulate the frequencies instead of the amplitude," he explains, enjoying the bewilderment of the non-technically trained interviewers. "I have been asked to explain my system to a great many persons without technical training," he continued. "My only conclusion from those explanations is that there is no simple explanation."

Maj. Armstrong has not explained very much to engineers either. He is keeping the technical details of his new method a secret for the present. But those technical men who have seen it demonstrated are enthusiastic about it. They say it holds a great deal of promise for the future.

Technicians who have heard transmissions from his experimental station at Alpine, N. J., W2XMN, say that the results are infinitely superior to anything heard on the broadcasting channels.

On the ordinary transmission, pouring of water sounds a little like pebbles being dropped one on top of the other. Armstrong's system makes it sound like pouring water.

And piano music lacks that slight trace of banjo tones in the upper register. On Armstrong's system the tones are full and round and completely natural.

On top of that the Armstrong system promises virtually to eliminate static, so long the fly in the radio ointment. In beating down static Maj. Armstrong found it necessary to move into the ultra short waves which behave differently than those now used for broadcasting. Marconi, listening on microwaves during a thunder storm, found that he heard no static.

Sees No Peril of Monopoly.

In the short wave part of the spectrum there is said to be plenty of room to pack hundreds, perhaps thousands of stations, without interference. So Maj. Armstrong foresees no danger of a monopoly of the air. Using a track twenty times as broad as broadcasters—200 kilocycles instead of ten, according to arithmetic, there would be room for 1,350 static-free stations between one and ten meters.

Of course, there are obstacles. Television probably is one. Television, which will operate also in the ultra short wave field, requires 6,000 cycles for a single station instead of ten as does a sound broadcasting station under our present system. So there may be a race for facilities in this newly opened short wave field.

Critics of Maj. Armstrong's system say that he won't be able to transmit far enough. They say that, just as in television, fifty miles will be about the limit. Maj. Armstrong reports his effective range is about 100 miles.

How Static Is Conquered.

How does Armstrong do his trick? To understand his system one should know at least as much as the best radio engineers. [And even they admit they do not understand altogether the mysteries of how radio waves operate.] Lacking that, one should know that the present broadcasting system is known as "amplitude modulation." Armstrong's system is "frequency modulation."

The present radio transmission system has characteristics similar to atmospheric electricity. Receivers picking up broadcasts also are sensitive to static electricity. Under the Armstrong method the broadcast waves differ from the static. The receiver is designed to detect the waves stripped of static.

In "amplitude" broadcasting there is a carrier wave, or "live stream" of energy, the center of a ten kilocycle channel. The broadcaster must stay on it lest he get into the pathways of other broadcasters. This carrier wave is "modulated" or loaded with music or speech. The carrier wave might be compared to an empty string of freight cars. Then modulating might be compared to loading them.

When a microphone is actuated the carrier wave stays fixed, but side-bands are created. In effect, music or speech is blended with the carrier wave, which might be compared to a line extending out through space.

Armstrong Has a Remedy.

Static can mix in with the "load" on the line and it can't be removed because it is too deeply imbedded in the program.

Orrin Dunlap, technical radio writer, has explained this system in this fashion:

"Here the carrier wave does the work. Instead of remaining fixed as in the present broadcasting system, it is made to fluctuate or wabble at the frequency of the tone of the music or voice. For example, if a violin plays a 2,000 cycle note the carrier vibrates at the same frequency. If the tone is soft the carrier fluctuates less; if loud, the carrier becomes more rambunctious.

"Thus, the carrier loses its own identity and becomes the radio equivalent of the music. It is not still long enough for static or other noises to mix with it to produce an audible click, whine, or whistle. Therefore the wave is surprisingly silent except for the program."

Thus, during a program break there is no swish or hum, due to the carrier wave as on the broadcasting band, only a "deathlike" silence.

Build New Stations.

Maj. Armstrong said that the necessary special receivers will be placed on the market at a cost comparable to that of the modern set. It is the plan to construct them so that with the flip of a switch they will change over to the broadcasting channels.

Maj. Armstrong believes that if and when his system comes into general use it will outmode present day receivers because of the better sound output the new set will provide.

There will be several other of the new stations operating later this year. General Electric is building one at Albany, N. Y.; one is atop Meriden mountain in Connecticut; another at Connecticut State college, and one is to be built atop Mount Asnebumskit, near Worcester, Mass., by the Yankee network.

This is the 400 foot transmitting tower for Maj. Edwin H. Armstrong's new "static-less" radio system. Located in New Jersey opposite upper Manhattan, it is to be put into service next spring. The call letters will be W2XMN.

TELEVISION COINS SLANG: BLIZZARD HEAD IS A BLONDE

But 'Snow' Means Merely Spots on Images.

Television is already developing a slang of its own. Besides borrowing liberally from sound radio and some from pictures it is contributing some new terms which may one day be just as well understood as "stand-in," and "on the nose."

Engineers have already compiled this brief list: "Blizzard head"—blondes of either sex, so-called because their hair reflects light, giving the effect of a halo about the head; "snow"—not crystallized weather, but small spots floating across the televised image; "ghost"—a double image; "out of syn"—bobbing and weaving of images due to the fact that receiving set and transmitter are not operating in synchronization.

Also, "bloom"—flare of light on the picture; "in the mud"—not enough light on the images. "In the mud" in radio means a voice so low or befogged that it can't be clearly understood.

The expression "on the nose" serves to recall an embarrassing incident a fortnight ago in the career of a St. Louis radio preacher. At the end of the Church of the Air program the preacher heaved a sigh of relief and exclaimed to his choir boys, "Well, we hit in on the nose." They all laughed heartily not knowing that the microphone was still open.

Wright Esser of NBC's script writing staf in Chicago has a play, "Sixpence for Tommy" in rehersal in London. Frederick Melville, who produced two previous Esser dramas, has cast Conrad Veidt and Michael Morley in the production.

Orson Welles was the only radio personality in the poll conducted by the Chicago Ad club to determine the ten outstanding Americans of the year. Welles shared ninth place with Vice President Garner. First place went to Cordell Hull; sixth to President Roosevelt.

Jack Reece of NBC staf in Chicago made a small profit on an appendectomy the other day. The appendix was five times normal size. Reece sold it to his surgeon for $25 for inclusion in a medical collection.

Janet Logan, young radio actress, has developed a new shoe—a model specially designed for radio performers who stand both at work and while waiting their turn at the microphone. The shoe has a specially comfortable last, is perforated for air, and rubber soled for silence.

Raymond Paige's new program will be called "Ninety-Nine Men and a Girl." That's not so much an exaggeration as is often practiced in radio. The musicians will actually number ninety-two. Hildegaarde is the girl.

Don Gordon, Curtain Time announcer, turned out this sharply etched description of a local actress the other day: "She has a voice like a busy signal."

A POLICEMAN'S CHILD WILL SING ON W-G-N SHOW

Beryl Goodwin, who will be featured on W-G-N and Mutual Musical Steelmakers program from 4 to 4:30 p. m. today, is the daughter of Policeman Edward B. Goodwin. Of the Wheeling Steel Corporation's Benwood Works, Beryl's brother is a steelmaker. The young singer will be right at home on this all-employé series.

Another steelworker who will appear on this broadcast is husky Joseph DaRe. When Joe's hands are not busy in the machinery of steelmaking, they are probably at the keyboards of his accordion. On the broadcast he'll play "Tango of the Roses."

5 MORE RACES SCHEDULED BY MBS FROM MIAMI

Five more outstanding winter season stake races, direct from Hialeah Park, Miami, will be described over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network.

The schedule: Saturday, the Everglades stakes; Saturday, Feb. 18, the McLennan Memorial handicap; Wednesday, Feb. 22, George Washington handicap; Saturday, Feb. 25, the Flamingo stakes; Saturday, March 4, the Widener Challenge Cup, $50,000 added event, concluding the meet. The time for all races is from 3 to 3:30 p. m.

Whistle Control Expert Guest on Becker's Program

Francis Hogan, exponent of whistle control for dogs, will be interviewed by Bob Becker, in his Chats About Dogs, at 1:45 p. m., over W-G-N. Hogan, whose Labrador Retrievers won both the national open-all and the Derby retriever field trials last year, has successfully trained hundreds of puppies at the Hogan Brothers Kennels, near Barrington, Ill. On this program he will discuss the advantages of having dogs respond to whistle signals.

Songstress Speaks

Her name is Speaks, but singing is her specialty. Contralto Margaret Speaks has been singing for many a season now with Alfred Wallenstein's orchestra.

MUSIC COUNTER TO OFFER HITS, OLD FAVORITES

Harold Stokes' Music Counter, with Edna O'Dell, the Four Grenadiers, Cellist Olda Jirousek, and Henry Winston, pianist, will present forty-five minutes of hit tunes and old favorites on W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9:30 p. m. Wednesday.

A dramatization of a Mississippi river song which has become an American folksong classic, "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee," will be presented by a cast including Joseph Johnson, Howard Hoffman, Ken Christy, Babette Gordon, and Florence Brower.

Miss O'Dell will sing "Sweet and Low," and will join the chorus in "Sing My Heart." Stokes and Winston will do a double piano version of the standby, "Chopsticks." Jirousek, with the accompaniment of the orchestra, will play a cello solo of "Always."

ENESCO, TAYLOR WORKS SLATED BY PHILHARMONIC

Georges Enesco's First Symphony, a work by his fellow Rumanian, Dino Lipatti, and a ballet suite by Deems Taylor are the features on Enesco's second and last broadcast program as guest conductor of the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra over WBBM at 2 p. m. today. The complete program is as follows:

Symphony No. 30 in E-flat major [K. 543] ....Mozart
Ballet music from "Casanova" ....Deems Taylor
Afternoon of a Faun ....Debussy
Chef cu Lautari [Merrymaking with Fiddlers] ....Lipatti
Symphony No. 1 in E-flat major, opus 13 ....Enesco

Taylor will also be the intermission commentator.

G. O. P. GOVERNORS ON LINCOLN DAY PROGRAM ON MBS

Three of the new Republican governors will be heard over W-G-N and the coast-to-coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Monday, Feb. 13, when they appear at the annual Lincoln day dinner of the National Republican club.

The dinner will be held at the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York. Among those to be heard during Mutual's broadcast are Govs. C. A. Bottolfsen of Idaho, Frank D. Fitzgerald of Michigan, Julius P. Heil of Wisconsin, and Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

Wayland Brooks, as toastmaster, will introduce the speakers.

Chick Webb on Mutual.

Chick Webb's band is now heard several times weekly over W-G-N and the Mutual network from New York's Park Central hotel. Ella Fitzgerald sings with the band.

MUSIC, MADNESS ARE SCHEDULED ON 'SUNDAY DATE'

Tom, Dick, Harry to Provide the Merriment.

Your Sunday Date, with Director Harold Stokes, Songstress Edna O'Dell, Jess Kirkpatrick, and those cutups, Tom, Dick, and Harry, will present a program of music and merriment on W-G-N from 8 to 8:30 o'clock tonight.

The music will be provided by Miss O'Dell in "Umbrella Man," Tom, Dick, and Harry in the songs, "She Live Next Door to the Firehouse" and "Jeepers Creepers," and by the orchestra and chorus in "Back in Your Own Back Yard," "I Found a New Baby," and "We'll Never Know."

Tom, Dick, and Harry will perform in their multiple rôles of Prof. J. Bolver Twitt, No Chandu the Magician," Nick Tonsillitis, and other comedy parts.

Stokes' On a Sunday Afternoon program will feature the singing of Lawrence Salerno and the Four Shades of Blue at 2 p. m. on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Henry Weber's Pageant of Melody, with Margery Mayer, Mark Love, and Attilio Baggiore, will present a wide selection of popular concert music, including a medley of Indian songs, on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. tomorrow.

Miss Mayer, Baggiore, Love, and the octet will sing "By the Waters of Minnetonka," by Lieurance; "Zuni Indian Call," by Troyer, and "Pale Moon," by Logan. Miss Mayer and Baggiore also will sing the duet from Verdi't "Il Trovatore."

Mr. Weber's Concert Revue, aired from 8:45 to 9:30 p. m. Thursdays on W-G-N and the Mutual network, will feature the singing of Mark Love, William Miller and Margery Mayer.

Miller, Love, and the octet will sing themes from Bizet's "Pearl Fishers." Miss Mayer will sing Bemberg's "Hindoo Song." Miller will do a solo of Liszt's "Oh While I Sleep" and Love will sing "Nichevo," by Zucca, and the "Volga Boat Song."

'WE, THE WIVES QUIZ' EXPANDS TO MUTUAL NET

"We, the Wives Quiz," the husband and wife program conducted by Chuck Acree and Peggy Fuller on W-G-N, will go on the Mutual Broadcasting system today. Stations CKLW, Detroit; WCAE, Pittsburgh, and WHK, Cleveland, will carry the program.

Heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. every Sunday, the program arrays husbands and wives in a battle of wits. A unique feature of the show is the proposal contest. Four men from the studio audience vie with one another in proposing to a girl one week, and on the following Sunday four girls engage in the leap year custom of proposing to one fortunate male from the audience.

CHARACTER TO BE TOPIC OF MIDDAY SERVICE HOUR

"The Character Goal in Education" is the theme for W-G-N midday service this week. The midday service, directed by Dr. John L. Dickson, is broadcast from W-G-N studios daily except Sunday at 12:35 p. m. The speakers:

Leo Reisman to Be Heard on Mutual Show

Leo Reisman and his orchestra return to the W-G-N and Mutual Show of the Week from 5:30 to 6 p. m. today. The program features modern dance rhythms by world famous orchestras and headline news edited by Ernest Chappell.

Crosby's Soloist

Marion Mann, popular ballad singer, who returns to W-G-N and Mutual air lanes on Friday, Feb. 10. She is the featured singer with Bob Crosby's orchestra, which will open at the Blackhawk restaurant on that date.

LINCOLN STORY TO BE PRESENTED ON CURTAIN TIME

Hugh Studebaker to Play Role of President.

Several incidents in the life of Abraham Lincoln will be dramatized on Curtain Time over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9 to 9:30 p. m., Friday. The play, by Tanyah Corday, is entitled "That Man Lincoln."

Hugh Studebaker.

The part of Lincoln will be taken by Hugh Studebaker, well-known character actor, who is thus adding another characterization to his steadily growing Curtain Time list. Recently he was heard as Scrooge in Dickens' "Christmas Carol." One of his most famous parts was that of Cyrano de Bergerac.

"That Man Lincoln" touches on events during the life of the President in the trying war months of 1863. Blair Walliser, Curtain Time producer, said that the play is based on historical fact," and that it will attempt to present Lincoln as he was —a simple, honest—and great man."

Walliser said that Curtain Time hopes to present a play somewhat after the fashion of the Broadway stage success, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

Lincoln's home in Springfield will be the scene of a special broadcast, to be presented by the Lincoln Society of Illinois and the Illinois Education association, at 5 p. m. Wednesday over NBC.

"Should I Tell My Husband the Truth?"

WILL he forgive or condemn her for her past? Listen in as men and women from all walks of life tell their intimate problems to John J. Anthony, noted radio counselor, on fascinating Good Will Hour. They tell their stories before the microphone in their own way—frankly, spontaneously, without rehearsal—and receive expert advice. Your own problem may be solved.

SMILIN' JACK
FAT STUFF, THESE BOYS ARE A COLD-BLOODED LOT TO DO THIS TO YOU--A FELLOW NATIVE! HAVE THEY NO BROTHERLY LOVE?
YES, BUT THEY SAY MONEY THEY GET FOR RETURNING US TO PRISON WORTH MORE THAN BROTHERLY LOVE, JACK!
WELCOME HOME, BOYS!
BECAUSE OF POWDER'S BAD PRISON RECORD, THE OFFICIALS PUNISH POWDER (JACK) FOR THIS ESCAPE BY GIVING HIM FIVE YEARS IN DEVIL'S KITCHEN, THE SOLITARY CONFINEMENT UNIT OF THE DEATH ROCK PENAL COLONY ~~~
WHEW--HERE I AM, FRYING IN A SOLID ROCK, SUN-BAKED CELL BECAUSE I CAN'T PROVE I'M NOT POWDER--IF ONLY THE PRISON FINGERPRINT RECORDS HADN'T BEEN DESTROYED BY FIRE---
--BUT WHY CRY OVER SPILLED FLAMES--MY JOB NOW IS TO PLAN AN EXIT---EVEN IF ESCAPE FROM HERE IS DEEMED IMPOSSIBLE!
THE CLIFFS ARE HUNDREDS OF FEET STRAIGHT DOWN--THE ONLY TRAIL IS HEAVILY GUARDED--AND THE SURROUNDING WATERS ARE ALIVE WITH SHARKS---SAY--LOOK AT THOSE GULLS-----
--SEE HOW HIGH THEY SOAR--MUST BE A STRONG THERMAL UPCURRENT HERE--THIS ROCK MOUNTAIN REFLECTS TH' HEAT AND WARMS TH' AIR ABOVE-----AND WARM AIR RISES---- IT'D BE IDEAL FOR A GLIDER----BUT---
--IT'S MANY MILES TO TH' MAINLAND AND THERE'S NOTHING BETWEEN HERE AND THERE TO PRODUCE ANY MORE UPDRAFTS----LISTEN--WHAT'S THAT?
IT'S TH' CLIPPER ON ITS REGULAR PACIFIC RUN AGAIN!

SAY! WITH A GLIDER I COULD TAKE OFF WHEN I HEARD TH' CLIPPER AND---
--I'D KEEP CIRCLING IN TH' UPDRAFT ABOVE THIS ISLAND--THEY'D BE SURE TO SEE ME---
--THEN I'D LAND IN TH' WATER AND THEY'D PICK ME UP--WHAT AN IDEA--IT'S PERFECT!!
PERFECT--WITH TH' EXCEPTION OF TWO MINOR DETAILS--HOW AM I GONNA GET OUT OF THIS HOLE--AND WHERE WILL I GET A GLIDER!?

Beauty Culture
—Burnham's Will Train You
There's money—BIG MONEY—in Beauty Culture if you're trained right and are started right. For instance, within a hundred yards of Burnham's there's a graduate whom we trained in 1936 who now earns over $50.00 a week regularly. And we can name you many others doing as well.
To Make the Most Money Out of Beauty Culture.
—You should get into a smart shop where the established operators frequently make $50.00 a week and up. Burnham's is in a position to help you. For months we have been unable to supply demands for our graduates. With such a large number of shops to choose from we place our graduates in the choicer spots. That means more money from the start, greater prestige, faster progress.
Investigate the Exclusive Advantage Causing More Students to Enroll AT BURNHAM'S Than Any Other.
You owe it to your future to learn about the Burnham methods of training—the result of 67 years of knowing how to teach. Of how you're trained under ACTUAL BEAUTY SHOP CONDITIONS on living models under supervision of experts. Of how you not only become a skilled all around operator, but also an artistic Hair-Stylist. Of how you're drilled in the psychology of pleasing, selling customers. The reputation of our graduates for always being superbly trained and always profitable for the shop is why Burnham trained operators are in such demand, why we can place our graduates to such splendid advantage.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Game Birds Well Fed.

February 4, 1939.

IN spite of the heavy snowfall pheasants and other game birds on the Du Page county farm are not going hungry. The deep snow covered their supplies of natural food but they know where to find the four shelters and feeding stations that the farm men built in the woods. The stations are stocked with grains and seeds.

This week the task of getting to the shelters was not easy. One of the men had to put on hip boots to get through the drifts, then wade through the deep snow with a big bag of grain on his shoulder. But all the effort necessary to provide the birds with feed and shelter this winter will be more than repaid during the other months of the year, when these valuable farm helpers pay for their board bill by destroying countless weed seeds and insect pests.

Winter Residents.

Birds that stay with us all winter aren't being forgotten. During the last few days we have heard from bird fans in Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa. All of them tell how many winter bird residents are visiting their feeding stations. Paul Springer, La Grange, Ill., writes:

"In your article of Jan. 21 you asked for reports from suburbanites, so I am sending you a list of the birds I have seen this winter. Most of these birds were seen in the woods north of La Grange, but I also saw quite a few in the surrounding neighborhood and in our back yard.

"The birds I have seen are the starling, cardinal, bluejay, downy woodpecker, and golden crowned kinglet. I see the kinglets almost every day and a brown creeper now and then. The birds I have seen in the woods, not including those already mentioned, are the sparrow hawk, eastern tree sparrow, chickadee, white breasted nuthatch, junco, goldfinch, tufted titmouse, and hairy woodpecker."

Sees Mourning Dove.

"In your article you stated that a robin and a meadowlark had been seen on the experimental farm. I also saw both birds during December. Two other birds that I saw in December were the yellow bellied sapsucker [Dec. 21] and a mourning dove seen Dec. 31."

Mrs. Dole Bryan, Paris, Ill., writes: "Your recent farm diaries on our winter bird residents inspired a brand new feeding station for the tree outside our dining room window. The reason for writing this note is to find out if I am the only reader to report the presence of the golden crowned kinglet this winter. He is the tiniest and tamest of any winter bird coming to our yard."

A number of other readers reported the presence of golden crowned kinglets. This tiny songster, not much larger than a man's thumb, has a thick coat of feathers which keeps him warm even when the thermometer registers below zero.

— — — SOME BANKS DON'T LEND — — — on frame homes, others want only 50% loans, others again lend only on Gold Coast residences not over 10 years old. We are not so fussy. We like ALL types of buildings, because we lend not only our own money, but also bank, insurance, private, and Building and Loan Funds. We lend up to 80% on homes—frame, stucco, brick—30 year age limit, 2-4 flats and large apartment, store, garage, and factory buildings. Also 80-90% FHA mortgages up to $200,000—5 to 25 year terms, to buy, build, repair, sell, or refinance. If even our top loan won't do we will induce your mortgagee or bondholders committee to cut down top heavy debts to present day level. We advance money to creditors and heirs to close estates. We help redeem, to settle taxes, and liens. Really! We serve you best! See us! Honorable, quick, and expert service. PEOPLES MORTGAGE CORPORATION, 1976 MILWAUKEE-AV. BRUNSWICK 6200. Most Active Construction Year in Last Decade Indicated for 1939

UPTURN LIKELY TO OCCUR, SAYS TRIBUNE SURVEY

Home Building Will Lead, Hines Predicts.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Chicago building is getting back on its feet. Statistics and predictions of well posted construction and material men indicate that 1939 is going to lead the way back to a more nearly normal status. Builders predict that this will be the biggest construction year since 1929.

Charles M. Hines.

If this industry, now started on an upward movement, climbs to the construction peak of a dozen years ago, all business in Chicago will be stimulated.

Point to Increase.

In a report just made by the planning department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on residential building in Chicago and suburbs, for use by Tribune employés, lack of construction, increase in population, and more marriages are three factors which are cited as pointing to an increase in home building.

But Chicago construction still is a long way from normal. Home building in boom days provided jobs for 80,000 men. At the low point of the depression in 1933 only 180 men could get a living out of it, the survey shows.

"Nineteen thirty-eight brought a considerable improvement," the report says, "and 1,422 new places to live were authorized to be built by permits granted by the Chicago building department. That was the largest number since 1929, but only a third of the figure for that year.

On the Way Up.

"Moreover, it was not one-tenth of the volume for 1925, the peak year of local building, from the standpoint of units. The dollar volume was $9,608,975. This was quite an improvement from the low figure of $546,450 in 1933.

"So here is one of Chicago's greatest industries beginning to revive. On what is apparently the way up, it is still 96 per cent below the peak. In other words, the industry could expand to twenty-five times the level for 1938 before setting a new mark.

"If this industry, now started in an upward movement, goes on to the sort of a culmination such as we had a dozen years ago, all business in Chicago will be stimulated in a way not before experienced.

Detroit Has Big Boom.

"Detroit had an astonishing revival between 1933 and 1935 as a result of a 200 million dollar increase in the value of products of its automobile factories. But if home builders in Chicago reverted to pre-depression levels, it would involve as great an increase as Detroit's automotive push-up did from 1933 to 1935."

The report lists some of the things which may put home building back to pre-depression proportions. Almost complete cessation of new construction for several years has brought about a need for maintaining the existing supply of homes which should last for some time.

Between 1930 and 1938 there were 227,234 marriages in Cook county. During that same period only 8,417 homes were provided in Chicago. Newly married couples must have absorbed a large part of any superfluous housing facilities.

Births Exceed Deaths.

Since 1929 the births in Chicago have exceeded deaths by 125,000. The municipal librarian estimates the increase in population between 1930 and 1938 at 301,262. To provide for this increase only 8,417 new houses have been built.

"It will not be necessary to adopt Municipal Librarian Frederic Rex's optimistic estimate of population to reach the conclusion that a very large upturn in home building operations is likely to occur," the report concludes.

Charles Hines, vice president of the Hines Lumber company, yesterday said that Chicago is "coming into its own" this year. The building industry, which has lagged behind that of much smaller cities, is going to have a big increase in 1939, he believes. Home building will lead, he said, with emphasis placed by the public on the moderate priced residence.

More Value in New Homes.

"There is more value being given the home builder in today's houses than at any time in many years," he said. "Any Chicagoan can discover that for himself by going around and looking at new houses being built and talking with the owners. A study of building costs doesn't show the real answer to the building problem, but a visit to actual construction activities does.

"During the boom days $9,000 was paid for five and six room bungalows. Today brick and frame two story residences of five and six rooms can be bought for $5,500 to $7,500. And their construction and materials are better than in the boom days.

"It is in this moderate priced field that there will be the most activity during the next few years, I believe, but there also will be much building in houses up to $20,000.

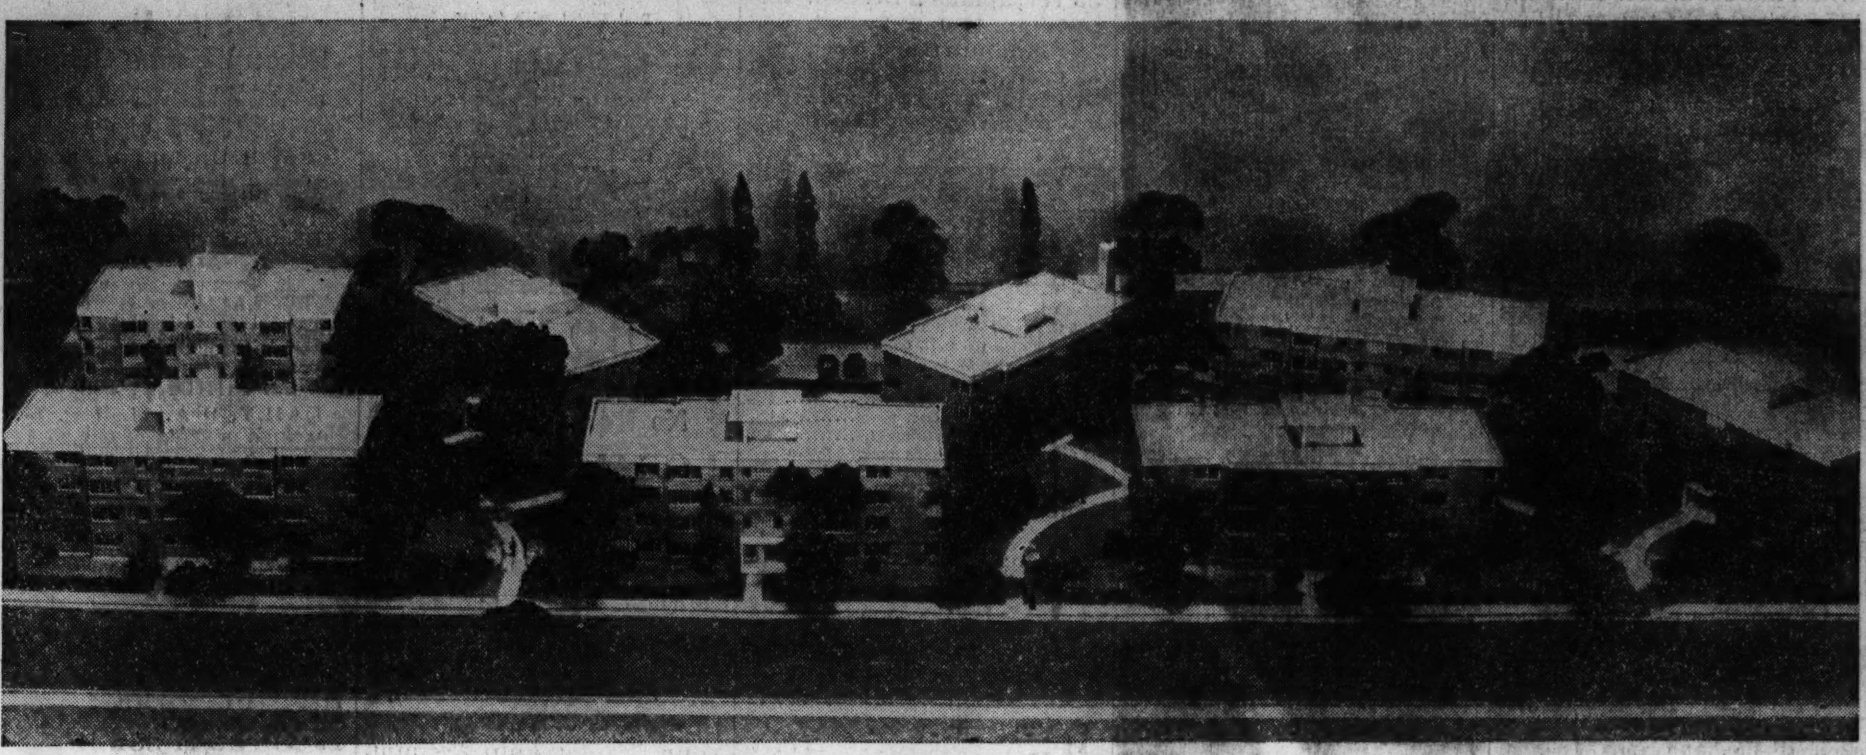
"The public must remember, however, that when building operations get under way on a big scale, costs also are going to move upward."

Outlying Areas Most Active.

Residential construction in Chicago [as shown in the adjoining chart] has been most active in the outlying neighborhoods. In the great belt of depreciated areas just outside the loop there has been practically no construction. One reason is the inability to finance new construction in these slum areas. The placing of mortgages there is almost impossible.

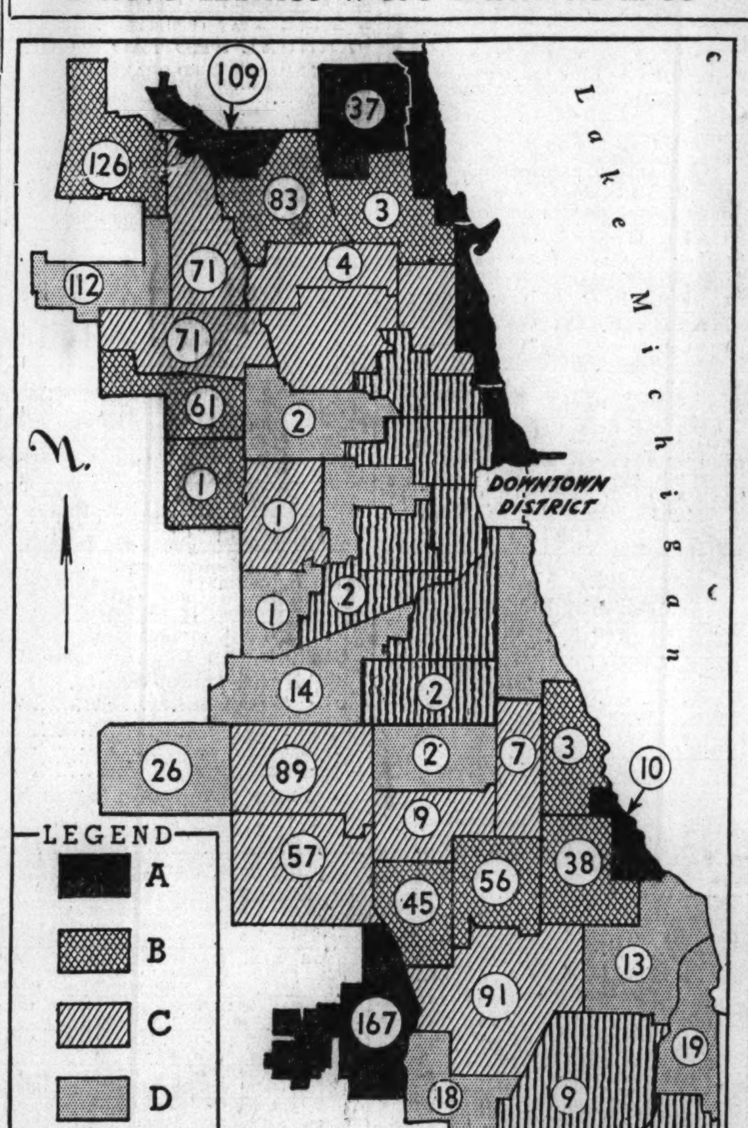
It is this stagnant building situation in Chicago's great slum belt that led to development of the proposed "public building service corporation" plans as a means of reviving construction. It also was one of the reasons for the formation of the Chicago Building Congress, Inc., as an agency to put the building industry back on its feet.

Federal Red Tape Delays Suburban Private Residential Group



This is a photograph of a model of the proposed $745,000 privately financed apartment project in River Forest, designed by Holsman & Holsman, Chicago architects, and now waiting final government approval. It will be two blocks north of the Oak Park store of Marshall Field & Co., at the northwest corner of Harlem avenue and Oak avenue. It will front 585 feet on Harlem and 184 feet on Oak. It will be built by Morfandeb, Inc., of 5510 Cornell avenue. This same firm will act as rental agents. Details are given in an adjoining column.

Where Homes Were Built in 1938



The above chart prepared by the planning department of The Chicago Tribune shows the location of the 1,366 homes authorized by building permits during 1938 in Chicago. It also shows the distribution in Chicago's five types of districts. The "A" type, which includes the near north side and high class residential areas along the lake front as well as the south shore district, had 322 new homes, or 23.6 per cent of the total. In the "B" district, a little lower in the economic scale, there were 415 homes, or 30.4 per cent. In "C" there were 402, or 29.4 per cent. "D" had 208 homes, or 15.2 per cent. The "E" areas, which include most of the city's worst slums, had only 19 new homes, or 1.4 per cent. The new homes in each district are shown by a numeral.

Realty Miscellany

Three courses in real estate will be offered by the Central Y. M. C. A. college evening school of commerce in its spring semester, which opens next Tuesday at 19 South La Salle street.

Percy E. Wagner of the Federal Housing administration will conduct a course in property management on Thursdays from 5:55 to 7:35 p. m. A course in real estate law and conveyancing will be supervised by Andrew C. Hamilton. Property insurance will be in charge of J. C. O'Connor. The latter two courses will be on Tuesday evenings, from 5:55 to 7:35 o'clock.

Other courses related to real estate will be economics, accountancy, business law, business organization, finance, marketing, money and banking, and salesmanship.

Construction of concrete houses will be discussed at the convention of four leading associations of the concrete industry at the Hotel Sherman on Feb. 7, 8, and 9. The four bodies are National Concrete Masonry association, American Concrete Contractors association, National Cinder Concrete Products association, and Cast Stone institute. At the same time the third annual concrete industries exposition will be held at the same hotel. The latest equipment, concrete products, and machinery for use by the industry will be shown.

PLAN ONE STORY BUSINESS BLOCK IN WESTERN AVE.

A one story business building will be built at once at 6334-44 North Western avenue for spring occupancy. It will contain eight stores. Plans will be drawn by B. Leo Steif & Co., Inc.

The project will represent an approximate investment of $150,000 in land and building, according to Howard L. Storch of Ross, Browne & Fleming, renting agents. Maurice L. Berkson was broker for both the seller of the site, Alice W. Lazear, and the buyer, the American National bank, trustee.

The property fronts 128 feet on Western avenue and is 107 feet deep. It adjoins the Nortown theater.

BUILDING & LOAN MEMBERS BORROW ABOUT $800,000,000

Approximately eight hundred million dollars was borrowed from savings, building, and loan associations during 1938, according to the United States Building and Loan league. This total was the second largest since before the depression.

December loans by the association exceeded the same month of 1937 by 6.3 per cent. This was the first time during 1938 that a month had shown more activity than its parallel month of the preceding year.

Loans which provided people with money to build new houses, a conspicuous feature of the savings and loan activity during the latter months of 1938, mounted higher in December than they had been in November, by 2 per cent. They were a fourth larger than in December, 1937.

PLAN HOUSING CONFERENCE AT HOTEL SHERMAN

Large scale housing under Federal Housing administration mortgage insurance, as provided by section 207 of the national housing act, will be discussed at a conference at the Hotel Sherman next Tuesday at 12:15 p. m. The meeting is sponsored by the Chicago Building Congress, Inc., in cooperation with the Illinois state office of the FHA.

Clyde L. Powell of Washington, D. C., assistant administrator of the FHA, will be the principal speaker.

BIG APARTMENT PROJECT WAITS FEDERAL O. K.

Another big privately financed apartment project is scheduled for the Chicago area. When and if Federal Housing administration officials in Washington make up their mind about what changes they want, a $745,000 group of buildings will be built at the northwest corner of Harlem and Oak avenues, River Forest. On Oct. 1, also provided Washington acts in time, there will be 128 suites ready for tenants.

Benjamin Sugar.

After many months of negotiations with the FHA in both Chicago and Washington it was announced yesterday that FHA headquarters at the national capital had approved the granting of insurance for a $545,000 loan on the project.

FHA Asks Changes.

It was learned later, however, that this decision is contingent on the discussion of two major changes in the project. Local sponsors of the project hope that these changes can be ironed out so that the project can go ahead within the next sixty days.

Meanwhile, details of the project were outlined yesterday. Rentals, according to David C. Goldfine of Asher J. Goldfine & Co., who represented the sponsors, will be $60 to $70 for the three and a half room apartments, and $72.50 to $82.50 for the four and half room suites.

There will be eight separate four story, fireproof buildings. Holsman and Holsman are the architects. Four of these units will contain sixteen suites each, of three and a half rooms—that is, living room, bed room, kitchen and small [one-half] size dining alcove. The other four buildings each will have sixteen suites of four and a half rooms.

Red Brick on All Sides.

All the buildings will be of red brick on all sides. There will be no outside stairs. All apartments will be served with two steel stairs and a passenger elevator. Roofs are to be insulated and provided for water coverage during hot weather to keep the upper flats cool. The apartments will be heated from a central boiler house. Individual winter air conditioning units will be provided for each apartment.

The Republic Realty Mortgage corporation has arranged for the purchase of the $545,000 mortgage approved by FHA. Earle Vincent Johnson, vice president of the corporation, said the proposed project would be one of the finest of its kind in the country.

At the Realty Boards

Raymond M. Hayes, chairman, board of governors, brokers' division, Chicago Real Estate board, yesterday announced a free educational course for members. The first lecture will be held next Tuesday evening at 5:15 p. m., finishing at 6:30 p. m. Meetings will be held every Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the same hours, from Feb. 7 to March 7, inclusive, making a total of nine lectures. Several nationally known sales managers will tell how a brokerage office can operate successfully in the Chicago area. Elmer E. Stults will be the first speaker.

The first public showing of a motion picture entitled "Your Chicago," dramatizing the history of the city, will be made at the Chicago Real Estate board next Wednesday noon. H. O. Walther, chairman of the board's appraisal committee, will display a copy of the newly revised appraisal report.

Five persons will try to answer the question "What's Ahead for 1939?" at the next meeting of the Oak Park Real Estate board, tomorrow noon at the Oak Park Arms hotel. C. A. Seftenberg of the Oak Park Trust & Savings bank will discuss "What's Ahead in Legislation?"; Earl Snow of Snow Brothers, will consider the future of business; John F. Pilgrim of F. C. Pilgrim & Co., real estate; Ray E. Cheney, superintendent of River Forest schools, education; and Gilbert Alexander, chairman of the board of the Suburban Trust & Savings bank, "What's Ahead in Banking?"

The North Side Real Estate board's mid-winter frolic at the Chez Paree next Tuesday evening will be well attended, according to Michael J. Long, chairman of the entertainment committee. He reported yesterday that only thirty unreserved tickets remain to be sold.

FOOD COMPANY WILL BUILD IN KEENEY AREA

Contracts have been let for construction of a one story manufacturing plant in the Keeney industrial district by the Emm-An-Cee company, manufacturers and national distributors of Italian food products.

Designed by Architect A. Bacce, the new plant will have 18,000 square feet of floor space. It will cost a reported $70,000. Work will start tomorrow with completion scheduled for ninety days later. The Campbell-Lowrie-Lautermilch corporation has the general contract.

It will be built on the west side of North Major avenue, 200 feet north of West Bloomingdale avenue. The site fronts 110 feet and contains 35,000 square feet of area. J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co. represented the Phipps Industrial Land trust, owners of the Keeney district. Chandler & Montague were brokers for the Emm-An-Cee company.

W. J. Curotto, president of the Emm-An-Cee company, said his business was started in a kitchen in the rear of a small grocery store in 1925. This will be the fifth move into larger quarters because of continued growth. The company is now at 645 St. Clair street.

1010 East 43d Street Bakery Space Is Leased

It's Costume Color That Counts in Selection of Your Lipstick "Wardrobe"; Change Your Makeup as You Change Frocks

By ELEANOR NANGLE

SOME nine years ago one of the most inspired of all the beauty authorities announced flatly that she believed any woman could wear any color. All a woman need do, she said, was change her face when she changed her frock. All the beauty creator need do would be to key makeup colors to the costume colors as they changed from season to season.

People thought she was crazy, even the smartest of her competitors. Silly stuff, they said, and it never would go over. Who ever heard of anything but light, medium, and dark lipstick? What woman consumer would be interested in any others? And how could the beauty industry keep up with the fashion industry's seasonal parade of shifting costume colors? And, first, last, and always, wasn't it one of the eternal verities that certain colors inevitably sallowed the skin of brunettes, others blotted out the delicate coloring of the blondes, and that redheads could look their best only in green? Changing your face to match your frock, indeed!

But the lady went jauntily on her pioneering way. She cut swatches of costume fabric in the currently fashionable colors right off the bolts and toted them to the makeup counters. She proceeded to show just exactly what effect, for better or for worse, a woman's standard makeup made when contrasted to different costume colors. Those were the days when a woman's makeup was standard. She chose rouge, lipstick, and face powder to match her individual coloring, and wore it with everything.

Skin tones, said the beauty expert, have precious little to do with it. You could camouflage natural skin tones very easily, key your cosmetic accents to your costume color, and when that was done you could wear just about any color you pleased. It was all to be accomplished with the aid of mirrors, and makeup.

As we've said, people in the beauty industry thought she was "touched." But their jeers have changed to cheers. They heap blessings on her head. Looking back, they give the lady credit for doing two things: she awakened the color sense of American women and brought at least the makeup end of the beauty business into the fast-moving, profitable field of fashion.

Fashion is a profitable industry for one excellent reason. It's a seasonal business. Regularly as clockwork it gets its "shot in the arm" as the seasons change and new colors, new fabrics, new styles make the women of the world want to doff the old and don the new.

The cosmetic industry enjoys some benefits of these seasonal shifts, now that it is sister to fashion. There are spring, summer, fall, and winter makeups, and makeups keyed to the colors that are high fashion. Sales are brisker and women are free of the old fetters that limited them as to the colors they might wear.

Instead of one lipstick, women now have lipstick "wardrobes." They wear one with black, another with green, another with fuchsia. When shades of the wine family were important there was an almost universal dash to rouges and lipsticks with definite purple undertones. During the preceding summer and fall acid pinks were popular and appropriate complements for the flood of shocking, the high, brilliant pink Schiaparelli introduced.

Today the cosmetic people keep an eagle eye on the couturiers. Cables buzz when a new color is evolved. The woman who started it all makes use of the color code cable, which flashes the colors to New York within a few hours of their presentation in Paris. Coördinated makeup ensembles to harmonize with the fabric color innovations are made available to the American consumer as quickly as the new fashions are ready for the market.

Yellows, with chartreuse 'way out in front, will probably be the leading spring colors. Before the brilliant beauty authority proved her good point the news that this greenish yellow shade would be high fashion would have wrung many a heart. Chartreuse was once considered a "difficult" color. Today there is no no such thing. "I just can't wear that color" is a vanishing refrain.

• • •

And how does the consumer like all this? She loves it! Day by day her own color sense improves. She scorns the rouge or lipstick with orange tones when her costume is keyed to fuchsia, even though she may be the very woman, blonde or red-haired, for whom the orangish tones first were developed as the ultimate in makeup harmony.

"Natural skin tones" are no longer the dictators of makeup. It's costume color that counts!

"Any woman can wear any color," provided her makeup is keyed to the color. When this startling truth dawned, the light, dark, and medium red lipstick shades of old were replaced by the lipstick "wardrobe," ranging from purple hues to acid pinks, all keyed to fashionable costume colors.

TRIBUNE PHOTOS BY FRANK MOORE

Clotilde Children's Patterns

Designers used to think that frocks for the youngsters should hang full from the shoulders, since their figures are so slim and rather angular. That theory has been exploded and the dress in the pattern today is proof that such is the case. This frock has a fitted, basquelike bodice and a flared skirt. The sleeves are puffed and the Peter Pan collar is edged with the same ruffling that trims the sleeves. A slide fastener or buttons may be used down the front. Either choice is smart.

You may make both pieces in one fabric and color, or unite two fabrics, or two colors. A clever scheme gives the fitted blouse a collar to match the skirt. If you like put two pockets on the blouse. This creates a tailored air in case you want the dress to be strictly tailored. Schoolgirls will like this dress because it is pretty enough to wear to parties and equally smart for classes. If your daughter is the utterly feminine type make a petticoat of either silk or cotton and give it plenty of stiff ruffles at the hemline. Then Susie will look as if she had stepped out of a page in a French fashion book.

Style No. 3342 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires ¾ yard of 39 inch material for the blouse and 1¼ yards of 39 inch fabric for the skirt and collar.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing ten cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

New Wallpaper Works Miracle for a Bedroom

By Claire Winslow.

Did you know that you could make an old bedroom look brand new, and as fresh and lovely as a blossoming apple bough simply by treating it to new wall paper? You can. And the new colors and designs for spring and summer are so charming that the only difficulty will be one of deciding which to select.

If you like delicate, feminine tones for bedroom walls there are exquisite tints of turquoise, powder blue, and old French blue, there are many yellows, many pure whites with floral patterns, and a whole galaxy of pinks and light grays and pinky beiges. There are a few deep background wall papers, if you prefer stronger colors. These show white roses, for example, on dull gray-blue, beige, and white magnolia blossoms with light green leaves on a slate blue, and pinky white chrysanthemums on gray.

Delectable is the word for a light, gay, delicate paper called "Stockholm," for its pattern of stylized little flowers in powder blue and pink with touches of cerise is extremely Swedish. They're shown against a white background and again, the paper is washable. You can work out a delightful color scheme with the tints in the flowers as your guide.

Shell and Berries is a soft, pastel wall paper, large shells being worked out on it in tones of dusty rose, and white berries with pale gray leaves spilling out of the shells. The background is a light dusty rose that will bring a soft, warm glow to any bedroom in which it is used.

A colonial bedroom has walls which are wearing a 1939 paper called Lilac. It is so named because the pattern shows hundreds of clusters of lilac blossoms. You can get a number of color combinations. One we like has the flowers in several tones of dull pink against a turquoise background. This turquoise is a pastel tint that is most artistic.

Sheer white ruffled draperies that go billowing to the floor are hung at the wide, double windows, and the small section dividing the windows is covered in a mirror glass panel. The mahogany four poster bed has a white bedspread of cotton in a waffle pattern and is trimmed in white cotton fringe edging.

It may be February or March outside, but in this bedroom it's May. And this pleasant miracle is worked by wall paper.

To Clean Raincoats.

To clean those smart looking transparent raincoats, spread them on a flat surface and rub them gently with a sponge or soft brush frequently dipped in warm water and mild soap suds. Sponge with cloth dipped in warm water and then wipe as dry as possible with soft cloth. Shake and let dry in room of moderate temperature—not near a radiator or register or the coat will stiffen.

Cherries from Cans Provide Luscious Pies

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The cherry season doesn't begin when the robins start their annual cheerful thievery in the cherry orchard. No, it begins before the cherry trees have even thought of blossoming, and while their branches are covered with February snow. And, since this is so, the cherries which go into the cherry pies must come out of cans.

One doesn't need the excuse of a Washington, Lincoln or Valentine party in order to serve cherry pie. Plain or dressed up, this brightly colored dessert has just as much place in the every day menu as in the company one.

CHERRY PIE.

2½ cups drained canned pitted cherries
¾ cup cherry juice
⅝ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
Pastry for double crust.

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt, and add to cherry juice. Heat to boiling, add cherries and butter, and pour into pastry lined pie plate. Adjust top crust, which has been pricked to allow for the escape of steam, and press edges of the pastry together well. Bake for 10 minutes in an oven preheated to 450 degrees. Reduce heat to 375 degrees and continue to bake 25 minutes longer.

CHERRY CHIFFON PIE.

2½ cups drained canned pitted cherries
⅓ cup cherry juice
¾ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1½ tablespoons plain, unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
⅓ cup whipping cream, whipped
1 egg white, beaten stiff
Baked shell or crum crust.

Grind or sieve cherries. Heat cherry juice, sugar and salt. Soak gelatin 5 minutes in the cold water and dissolve in the hot cherry juice. Cool and add cherries. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in whipped cream and beaten egg white. Fill baked shell or crum crust and chill until firm.

CHERRY ICE CREAM PIE.
[Serves eight.]

1 baked pastry shell
1 pint vanilla ice cream
1 No. 2 can [2 cups] pitted cherries
¾ cup sugar
1 stick cinnamon
2 tablespoons cornstarch
½ pint cream, whipped.

Add sugar and cinnamon stick to juice drained from cherries. Cook for 5 minutes. Remove cinnamon and add cornstarch mixed to a paste with a little cold water. Add cherries. Cook until thick and clear. Cool and chill. Spread ice cream in pastry shell, cover with cherries, and top with whipped cream. Serve at once. Cinnamon may be omitted.

Cheese pastry is good with cherry pie, even though the combination sounds a bit queer. Any of the three pies may be put into a cheese crust made like this:

CHEESE PASTRY.
[Double crust.]

2¼ cups all purpose flour
1½ teaspoons salt
¾ cup solid fat
¾ cup grated American cheese
6 tablespoons [approximately] ice water.

Sift flour and salt together. Cut in cold shortening until the mixture is in small lumps. Stir in the cheese and add enough water, a little at a time, to hold the dry ingredients together. Chill. Roll out on a lightly floured board. Top crust may consist of lattice strips.

Generally speaking, there is very little new in the culinary art to write about. An interesting development, however, has occurred in the curing and smoking of hams which deserves mention. I have become particularly interested in this new process which has brought about an outstanding achievement in flavor and tenderness of ham. You see, these new hams (and we will refer to them as new hams) are prepared and made tender and all ready for you to serve, with or without heating. No more old fashioned scrubbing, soaking, or boiling to get the ham ready for the table. Preparation requires minutes instead of hours to place this delicious meat on your table.

Just to give you an idea how simple it is to prepare this new ham, I recently purchased a middle cut, two inches thick, known as a ham steak. It was placed in the hot broiler oven, seven minutes of heat applied to one side, then turned and basted with drippings in pan, and with five minutes of additional broiling the ham steak was ready to serve. The big surprise of it all came in the eating. The ham was so tender that I actually cut it with a fork.

The time on baking a whole tender ham is amazingly short, as you will see when you read the recipe that follows. Ham is a most economical food, as every last scrap of it can be made into a tasty dish. Moreover, ham is good for breakfast, luncheon, or dinner, and this fact alone should recommend the frequent purchase of a whole ham as an every day household commodity. I hope you'll try one of these delicious tender hams soon.

BAKED TENDER HAM.

Place whole ham on rack in baking pan, fat side up. Put in moderate oven (350 degrees), allowing seven minutes to the pound. Remove from oven, score fat, dot with cloves, and pour over the top one cup of pineapple juice and one cup of corn sirup blended together. Return to oven and bake approximately fifteen minutes longer, basting until ham is delicately browned. Serve with sauteed pineapple slices.

CREAMED HAM, RICE BORDER.

Wash three-quarters cup of rice in cold water and drain. Cook in top part of double boiler with two and one-half cups of milk until rice is cooked, or about one and one-quarter hours. Season with salt and pepper and stir in one tablespoon of butter. Pack rice into buttered ring mold, place mold in pan containing hot water, and set it in moderate oven (350 degrees) for twenty minutes. Meanwhile prepare the creamed ham. Melt two tablespoons of butter, blend in two tablespoons of flour, and gradually add one and one-half cups of scalded milk, stirring constantly until sauce is smooth and reaches boiling point. Season with a few grains of nutmeg and add one and one-half cups of diced, cooked ham. Heat to boiling point, remove from fire, add two egg yolks slightly beaten, and stir until thoroughly blended with the sauce. Season to taste with salt. Place a large platter on top of rice mold, invert and carefully unmold rice, pour creamed ham in center, and decorate rice border with a sprinkling of finely chopped parsley.

HAM RISOTTO.

1 cup of diced cooked ham
2 cups of boiled rice
2 cups of canned tomatoes
1 cup of broth [any kind]
½ cup of green pepper, minced
1 teaspoon of onion, minced

Cook the green pepper in the broth for five minutes. Add the tomatoes, onion, and cooked rice. Bring to a boil and add the diced ham. Risotto is to be served moist, but not watery, so if there is much liquid reduce it by evaporation with a few minutes of cooking. Season with a dash of Worcestershire, salt, pepper, and paprika. Place a pat of butter on each serving.

HAM MOUSSE, EPICUREAN SAUCE.

2 cups ham, finely chopped
1 tablespoon of granulated gelatin
½ cup of hot water
1 teaspoon mixed mustard
⅛ teaspoon paprika
Few grains cayenne
1 cup of heavy cream

Put chopped ham in a bowl and pound with mortar until thoroughly emasculated. Soften the gelatin in a very little cold water and dissolve in hot water and add it to the prepared ham. Season with mustard, paprika, and cayenne. Add the cream which has been stiffly beaten. Turn into a mold which has been dipped in cold water. Set in the refrigerator to chill. Unmold and garnish with parsley.

EPICUREAN SAUCE.

4 tablespoons of mayonnaise
2 tablespoons of freshly grated horse radish
1 teaspoon English mustard
1 tablespoon of tarragon vinegar
¼ teaspoon of salt
Few grains of cayenne

Beat cream until stiff, stir in mayonnaise, grated horse radish, and the balance of the ingredients which have been mixed together.

WELSH RABBIT.

1 pound of American cheese
⅓ cup of beer or ale
1 teaspoon of salt
1 teaspoon of mustard
1 teaspoon of paprika
¼ teaspoon of white pepper
1 teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce
2 eggs

A well aged and sharp American cheese should be used for rabbits. Shred the cheese and melt it with the beer over direct heat, stirring constantly until cheese is melted. Then add the seasonings and the eggs which have been slightly beaten. Stir rapidly over direct heat for one minute. Serve on freshly made toast and have plates piping hot.

SALMAGUNDI SALAD.
(A Complete Meal.)

To two cups of cold diced meat (lamb, veal, beef, or pork) add one-half cup of cooked diced potatoes, one-half cup of cooked diced carrots, and one-half cup of fresh green peas or string beans. Put ingredients in a mixing bowl and let marinate with one-half cup of French dressing made with equal parts of vinegar and oil, seasoned with salt, pepper, paprika, a pinch of dry mustard, and one medium sized onion chopped very fine. Marinate for twenty minutes. Then add one-half cup of chopped sweet pickle and two hard cooked eggs, chopped fine. Mix all together with one cup of mayonnaise, taking care not to mash the vegetables in the mixing. Arrange on crisp lettuce leaves and decorate the salad with cold sliced beets cut in diamond shape.

Happiness in Marriage Is Made, Earned

By Doris Blake.

We notice, in recent fiction we have read, a growing reaction toward that age-old phrase: "They married and lived happily ever after." We consider the reaction a healthy and wholesome one.

One fiction figure argued, pondering the problem of leaving her husband forever or responding to his overtures to return and try again: "It's just a phrase handed down from folklore, a myth that marriage and happiness are linked together as easily as that. In marriage today you can't assume happiness."

"When you put two products of our civilization together, put two independent, supersensitive persons into the narrow confines of marriage, you have to assume unhappiness," added the feminine figure in a tale of a restless heart which appeared recently in a magazine.

Bitterness colors the conclusion that unhappiness need be assumed. The woman was struggling with a mighty problem in addition to her own native restlessness, ill health, and a question of duty. Under ordinary circumstances the assumption that complete disillusionment must follow marriage would be an erring phrase, although other extremists, borne down with the weights of their own peculiar difficulties, probably would concede that in marriage one should be surprised if all turns out well, but never be disappointed if it doesn't. This type of argument is as erroneous and unwholesome as it is wise and wholesome to believe that marriage and happiness are not automatically linked together by the mere tying of the knot.

In marriage today you can't assume happiness. You make it. You earn it. You deserve it. This was ever, and ever shall be, the formula for happiness making.

We think, with the fated heroine, that marriage today between two products of our modern civilization becomes a test for which the usual preparation, that all will turn out well and happily, is totally inadequate. Happily, many schools and colleges are giving courses in marriage preparation more consistent with the day's needs.

Nevertheless, many young women miss this educational advantage. They start to work early. Although they work alongside men and have opportunity to know men en masse as their feminine ancestors never did, they continue visualizing marriage and dreaming of marriage as the perfect escape from a realistic world into their own moon made heaven. The wonder is not that there are so many divorces, but that there are not more disillusioned people knocking at the doors of so-called freedom.

Mothers who have been through the mill and whose marriages, while successful, have been a series of bucking the realities that only marriage discloses, keep on entertaining this dream world for their children. How much wiser it would be did mothers give their girls the benefit of their own experiences in adjustments, compromises, and duties faithfully performed, rather than to encourage the mythical dream of marriage itself working the happiness miracle.

The word happiness should not be ruled out of the training, in our judgment. Young folks setting out on the sometimes perilous adventure should be promised that as their reward. But the provision should be instilled in all marriage training that happiness never resulted automatically from any venture in life.

Promise the young people a fine companionship, provided that in their mate choosing they weigh the makings of a fine companionship. This means that the boys they marry are of good character, responsible young men, that their tastes in a number of things are compatible ones.

Promise young people on the eve of their marriages that happiness must accrue to them if each plays his or her part conscientiously and fairly.

Promise them the blessing of a successful middle aged and older partnership only after they have worked in unison over the upbringing of their children, in unison over the right management and distribution of money.

Let these young people know some of the hazards to which marriage today is subject. There are hazards, chief among them the growing tendency to look upon life as one's own to glorify for one's self alone. Another hazard is the economic situation suffered by many who go into marriage believing that somehow marriage will fill the financial sock on its own momentum.

Tell the young people the truth about marriage and what it involves if happiness is to be the eventual reward.

Every day there is presented, in the feature columns of the Chicago Tribune, a stimulating article by Miss Blake, who lends friendly counsel on a wide variety of common problems.

Paris Sports Costume Is Blend of Some New Ideas

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The latest news is that clothes for sports are to be as prim and feminine as a Gibson Girl gown. The perennially popular two-piece outfit has taken to some new ideas, all of which are incorporated in this sports costume. You will notice that it is pared down to bare essentials. There are no fripperies. The collar is severe, the sleeves casual and . . . very important . . . long. The blouse, with its buttoned front, is tucked into a flared skirt that may match or contrast.

The original costume was fashioned of chambray, the top striped and the skirt plain. There are many fabrics and color schemes you can create to suit your own individuality. It goes without saying that this type of frock will be prominent on the str nds of the Riviera and at the southern vacation spots in America. I have heard from the couturiers that women planning cruises are especially partial to this type of costume for wear in deck games and sightseeing in Mediterranean, West Indian, and South American ports.

At home in America you can wear this frock for active as well as spectator sports. Bear in mind that stripes are important, the more colorful the better. If you like, make the skirt of coarsely woven linen or of tropical woolen.

Style No. 5280 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20, and 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measurement.

Why Won't They—

Pass a law making it necessary for people who are learning to drive to attach special license tag plates to back of car, so other drivers can give them a wide birth? George Hanover, New York.

Design and install automobile license plates which are visible in a fog; perhaps by cutting numbers out of metal plates and inserting in front of amber glass—backed by electric bulbs and reflectors? Harry J. Smith, Chicago.

Make available to mothers of small babies baby buggies and strollers with a generous space in them for groceries and bakery goods, this would eliminate the need of burying the baby under a mountain of bags, or carrying those same bags under your arm while you are pushing the buggy. New Maternity Clothes Unite Chic, Comfort

By Rhea Seeger.

Since the subject of clothes for the prospective mother is something one no longer discusses in whispers, it's a good time to tell about some grand new wardrobe finds, clothes that have a distinctive flair for smartness and technical details that make them outstanding examples of what can be done when an expert designer really takes time out to think up something reasonably simple yet practical. These clothes are made to flatter as well as to be super-comfortable and still not a wrap-around. All kinds of medals should be handed out by a grateful populace for this new kind of clothes.

Dresses, suits, sports clothes [just because you're planning a new addition doesn't mean you go out of circulation any more], unbelievable items such as a carefully designed swim suit, and some of the loveliest dinner and evening costumes we've found in years, are star attractions. Daytime dresses are brilliantly different. They are made with clever details, smocking, plaiting, soft shirring, and in two piece affairs that do much for the comfort of the lucky finder. Nothing dull or dejected looking about a single outfit. Colors are soft, fabrics are feminine, and unusual trimming devices and the very skillful lacing in the skirt make them worth all the excitement they're making.

The story back of this interesting collection proves that inventive genius can be appreciated. A certain fashion expert, hunting about for something in the way of such clothes, went into revolt after shopping all the available collections. Not finding anything that would satisfy her personal desires for clothes that would be comfortable, approved by the doctor, and still have a certain amount of chic, she went into a huddle and designed and made her own. Since then these super collections of maternity apparel look like the usual costumes selected by other shoppers for their wardrobe needs.

Since smocks, or blouses cut in the easy-to-wear smock outlines, still are unequaled as a basic outfit, even the suit jackets are cut in this manner. The skirts are made with the clever details of invisible lacings and eyelets, with the front panel cut longer to prevent unsightly sagging or hitching. And this alone should rate all the approval. Plain colored wool skirts are contrasted with very smart checked or blurred plaid jackets. Some of the mixtures have the indefinable tweed swank, ideal outfits for either town or country wear. Smart velvet cuffs and collars accent some of the models, while tailored precision marks all of them. Yokes are smooth in silhouette. Cleverly inverted plaits front and back assure the utmost in comfort.

Daytime dresses come in dark colors and small prints. The smock jacket tops feature either short or long sleeves, and the same yoke effects and clever plaits, shirrings, and folds of the dresses. High necklines have sheer wisps of white outlining collars so the same applies to cuffs. Skirts for these crêpe models or printed dresses have the same easy-to-wear laced front panel that is invisible.

Evening and dinner gowns are made with a true Grecian silhouette, bands of the material holding the soft draperies in high position. They're graceful, flattering, and decorative dresses. Dinner costumes are of dull crêpe, some with short jackets and others with long sleeves. These too, feature the Grecian appearance, with soft fullness held with narrow bands that tie over the shirring. They are important because of their simplicity, their skilled fashioning, and for the game of dressing up or down with costume accessories.

Spectator sports clothes, slacks, and beach outfits are obtainable in these superior collections of clothes for such a wardrobe. Hop-sacking, soft crash like textures, and all the most flattering of soft colors are plentiful. Again the tops are of the smock variety, but a short smock made with interesting tailored details, such as convertible collar, yokes, pockets, and plaited insets. Plain and printed materials are ready for contrast and mixing in both color scheme and design.

We've sketched a few of the finds, all available in the same collection.

In dark or light colors, and the materials soft dull crepes and similar weaves. ● D . . . Bathing suit of jersey or any material you desire to order, likewise made with bands to hold the shirrings and folds. All colors available. ● E . . . Seeking a Job? This Advice Is Meant for You

What is the fashionable hour for weddings? Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor, answers this and many other questions about wedding customs in her informative booklet, "The Home Wedding." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents; by postpaid mail, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

Job hunting may be an old story to you or an entirely new experience if you happen to be one just out of school. But, whatever it is, the success of your interview with a prospective employer, who is an absolute stranger in the majority of cases, depends upon that original impression that you are able to produce in the few short minutes usually allotted to an interview.

That impression is based rather solidly on one's appearance. And while we are in no way minimizing the importance of education, training, and experience when we put so much stress on appearance, we do feel that during the period of a short interview it is impossible to delve minutely enough into one's personal and business qualifications. And, consequently, many times judgments are influenced by personal appearance, and the determination of one's full worth is delayed until actual application to the job itself.

Girls who have unusual qualifications of this kind may find that they have no trouble in getting jobs without striving for a favorable pictorial effect. But remember this: there may be others applying for the same position, others with equally good qualifications. And when it comes to a tie of this kind, when it is a toss-up as to which one might do the work satisfactorily, the girl who gets the decision in her favor is the one who pleased the employer with her appearance, her personality, her enthusiasm for the work, and her good taste. If your appearance is one that demonstrates good taste, your employer will admire it and credit you with good taste in other lines. Don't overdo the eye appeal, however. If an employer has work to be done he wants a girl who looks efficient, responsible and dependable, and not a chorus girl.

In the matter of dress, conservatism is the best principle to follow. Dark, simple, tailored clothes that are well brushed and pressed are the best. Be sure, too, to wear a simple and becoming hat. Shoes should be clean and polished and heels straight. Hosiery should be clean and the seams straight. The regular everyday business costume is the best.

Remember all the rules of good grooming. Cleanliness is all-important. See that your hair is shampooed and neatly arranged; that your clothes are clean; that your finger nails are clean and well manicured rather than disguised with flashy polish.

After getting the job there is the matter of holding it. In addition to the above you will have to be efficient, accurate, dependable, orderly, quick, alert and impersonal. Impersonality, by the way, is a most difficult achievement. It seems hard for some women to leave personal feelings and petty reactions at home. Let me warn that they can be a distinct disadvantage if they are allowed to get control.

Tact is another worthy attribute, tact in contacts with business associates as well as with customers of the firm. Display your intelligence by being resourceful and original when those qualities will help, rather than hinder the person for whom you work. Be pleasant and agreeable and not afraid of work.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

The heart theme predominates in the assorted fashions our patterns are sponsoring today. There are four designs, each intriguing and a wardrobe "must" in its own way.

Sketched at the top is a hat which may be worn as a beret or as an off-the-face chapeau. It is heart shaped and the point may be either in back or front.

At the right is a simple frock with brief collar at the high, round neckline. It is given the trim touch of stitching, more of which is used on the cuffs, belt, and pockets. The two pockets are cut in heart shape, as is the buckle on the belt. The sleeves of the frock are puffed at the shoulders and slim at the waist. The skirt is flared. Beige with brown stitching is an attractive scheme, light blue with navy, brown with green, chartreuse with green, etc. Both woolens and silks are appropriate.

The apron sketched at the lower left is a comfortable and practical model that fastens at the side front, the belt having come around from the back. The neckline is V, the skirt flared, and the pockets heart shaped. Bias binding is the only finish, inexpensive and easy to apply. Both prints and plain fabrics make up well.

For the little girl there is a dress with short bodice, flared skirt, puffed sleeves, and contrasting collar. Three buttons do decorative duty down the front, and over the youngster's heart is a pocket in the Valentine motif. Both cottons and silks are good for this model.

Style No. 2609 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19. Size 15 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 3059 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. The medium size requires 1¾ yards of 39 inch material, with 2½ yards of binding or braid.

Style No. 2571 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8 years. Size 4 requires 1⅜ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 35 inch contrasting and ⅛ yard of 10 inch material for the pocket. For panties, ⅞ yard of 39 inch fabric is required.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Just Splashing

By Eleanor Jewett.

I splash and I splash
In the wet soft snow,
And the wet flies up
Wherever I go!

I splash with my left
And I splash with my right,
And my boots get soaked
And my socks are a sight.

And my mother will say
"O, dear me, son ——"
But I don't care,
For splashing is FUN.

Ability at Safety Play Is Mark of Expert

By Ely Culbertson

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

The crowning achievement of a master player is not found in effecting some brilliant coup, but in a number of specialized plays grouped under the heading of safety plays. While even a very fine player is justly proud when he foresees and executes some rare maneuver like a grand coup, to the master player its mechanics are essentially simple, and merely because such a play is very rare, it does not follow that it captivates his intelligence.

To the master player the ne-plus ultra of playing technique is a safety play, because it so fittingly expresses the spirit of scientific intelligence. Such a play may be quite unobtrusive, unnoticed by either partner or opponents; it may at times seem even stupid to a superficial kibitzer; but because it logically insures greater safety in the play through the use of startling and unexpected methods, it marks that delicate line of demarcation between a player who is good and one who is great.

A safety play can be defined as a method of play to limit the loss of tricks if the distribution is unfavorable. Broadly speaking, all plays are safety plays because surrounded by safeguards, and a series of plays in different suits may have as their object the limitation of loss by giving up, perhaps, the chances for an overtrick. Here, however, the name safety play is reserved for a number of special plays, the object of which is to attain a maximum degree of safety in order to clinch a certain number of tricks in a single suit even at the price of the apparently unnecessary loss of a trick.

There is much more back of the safety plays than is apparent from this simple definition. Years of careful research have established them. Some safety plays would appear to be absurd, for they radically upset practices followed by millions of players, including experts, for many years. Yet it will be conclusively proven that these practices, accepted for generations as axiomatic, are essentially wrong and should be abandoned.

North
7 4 3
West East
South
A Q 6 5 2

Ever since bridge has been bridge, the usual play with a combination like this has been to lead a small card from dummy and finesse the queen. It is absolutely wrong and most unscientific! The correct first play with this combination is the ace.

There are five cards in the adversaries' hands, namely, the king, jack, 10, 9, and 8. Regardless of how the suit is played, one trick must be lost; even with a successful finesse the ace and queen can eliminate only four of those high intermediate cards. If by any chance the king is unguarded at the left of the ace-queen suit, it will win over a first round play of the queen, and the other adversary will have remaining the J-10-9, which must win two more tricks.

If you play the ace on the first round, and then, returning to the North hand, lead a small card toward the queen, you have not lost the opportunity to play the queen should East play low. But see what has been gained: A singleton king would have dropped on the lead of the ace. The ace having been played, East has some cause to play his king, even though guarded, on the second round, eliminating the guess. If West dropped the jack on the ace and the man who played it is known to be "honest," never false carding, he originally held a doubleton king-jack, the second round can be ducked, South losing to his now lone king but saving the queen to draw the last round.

Hundreds of books have been written, advising players to finesse the queen. When such a simple fallacy can creep in and remain undetected for generations, in spite of being in full view of millions of players, how difficult it is to discover far more hidden fallacies. The theory of bidding and play is full of them, and that is just what I mean in reiterating that the knowledge of cards is still in its medieval stage and that no author, however brilliant, or player, however expert, can really be perfect.

North
8 6 4 2
West East
South
A Q 10 9 5

In this situation, if the object is to lose no more than one trick, play the ace. If we grant that for every two guesses we make one must be wrong, it becomes obvious that we gain whenever our first round finesse would lose to the next higher honor; for then we must guess again as to whether the two remaining cards are divided in the two hands or are both held by East.

If West holds the singleton jack, by finessing the queen we are enabled to lose no tricks; but on the other hand, if he holds a singleton king, it falls under the ace and a finesse is established for the jack.

If it is proper that North should lead the first round of the suit, and the jack is played by East, the queen should be finessed, since if the jack was a singleton, one trick must be lost to the guarded king, and if the king-jack were under the ace-queen, we can avoid losing a trick.

The next play is known to most experts, but few average players recognize it.

North
J 8 6 4 3
West East
South
A Q 9 7 5

It is correct to finesse for a king when holding ten cards of a suit. But when leading to the finesse, lead the jack from dummy and not a small card. If the adverse cards are divided 2-1, you will win or lose a trick in any case, according to the location of the king. If the adverse cards are all in the East hand, the king will be forced to cover the jack, West will show out, and there will remain an established tenace over the guarded ten. If all three cards are held by West, East will show out and, West's king will be allowed to win the trick. Then the ace and queen will suffice to clear the suit. This is justly called a safety play; it can never lose a trick and in certain situations will gain.

The holding below is also frequently misplayed:

North
A 10 6 5
West East
South
K 9 7 4 3

When it is permissible to lose one trick in this suit, but no more than one trick, the correct technique is to lead a small card from either hand and if second hand follows with a low card, finesse the ten [or the nine, as the case may be]. If fourth hand can win the trick, it is clear that there are only two cards left in the adverse hands, and they will be exhausted by leads of the ace and king. If there were four to the queen-jack in the second hand to play, the ten will win the first trick; if second hand reveals a void, the honor may be played, and a finesse can be established against the hand holding Q J 8 2, limiting it to one trick.

West opens the diamond king. How should declarer play to fulfill his five club contract?

Answer: Declarer should ruff the opening lead and enter dummy with a trump. He then should lead the diamond jack and pass it, discarding a spade from his own hand. West wins and shifts to spades. Declarer wins and leads another trump to dummy, then passes the ten of diamonds to West, discarding the deuce of hearts. Now whatever West returns, declarer wins. Dummy is entered for the third time and declarer discards his heart queen on the established nine of diamonds.

To Get the Best Cough Medicine, Mix It at Home

Saves Good Money. No Cooking.

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because it makes such a dependable, effective remedy for coughs that start from colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, very effective and quick-acting, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

Calls for furniture are unending. Because of reduced relief budgets many families have had to leave furnished for unfurnished quarters, and are living in rugless, curtainless, chairless and, sometimes, bedless quarters. There is an insufficiency of everything, warmth, light, food, and clothing. Some members of such families are sleeping on the floor, under makeshift coverings of coats. Babies are crawling on bare, damp floors. Many homes lack sufficient cooking utensils and dishes.

Mrs. G. is the widowed mother of six children. Their home, a four room flat, is on the south side of the city, and they are on relief. The budget permits food, fuel and rent, but cannot supply any extras. There is no bed for the oldest boy, who has had to sleep on the floor in the living room for almost two months. They could not use a regular bed, as they have no room for it, but a studio couch or a davenport would fit in the living room.

There are twelve in the X. family, on the southwest side of the city. The mother died several years ago and the father is trying to care for his large family. He is employed at present and is self-supporting, but his work is seasonal and in slack seasons he has had to get some help from the relief office. They have only two double beds and one folding bed, and sleeping conditions are extremely crowded and uncomfortable. There is room in the home for one more double bed, mattress and spring, and they would be most welcome. The father can arrange transportation of these items, if any reader has them to offer.

A caseworker has requested two double mattresses and blankets and sheets for the S. family. Like many others, this is an unfortunate colored family, forced to live in a badly deteriorated neighborhood. The mother has a serious heart condition and is living on a minimum budget.

A hospital worker is requesting a daybed for the S. family on the west side of the city. One of the children has been ill and hospitalized for some time. There are five in the family, living in a four room apartment. The father has odd jobs, and his income is irregular and small. It will be necessary for the sick child to have a bed of her own, which the family cannot afford to purchase.

Can some reader supply a large size baby crib for Mrs. M.? Her baby, 16 months old, has no bed of his own and now sleeps in his buggy. Since the child has heart trouble, it is important that he have complete rest, and he is now too large to sleep comfortably in the carriage. He also needs clothing, size 3, and shoes, 2½. There is another child, 3, who needs clothing, size 6, and shoes, 9½. Mr. M. is on WPA, but they find it difficult to live on his salary since they are trying to pay off debts incurred during his previous unemployment. Their electricity has been shut off and they owe back rent. They are making small payments on these bills and providing fuel and food for their family, but are unable to afford clothing or a bed for their youngest child.

Mr. Z. is ill and receiving treatment at a clinic for arthritis. He makes regular trips there and is in need of a warm overcoat, size 44 or 46, and warm underwear, size 44.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Except for evening wear, and sometimes even in that case, clothes this spring are going to be disarmingly feminine. "Little girl" designs and revivals of grandmother's pet fashions are to the fore, but nothing can steal the thunder of the utterly simple dress with the plainest of lines.

There's a tea dance on my social calendar for Valentine's day. I've invited my favorite beau, a strapping fellow who dislikes fripperies. He's considered quite a catch here on the campus, and violent on the subject of women's clothes. I put my thinking cap firmly on my head one recent evening, trying to combine devastating femininity and basic simplicity in one frock for this dance occasion. I believe I have succeeded. I offer the design for your approval today.

It has a rather snug bodice, puffed sleeves, and a flared skirt. [By the way, every fashion show I've seen lately featured flared skirts almost exclusively. I've made my dress like the version sketched at the right, with V neckline and bows down the front of the bodice. If you like, make the neckline square and use buttons. Shorten the sleeves if you wish. My dress is of navy crêpe dotted in white. The bows are white, too, and of piqué.

You can make this dress in almost any fabric, even soft pastel woolen. If you're lucky enough to be planning a southern sojourn for Easter vacation or your annual release from office duties, you might make the frock of shantung, linen or cotton, in a gay print.

Style No. T-8607 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material for the version with long sleeves.

Address orders for Campus Modes to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 414, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Today we would like to have a heart to heart talk with the mothers of young girls and with the young girls themselves. The boys may listen to advantage, for they, likewise, go through that heartbreaking period of adolescence during which the pimple scourge is operating to destroy poise, confidence, and good looks. In addition to this youthful curse, and it is a curse when you calculate that it gives birth to a sense of inferiority that may take years to overcome, there is another ailment common to the young group, and becoming commoner day by day. We refer to the condition of dandruff.

Never in the history of young folks has there been such a prevalence of this destructive hair condition. We are appalled at the reports sent in from mothers distraught over a youngster's hair condition.

It cannot be blamed on the young girl's sophisticated taste for permanents, because youngsters who never have had a curling iron or heating apparatus near their heads are just as serious victims of the scalp malady. We personally know young girls of 11, 15, 16 who support our theory that it is not this modern hair curling aid that does all of the damage. Most of the youngsters, anyway, getting a permanent, simply have the ends of the hair done and while, on them, you see some regrettably dried out hair, you still cannot charge the dandruff condition off as the toll of permanents. Older ones of us sitting under dryers each week, or every other week, would be more justified in charging the excess drying of scalp and hair to the heated dryers.

We have done some serious investigating on this subject of youth and its two major beauty problems, and, not peculiarly either, what affects one, affects the other, in that both skin and scalp are fed by the same blood stream.

Even practiced beauticians, whose business is selling emollients and lotions, agree wholeheartedly on the great major cause. Constipation is its name, irregular elimination. The very young people themselves will not be impressed, apparently, with this vital feature of skin and scalp health. The interested parent, then, must devise means of knowing that her child is regarding the laws of nature conscientiously.

We find that the average parent immediately begins asking about a "good shampoo" for the dandruff; a "good scalp ointment," a "good acne cream" and so on. All right and good as local aids, but only as local aids. No matter how excellent the ointment or lotion, it still is of no durable good if the blood stream isn't kept clean, the inner system free of waste poisons. On our investigating tour among skin specialists our attention was called to the imperative need of more water taken internally. Youngsters simply do not drink enough of it. At table they will consume their milk and their fruit juice, but these are not sufficient in water content to supply the daily flushing required by a well organized system.

Coupled with this proffered reason, we learned, the average child, the city child especially, does not get enough outdoor living. One authority volunteered that our young ones are becoming a generation of "used air" breathers. They ride to and from school. They come home from school and either play indoors too much, or their school studies are heavy and keep them in. Even their Saturdays and Sundays are not given over enough to the pursuit of such outdoor life as would keep their young blood streams in lively circulation. An odd comment, some of you mothers will say, who think your children are getting a lot of outdoor life. But figure it out as to whether that child couldn't more often be chased out and away from her incessant reading, her doll clothes making, her play acting or other indoor pursuit.

Out of our investigation comes the frequent and urgent appeal to parents to teach the children the value of the hair brush, to teach them the need of extra face and hand washings during their peculiarly troubled era, but more than that, to see to it that internally they are free of the effects of irregularity and the effects of an indoor, stodgy type of living.

By one noted authority we were urged to start a movement among parents to adopt as their, the parents' job, the presentation of these young persons upon arising mornings, with a big goblet of water and see that it is entirely consumed before the children appear at table for breakfast. In this small remedy alone children are assured healthier scalps, hair, and complexions. Not a small glass of water is urged BUT a big goblet of it, the practical equivalent of two glasses. It is going to be medicine for some of the young ones, but it is good medicine and not too hard to take. If this early morning water drinking habit becomes a fixed one in the child's life he or she will live to bless you for freedom from a number of the ills affecting adults.

Water inside and out may well be adopted as the slogan to assure young people the clear skin and healthy scalp. Children will rub their soiled hands over their faces. At the age of which we speak, clean hands, washed a dozen times a day if need be, are even more important than the clean face. But morning and night the youngster must be forced to wash the face thoroughly with soap and water, rinse it in warm water and then splash on cold to close the pores. If, added to this morning and night duty, you can bribe, force, tease, or just discipline them into the use of the hairbrush as regularly as the use of the toothbrush, they will escape the woes, mental and physical, of the skin afflicted child. And they will be more of a credit to the parents themselves.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of The Chicago Tribune.

SUBDEBS WHOSE LOVELINESS IS PART OF FAME

At left: Important factors in the success of young Judy Garland's career are her beautifully groomed hair and skin. No blemishes in her complexion, no dandruff on her scalp.

Above: The sureness, the poise, and the self-confidence of pretty Deanna Durbin might easily have been impossible had not those who watch over her youthful beauty been particularly careful of her complexion.

At left: Madcap Jane Withers' admirers are legion among both adults and her contemporaries. But that hoydenish spirit and health-brimming-over air would be lacking did not the young star live absolutely hygienically.

Various Ways Instill Habit of Neatness

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

Two relatives went to visit a new young sister-in-law, Bernice.

"She must be a good housekeeper," said one. "Everything is so orderly. I hope she isn't prim—Hal will leave home if she is."

Said the other: "I called on Bernice today. She wasn't expecting me and her house was a riot. She was cutting out a blouse on the dining room table, and in the living room she had her drawing materials all spread out, and Hal's pipes on every table. She says he likes them within reach. I can't imagine what it will be like when the baby comes!"

What conflicting opinions about the same home! The reason? The first family visitor Bernice had lives in the midst of such chaotic disorder that the house looks as if it had been stirred up by a stick. The second is one of those fanatical housekeepers.

In writing for mothers about orderliness in their homes and the children's share in it, it's impossible to be absolute in your statements, or advice. One reason is that everybody has a different ideal of what constitutes order in a house. Comparative orderliness satisfies some. Absolute perfection, without one thing out of place, is what other housewives aim at—and sometimes accomplish. Husbands and children, in this latter case, are usually the sufferers.

I've seen men who were smokers actually followed around with a dust pan, and never allowed to sit surrounded by the happy disorder of all the sections of the Sunday paper, and children who were nagged and scolded because they simply acted like normally heedless boys and girls. No one can enjoy a home in which the needs and pleasures of its human occupants come last.

I like to see the signs of use and reasonable wear and tear in a house, and even the kind of disorder that goes with rich and interested living. You must, of course, have a degree of order in a house where there are children and they must by degrees learn to help achieve it, but not so that it takes the joy out of life.

We can be agreeable about this by using tact and judgment and by taking into consideration the age of the child. So often mothers don't realize that they are expecting the impossible of a child who is almost a baby.

"My little girl won't pick up her toys," they say. "I talk to her and talk to her about it." And she's 20 months old! We do have to start young, of course, but not like this.

If, generally speaking, you want your children to be orderly you must first set them some sort of example. You can't expect something from them that you or others in the family don't accomplish—that is, unless you happen to have a daughter like one I heard of, who, the minute her mother goes away on a visit, makes a beeline for the kitchen and wades in to reduce the existing chaos to order. But this learning by "horrible example" is not exactly to be recommended.

The second thing to recognize is that this habit of orderliness must be built up gradually. At first we must expect only a little of the children. And this is to be kept in mind not only when we start them young on this path, but also when we have been neglectful and find at 9 or 10 that we have a young hopeful who leaves things where he drops them. Since it is our fault, he or she must not be expected to reform all at once.

With the little children we are more apt to "dress up" the idea of orderliness than we are with the older ones, though with both we must use praise and friendliness rather than scolding and blame, because these ways make life so much pleasanter and because they accomplish what we are aiming at. With the little ones we can sometimes make a game of a routine act, or do it with them for chumminess, or appeal to their love for "helping mother."

When the children are older we have to be more direct about all routines; but in the frequent reminding that is necessary we can be entirely agreeable. Occasionally, an object lesson works well, if you can do it without spitefulness. Leaving a forgetful boy's or girl's clothes strewn around a bedroom until late afternoon [or even for several days] for example, or allowing pajamas and bedroom slippers and comb and brush to stay in a spotless bathroom until dinner washing up may serve as their own reminders, once in a while. Or you can think up your own object lessons.

As soon as children are old enough they can be given both a reason and a motive for being orderly—that is, a general reason, but not explanations on every occasion. That amounts to nagging. They can be made to see the fairness of keeping order, because it is their share of the family life and because it adds to the attractiveness of their home.

Next we come to the practical aspect of this matter. A child should not be expected to be orderly unless it is made comparatively easy for him.

If he is to use drawers, they should slide easily and be low. Shelves and hooks should be low and strong. Receptacles for his toys should not be crowded, so that he can get at them when he wants them without causing disorder.

If you live in a small apartment or tiny house, this may sound impractical, but it isn't. Where there's a will, there's a way. Use a little ingenuity; build receptacles yourself. It can be done, and will reduce labor and friction for both you and the children.

And last—and this is important—if you want blocks or toys or books put away, allow your little boy or girl plenty of time to do it in. Often it is only the "hurry-hurry," or the irritability of impatience on a mother's or nurse's part that is responsible for the young child's resistance to the idea that he must clear up after himself. This hurrying is responsible for much of the small boy's or girl's disobedience or stubbornness. This—and also expecting too much of him when he is tired.

"Helping Your Child to Be Orderly" and "Side Lights on Stubbornness" are booklets of interest to parents. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for each one. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

When Chicago Was Young:

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Sept. 25, 1890.

Dear Julia: I have been over on the west side today visiting a girls' school, rather an unusual thing for me to be doing, now that my own daughter is married and my little grandchildren not old enough to be thinking of anything but kindergarten or primary grade. But a lawyer is asked to do many odd jobs and one of Will's clients requested him to have an eye on a young daughter in school here. The client, who lives in Indianapolis, has remarried, after a period of widowerhood, and his daughter, a child of the first marriage, was not quite happy at home, so he has sent her to St. Margaret's. She lives with an aunt on Ashland avenue, but attends this fine west side school by day. Her father wanted to know what we thought about her environment. Second marriages, even the most appropriate, often complicate family affairs.

St. Margaret's is a fairly small school, which is well for this new pupil, who would be out of her depth in a large institution. I found in it a high type of student and recognized the names of the best families of the west side in the list of pupils. The school is located on Adams street, west of Ashland boulevard, quite near the Church of the Epiphany, whose rector, Dr. Theodore N. Morrison, is a friend and adviser of Miss Virginia Sayre, principal of the school.

Miss Sayre is a brilliant woman, who first taught in the Chicago public schools, then went into the work of private schools, at last establishing one of her own. She has gathered about her a corps of efficient teachers, not all women, for Dr. James V. Blake and Dr. Denton Snyder are on the faculty. Her mother lives with her and the girls seem to love her and to be influenced by her. Mrs. Sayre [the mother] was born in Wales, but her loyalty to America is shown in her choice of names for her four daughters, Maryland, Louisiana, Georgia, and Virginia.

Possessed of a keen sense of humor, great depth of feeling, and high ambition for her pupils in scholarship, Miss Sayre is an ideal head of such a school. But aside from this, she is deeply religious and has played a large part in Episcopal church affairs. She helped organize a chapter of the King's Daughters in the Church of the Epiphany, and many of her girls belong to it. This is an English society, I believe, but many chapters are being organized in America, and it is a help in making young women realize their obligations as Christians.

Miss Myra Perkins is a teacher of music in St. Margaret's and I liked her appearance, too, and was glad to find that our young friend, whose name is Gertrude Gay, is taking piano lessons. I discovered that Gertrude is living up to her name and being quite jolly. She told me she had met many nice girls, some of them still in school, others recent graduates—as Bessie Ross [daughter of our friends, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Ross], Laura Daniels, Leonora Horton, Fanny Morse, Marion Cole. I have just been writing the father in Indianapolis that all is well with his young Gertrude.

Aren't you tired of hearing "Little Annie Rooney" everywhere? Little Esmond and even small Julie sing it over and over, and I heard it, as the girls were putting on their wraps and leaving St. Margaret's this afternoon. I feel like echoing the moan of a newspaper humorist, who, after parodying the first verse, alters the chorus thus:

"She's a chestnut, Joe's a bore;
Wish we'd never see them more;
Hope they'll marry, both get the grip,

I suppose, however, it's no worse than the trash we used to sing when we were young.

Your loving old friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

St. Margaret's Was Leading School for Girls

FOOTNOTES.

St. Margaret's, fashionable girls' school of the '80s and '90s, was forced by changing conditions to close its doors early in the present century, but it has a loyal body of alumnae, whose members gather annually to revive memories of its founder, Miss Virginia Sayre, who died in California in 1920.

• • •

We are grateful to three gentle readers, Mrs. James D. B. Murray of River Forest, and Walter Ingraham and Nellie Shea of Chicago, who sent us the words of the "Haymakers' Chorus." Mrs. Murray tells us that it may be found in the old school song book, known as the "Franklin Square Collection Number One," published by Harper Brothers.

"LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY."

The newspaper parodist quoted by Martha linked together two popular songs of 1890 in "Little Annie Rooney" and "McGinty," and added the favorite topic of conversation of the winter, that of the "grippe." The words of "Annie Rooney" may not be your idea of highbrow literature, but if you want them, send a stamped self-addressed envelope and we will mail them to you.

ATTIC TREASURES.

Mrs. John Straley, Bellwood, writes that she received for Christmas a "banner" like the one mentioned recently in this column, except that with the goldenrod embroidered on it there is a bunch of thistle. Other treasures of the Straley attic are: [1] An old counterpane made from the wool of sheep raised on a great-grandfather's farm; [2] linen napkins woven on this farm from flax raised there, and [3] a red plush photograph album.

Interesting event of the week: Tea at the home of Miss Annette Huntington in Wausau, Wis., and seeing her mother's white velvet wedding bonnet, made by the famous milliner, Mrs. Hopson of Chicago.

Tests Show How To Lose Ugly Fat without suffering a hungry moment, or taking strenuous exercises or harmful drugs

FROM coast-to-coast, you now hear women singing the praises of a thrilling new reducing method. A method which Dr. Damrau of New York demonstrated in tests among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, was responsible for an average loss in weight of 7 pounds per month. Most amazing, this method does NOT call for special diet lists. You never suffer a hungry moment. Nor is it necessary for you to take strenuous exercises, or harmful drugs.

All you have to do is eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating, and drink ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice, mixed with ¼ of a glass of water, before meals and at bedtime. Thus reducing the caloric intake considerably.

How This Pleasant Way Takes Off Excess Fat!

Nothing could be easier, or more pleasant. Yet!—this is what happens. First, this delicious drink satisfies your craving for rich, sweet foods. You have less desire to overeat fattening foods—but you do feel comfortably full. Second, the grape sugar in Welch's is quickly consumed, and by this process helps nature to consume excess fat.

Thus weight is lost naturally and safely. And this remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men, as it is for overweight women.

Irene Rich, past 40, still has her lovely slenderness of 16. She says, "Eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating, and drink Welch's Grape Juice daily before meals." Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably.

Watch One Thing Carefully

Follow this proved way to take off excess fat. Eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating—and be sure to use Welch's pure, aged, full-strength grape juice before meals. Always made from the pick of the grape crop. No water added; no artificial coloring. Good Housekeeping approved. Insist upon genuine Welch's Grape Juice for the results you want. For economy's sake—buy Welch's by the case.

NEW TYPE TOMATO JUICE THRILLS THE NATION

If you think all tomato juice is alike, try Welch's new vitamin-rich tomato juice for the thrill of your life. A noted chemist tested five brands and found Welch's Tomato Juice superior—larger Vitamin C content; as much Vitamin A as milk—and rich in Vitamin B. Welch's is so rich and thick, you can add ¼ water, or ice, and still have a most delicious tomato juice. So it's economical to serve. Get Welch's Tomato Juice from your dealer today. It's pure, pasteurized, laboratory controlled and Good Housekeeping Approved. Double your money back if you don't say it's the finest tomato juice you ever tasted.

Doesn't Irritate Scalp

Don't suffer any longer with shampoos that irritate the scalp. Don't suffer either, with dull, unrinsable film so often left on your hair by many types of "old-style" shampoos . . . gummy film that holds the dirt and covers up the natural brilliance of your hair. Try Halo Shampoo today. And discover, as thousands have, how attractive your hair really can be!

Different in Three Ways

FIRST: Halo contains NO soap! Thus it cannot leave gummy film on hair to dull its natural lustre, as many types of old-fashioned shampoos often do. Yet Halo makes more creamy lather than soap, in hardest water. One sudsing washes away dirt and loose dandruff. Removes that drab, cloudy film so often left by other shampoos. Lemon or vinegar rinses are not needed. Yet your hair is free of dulling film . . . alluringly fragrant, cleaner, more radiant than probably you ever dreamed possible!

SECOND: Halo is NOT an oil! Leaves hair silky-soft, but never greasy or sticky.

THIRD: Halo contains NO harmful chemicals. Does not irritate the scalp.

Thousands of women have been thrilled by Halo's sensational beauty results. Colgate guarantees that Halo is safe for normal, oily and dry hair! And Good Housekeeping Bureau has approved it.

One Trial Proves It

No New Plays, So Critic Tries Chitchatting

By Burns Mantle.

New York.—[Special.]—It being my job to hunt out new dramas for you, I will have to take you off Broadway this week. There were no new dramas on Broadway. But nearby there were plenty. Some in pictures and some not.

There was, for example, the "mysterious shooting of one Jules Brulatour," which certainly had a theater connection of sorts. Sir Jules is the most inveterate of our first nighters these years, since we have no more "Diamond Jim" Bradys, nor even a good imitator of that breed. Naturally when he turned up with a bullet in his neck it gave us a twist.

The Brulatours, Mrs. Brulatour being the Hope Hampton who has sung creditably in both grand and comic opera and flashed briefly on the screen in pictures of various vintage, are always in their places when the play in the theater is new.

They were present Saturday night last when "The American Way" was produced. Sat across the aile from me, the missus gorgeously arrayed for the event with a new black silk veil that hung from jeweled clasps in her hair over the back half of her ash blonde and perfectly waved coiffure. Her wrists, and fingers, and ears were jeweled, too, and her eyes flashed merrily, as they usually do. She is by far the most striking of the regulars in our first-night set.

The night before we had been to see the opening of a bill of one-act plays that turned out to be pretty bad, and Hope stopped to tell me that she had told Jules they would have done much better if they had gone to see "Hellzapoppin" a second time and passed this particular first-night by. Jules smiled in agreement, and everything was quite as cheerful as it is at ninety-nine out of a hundred opening nights.

And the next time the Brulatour name came into my consciousness, which was the Tuesday night following, there was that amazing story that Jules had been accidentally shot in the back of the neck at his handsome three-story Park avenue home on Sunday night and would not, or could not, give the police a satisfactory account of how it had happened. And was I surprised!

Surprised, because the Brulatours have for so long a time represented to me a Broadway romance that completely fooled the wisecrackers and the gossips. I have known them as fellow playgoers since before their marriage in 1923, and they have always seemed so modestly satisfied with living as normal married humans they have established, with me, a sort of record.

Naturally they have attracted attention. He, a distinguished executive type, a big business fellow, gray and well set up at 68; she blonde, handsome, and always immaculately turned out, with a new hair-do for every first night, carrying her 38 years as lightly as though they were ten years less than that—they are always something of a picture as they walk the ailes or edge good-humoredly through the lobby crowd.

Fifteen, eighteen years ago, which would be in the early nineteen-twenties, Miss Hampton was completely ridden by her stage ambitions. She came from Houston, Tex., where she won a beauty contest, as I recall the facts. Stopped in Philadelphia for a time. Reached Broadway eventually and got into pictures. With considerable success, too. But it was the stage she wanted to conquer. Always studying voice. Always determined. She finally made an Opera Comique debut in Paris in "Manon." She has sung several times in Europe, and in Canada.

In New York she tried musical comedy back in 1927. A Sigmund Romberg piece called "My Princess," taken from a Dorothy Donnelly comedy, "Princess Zim-Zim." Not so bad, but not so good, either, although the Hampton success as a singer was considerable. "My Princess" got only twenty performances.

● ● ●

At first, out of the mystery sprang the natural suspicion that Mr. Brulatour had, in a moment of depression, tried to shoot himself. Perhaps, I thought, "The American Way," which is pretty depressing toward its close, when the German-American hero is carried from a stage church in a flag-draped coffin between lines of sorrowing citizens, after having been beaten to death by a radical group [since then definitly identified as a meeting of a Nazi bund]—perhaps that sad finish so worked on the Brulatour emotions that he went home and, after brooding all day Sunday, decided to end it all. Perhaps as he raised the revolver Hope made a wild grab for it and succeeded in deflecting the shot; hence the bullet in the back of the neck.

However, so far as the inquisitors from the district attorney's office have been able to find out, nothing of that kind occurred. It was, they say, a simple gun-cleaning-didn't-know-it-was-loaded accident.

But, I am pleased to report, the Messrs. George Kaufman and Moss Hart have softened the funeral finish for "The American Way" somewhat. At first they took out the casket episode entirely. Then, when that seemed to interfere with the play's emotional impact upon the audience, they put it back, but shortened the audience's view of it.

Being steadfastly opposed to this particular type of realism in the theater, I still contend the parade of a casket in a funeral procession is unnecessary and really harmful to the play. It is certain, I believe, to divert the thought of any audience from the sorrows of the beaten play hero to its own sad remembrances of death and the depressing customs associated with the disposal of the dead. If that is good theater I'm a goat.

There was also a good deal of drama of the spectacular kind included in the screen contributions of the week. Notably in the case of RKO's screening of "Gunga Din," which was displayed with a lot of excitement at the Messrs. Rockefeller's Radio City Music Hall on Thursday.

Here, I would say offhand, is a picture devised and produced with the fight-glorying male in mind as an audience almost exclusively. Sock! Sock! Sock! The trio of rough boys who had rather fight, with the director and the camera man looking on, than eat—the Messrs. Victor McLaglen, Gary Cooper and Douglas Fairbanks Jr.—furnish a great escape for us desk and counter fellows who never had much success fighting—not even fighting our way into and out of subway crushes.

A good part of "Gunga Din," with an original story by Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht [both of whom probably loathe it], is in the best motion picture tradition—which is to say it has action, sweep, beauty of scenic background and primitive emotional appeal.

The perils of Pauline were nothing compared with the perils of Victor, Gary and Doug. Nor the victories of Joe Louis any more impressive. They set 'em up and knock 'em down by ones, twos, and platoons. Once or twice the heroes are in jeopardy. Once Victor and Gary are lashed by a fiendish head of a tribe of thugs [Edouard Cianelli] until their backs are groved and bloody. But mostly they are on top and, knowing the script, utterly unafraid.

Sam Jaffe, a fine and sensitive character actor who is now playing in "The Gentle People," has the name part. The boys had to put him in to preserve their right to use the Kipling poem, and they have done it as unobtrusively as possible. The brave black water-boy edges into the action as an ambitious fellow who hopes one day to be a bugler. He weaves in and out, assuaging the burning thirst of the fighting men. At the last, with a bayonet wound in his side and a couple of crushed ribs, he crawls the walls of a golden palace like a steeplejack and sounds a warning that saves a British regiment from annihilation.

The boys have also introduced the late Mr. Kipling as a young newspaper correspondent in the field. In fact he is writing this particular barrack room ballad as the fighting is going on. Which gives Montague Love a chance to read a verse or two at Gunga Din's funeral. Good work, Rudyard!

Extremes Rule in New French Spring Styles

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Extreme measures are used by the Paris dressmakers to make new styles for spring. I say "styles" because monogamy in fashion is a dead issue, and none of the French big shots advocate a single standard of dress in their collections. As an example, little girl clothes, taken out of a Victorian story book, are shown side by side with slinky, supermodern, broad shouldered models for daytime in spring. The first is ruffled, sweet, and simple, the second daring and adult. A third major movement is a new kind of country bumpkin style that is fake, in that it comes from 18th century shepherdesses and milkmaids as played by aristocrats of that epoch.

There is one point on which many of the big dressmakers agree, no matter what school of thought their dresses follow, and that point is a newly lowered waistline, but one that's fitted so that it has no resemblance to the low waistline of the twenties. Along with this low waistline the skirts of daytime clothes are an inch or two shorter, which makes all the new clothes look strikingly new.

Topcoat monogamy is ousted by variation in coat silhouettes in the major collections. Molyneux and Mainbocher show absolutely straight line topcoats, some buttoned up to the neck, some open. These are very new, and are slated for big success. Schiaparelli, Vionnet, Mainbocher, and others show very fitted long day coats, with flared or easy skirts, or with daringly new ruffled and tiered skirts. Necklines and collarlines of coats, no matter what their body lines, agree in a tailored simplicity, with low collars or none.

Suits, and with them blouses, are impressive items in the new Paris shows. They also vary in silhouette. Very young suit with extremely short, skin fitted jackets and skirts made full with gathered, plaited, or gored treatment, are important. Hip and wrist length jacket suits, the jackets fitted and semi-fitted, and the skirts quite full, are daringly different, and are adult and fascinating. There are loads of soft suits, sponsored by Paquin, Bruyere, Lelong, and Piguet, which often remind me of the belles of 1900 in a tendency to leg o'mutton sleeves, full skirts, and the soft light colors in which they come. Blouses have definite personality, and are mostly very feminine and flattering and trimmed with lace, shirring, smocking, and plaits. They come in vibrant pastels and in white.

Dinner suits are camouflaged this spring, and made to look like dresses, so it's an exciting shock when the jacket is peeled off.

Spring colors are soft and vibrant, and come in shades called tone-on-tone, three or four shades of a color to a costume, and counting the clothes and the accessories, sometimes up to five. Odd greens, acid or alcoholic, are shown, and all the yellows, and very new "true blues" along with vibrant navy and cornflower. Very soft pinks, such as bois du rose and terra cotta, rival the vivid ones such as cyclamen. Black still is going strong, but with contrast color relief, and here and there striking widow black unlightened by any color. Gray looks like a victorious "outsider" and there is a whole range of light, springlike reds.

Materials usually are smooth surfaced, be they wool or silk. Cashmere-like wools are very important. Printed silks are big items, but the patterns are small and orderly rather than bizarre. Wool satin is new and dramatic. Crisp silks will be important, silks such as moire, taffeta, and surah. Loads of soft crêpe silks are used for dresses, and jersey still is "in."

Mainbocher's black ensemble has a daringly short dress skirt, eked out by a bright plaid taffeta petticoat. Plaid taffeta gloves and a taffeta flower are accessory notes. The very straight coat has a circular ruffle hem at the back.

One new costume is the Victorian schoolgirl to the life, and is a new Mainbocher fashion. This suit is made of navy blue wool and the jacket looks a lot more like a quaint basque bodice, trimmed with crossed red and white enamel trophy ornaments. A quaint blue and white dotted guimpe and sleeves appear out of a low waisted, fitted basque waist. The skirt is circular over a dotted petticoat.

Classifying Dessert Lists.

Dessert lists kept in the cookbook are a help in menu making, especially when they are classified as "hearty," "light," "quick," "good for several days," "oven made," and "for children."

WE don't promise a "wonder cure" for children's colds, BUT—most folks advise a good "clearing out" as the first step in dealing with colds—and FEEN-A-MINT's ideal because youngsters take it gladly. No tears or tantrums. FEEN-A-MINT is good—good—children get all its famous benefits simply by chewing. No wonder folks say: "It seems just like magic!" Millions rely on FEEN-A-MINT—try it yourself!

The new cabinet is available in 33 or 43-inch heights with two or three shelves, depending on the height of the cabinet selected. Painted white, it is readily ensembled with any color already used in the bathroom.

Crocheted Luncheon Set Has a Dainty, Fragile Air

By Ellen Bruce.

Here is a crocheted luncheon set which fairly exudes daintiness and charm as well as fragility and freshness. It has the rather unpretentious title of "Fish Net" pattern, but when it is created of fine ecru crochet cotton and stiffly starched, it has all the regal grandeur of the finest and most elegant of handmade laces. A couple of hanks of inexpensive crochet cotton are all that are required to crochet a set of four place mats and a runner. The stitches, as may be seen in the small illustration, are none other than the simple chain stitch coupled with a double row of double and single crochets, so it is easy to see how little time is required to make one set of four, and if the worker is ambitious service for eight may be made at little extra cost.

For instructions for crocheting the "Fish Net" luncheon set, No. X-61, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The fifth issue of United States stamped envelopes was manufactured by George H. Reay and is called the Reay issue to distinguish it from the succeeding series, or Plimpton issue, which was the product of the Plimpton Manufacturing company. The embossed stamps of the Reay issue represents the finest workmanship in dies and printing to be found throughout the history of United States envelopes, and are easy to distinguish from the imitations which were brought out by the succeeding contractor.

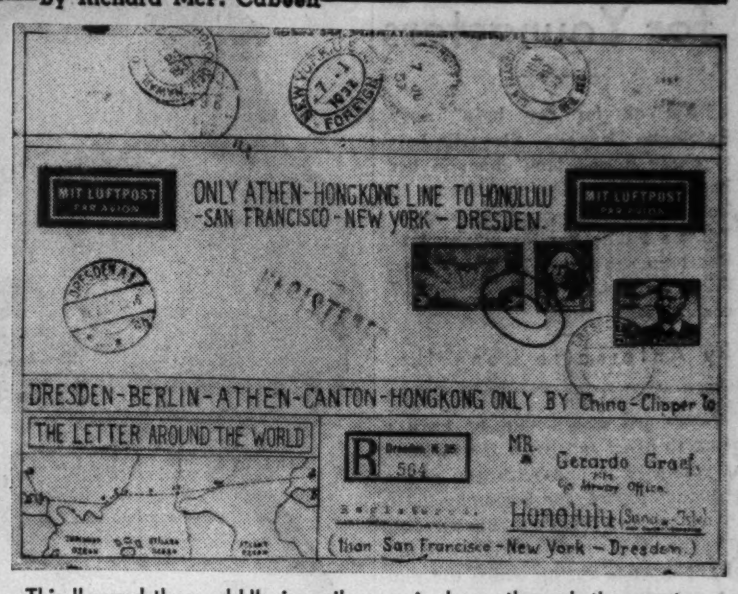
The Reay issue was in use from 1870 until 1874 and consisted of eleven values corresponding to the adhesive postage set of that time and bearing portraits of the same personages. The designs are uniform to a certain extent, for all are in the form of an upright ellipse, with "U. S. Postage" at the top and a label showing the value in words at the bottom, with various shaped tablets at either side containing the numerals of value.

The inscriptions are in color upon a band of engine turned ornament, while the numerals are colorless, except in the case of the 7 cent value, which has colored figures upon a colorless background. This value was not a part of the original set as issued, but was added, just as in the case of the adhesive stamps, to prepay letters to Germany.

Four colors of paper were used for this series of envelopes, but no one value occurs on more than three of these. The 1 cent blue, Franklin, and the 2 cent brown, Jackson, are on white, amber, and orange papers. The 3 cent green, Washington; 6 cent red, Lincoln; 12 cent plum, Clay; 15 cent orange, Webster; 24 cent purple, Scott; 30 cent black, Hamilton, and 90 cent carmine, Perry, are found on white, amber, and cream papers. The 7 cent vermilion, Stanton, envelope was printed on amber paper only, and the 10 cent Jefferson, which is usually brown on amber or white paper, also is known in black on white paper and in olive black on amber paper. These latter two varieties are the scarcest of the Reay issues.

Cream colored paper appears for the first time in the envelopes of the Reay issue. It is probably a misnomer, as it is actually a light salmon, a very warm tone compared to the richest cream. The color known as amber is also misnamed, as the paper is actually a pale yellow, having nothing in common with the rich yellow brown or red brown shades found in natural amber.

A future article will describe the Plimpton issue, which succeeded the Reay issue in 1874 and in which the contractor used designs poorly copied from the fine engraving of his predecessor.



This "round-the-world" air mail cover is shown through the courtesy of Rosa Beresch of Chicago. It made the circuit by air, wherever possible, from Dresden, Germany, and passed through Hongkong, Canton, Honolulu, San Francisco, and New York, occupying about seven weeks in the trip.

Stamp Notes.

A new variety of 2 cent black Harding commemorative stamp was located recently among the stock of a leading New York stamp dealer. The new variety is a rotary press stamp, perforated 11. Normally the flat plate Harding stamps were perforated 11, while the rotary press stamps of that issue were perforated 10. Until this recent discovery was made there has never been a suspicion that any rotary press stamp was perforated on the machines reserved solely for flat plate printed stamps. Rotary press stamps may be distinguished by a difference in size of design and by a general grayish appearance, while the flat plate stamps are ordinarily full black on clear white paper.

Taking a lead from the stamp collectors' style book, numismatists have selected the period from March 25 to March 31 as National Coin week. Radio programs, news stories, and exhibitions are promised for the week. Detailed announcements will be made later.

Considerable confusion exists regarding postage and air mail stamps to be issued by the Canal Zone to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Panama canal. Announcements have been made that some sixteen ordinary postage and six air mail stamps are to be issued, not only by the Canal Zone, but also by the republic of Panama. It is believed that this confusion is the result of loose writing by some one who persists in using the name Panama Canal Zone for Canal Zone. The only authentic announcement seen to date is concerning the Canal Zone and lists a series of twenty-two stamps, which will be placed on sale on Aug. 15.

Many residents interested in the history of Chicagoland, and this includes many who are not stamp or poster stamp collectors, are admiring the handsome set of poster stamps which are being handed out at all Jewel Food stores. In addition, there is an album with spaces for the complete series of stamps, each space being supplemented by a concise statement regarding the portrait or scene represented.

Part 7 Drama Music Education

Chicago Sunday Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

FEBRUARY 5, 1939.

One for all and all for one, as were Dumas' three musketeers, are the trio of pals portrayed by Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen, and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. in "Gunga Din." (Palace.) This is a scene from the picture.

Left: This is one of the many members of Trudi Schoop's company of "dancing comedians." The troupe with their popular star will appear both in the afternoon and the evening at the Civic theater today.

Wilder's 'Our Town' Will End Chicago Run Next Saturday

Order Received from New York to Close Drama

By Cecil Smith.

A direct order from the New York office of its producer, Jed Harris, causes "Our Town" to cut short by a week its engagement at the Selwyn theater. On Saturday night, therefore, Thornton Wilder's drama of New England life at the turn of the century will end its Chicago career—and perhaps its entire adventure on the road. The closing order is an unhappy instance of absentee landlordism, for three weeks must surely be too short a period to accommodate all those who will wish to see so novel and stimulating a play.

The absence of virtually all scenery and properties has attracted special attention to the manner in which "Our Town" is staged. Although this play was the first to bring Mr. Wilder's abstemious temperament to the fore, he has used the device before. In a one act play entitled "The Happy Journey to Trenton and Camden" [to be found in a collection of six short plays by Mr. Wilder called "The Long Christmas Dinner"] there is an instance of similarly stark make believe. Here chairs are placed in the arrangement of automobile seats, and a family carries on a holiday conversation while supposedly driving across New Jersey.

Actually, Mr. Wilder's naked stage in "Our Town" is far less significant than the amazing flexibility of his dramatic form. By means of the "stage manager" [Frank Craven] he is able to shunt his audience back and forth in time and space without causing it to get lost. No single act is limited to a single locale or a single day and year. People come onto the stage when they are needed, and are waved off by Mr. Craven when they have made their special contributions. Events of the past are introduced into the context of the present when they help to clear up important points. One can best pay tribute to Mr. Wilder's wayward genius by applauding him for precipitating a clear, fluent narrative out of material that might easily have remained in chaotic confusion.

When the season's tally is added up, "Our Town" will figure as one of the most significant entries of the year. The performance slides along on beautifully greased runways. Emily Varden and Helen Carew are prize examples of perfect casting, as the busy, honest mothers of the two children who get married. John Craven and Dorothy McGuire are charming children, and John's father, Frank, Thomas W. Ross and James Spottswood have a seasoned way of keeping the performance constantly alive.

Shortly after the departure of Frank and John Craven from the Chicago stage, there will be another father and son combination in town. The two will appear in two different plays, however. Philip Merivale comes to the Grand Opera house Feb. 26 as the star of "Angela Is Twenty-two." His son, Jack Merivale, precedes him by two weeks, arriving at the Selwyn theater next Sunday to play a secondary part in "Bachelor Born."

"Angela Is Twenty-two" received brief notice in this column a few weeks ago, on the occasion of tryout performances in Milwaukee. It is a comedy written by Sinclair Lewis, Nobel prize winning author, with the collaboration of Fay Wray, motion picture actress. Its theme is the difficulty of maintaining a successful marriage when the partners are 30 years apart in age.

When the comedy played in Milwaukee Sinclair Lewis himself acted the title rôle. Since that time he has turned his assignment over to Philip Merivale. Mr. Lewis remains with the company, however, to deliver curtain speeches. Flora Campbell, a charming ingénue, appears as Mr. Merivale's 22 year old wife. The play is produced by John Wildberg and staged by Harry Wagstaff Gribble.

"Bachelor Born," the next addition to our local playbills, was originally produced as "The Housemaster," although it had acquired its present title before it entered upon the Broadway scene a year ago. The story concerns the escapades of three girls who, by a series of circumstances, visit a boys' boarding school in England. The script is written with considerable delicacy, in view of the potentialities of its subject matter. The claim is made that there is not so much as one unclean or off color line.

The Chicago production of "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," currently crowding the Harris theater, lacks a stage effect which caused much comment in New York. In the original production the effect of a speeding train in the first scene was accomplished by the play of intermittent lights through a three inch slot in the back of the set. The realism was good, but the effect hurt the eyes of front row patrons, and Brock Pemberton, the producer, decided to discard it.

Their fortnight's engagement completed, the members of Cornelia Otis Skinner's "Candida" company left the Grand Opera house last night for an extended tour. In immediate prospect are visits to Madison, Wis., Milwaukee, Minneapolis and St. Louis. The New York opening is now tentatively scheduled for May.

Unauthenticated rumors are flying around concerning the plans of the Federal Theater project, which dearly loves to keep its activities as secret as it can. One rumor runs to the effect that the Federal theater would like to transport "The Mikado" to New York in the near future, in order to display the most successful venture in the entire history of the project. If this proves to be their intention, the current Great Northern theater engagement will doubtless be broken off soon, no matter how great the business.

The other Federal theater production—"The Copperhead"—has again postponed its closing date. The Blackstone theater's tenant will give its final performance the evening of Feb. 12, after adding a special Lincoln's day matinée in the afternoon.

The current offering of the Jack and Jill players at their weekly Saturday morning performances in the Civic theater is "The Little Lame Prince." Cleveland Towne, a young radio actor, is cast in the title rôle. The bill will be continued through all the Saturdays in February.

BUSY LULL

As Cindy Lou, a genuine Georgia product, Lucia Lull is the cause for much of the fun in the Harris theater's current success, "Kiss the Boys Goodbye."

Vaudeville

Both the stage and screen shows at the Chicago theater have been held over for a second week. Happy Felton, the genial maestro, heads a revue that includes Gower and Jeanne, Lorraine Barre, Les Chezzis, Louise Dunne, Eddy Platt, Billy Galbraith, Tommy Gray, Marty Snerd, the "Swingaroos," the "Mountaineers," and the Happy Felton Glee club. "Jesse James" is the film, starring Tyrone Power, Henry Fonda, Nancy Kelly, and Randolph Scott.

The ever popular Chester Hale girls with other well known RKO vaudeville acts are to be seen at the Palace theater. The screen attraction is the mighty "Gunga Din," with Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen, and Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

Vaudeville at the Oriental theater features Chilton and Thomas, whose appearances include a world tour and a command performance before the king and queen of England; Joe Termini, musical comedian; Alland and Creel, comedy pair; the Karre le Baron dancers; Ginger Dulo, swing songstress; Verne Buck, and others. The double feature on the screen will pair "Arrest Bulldog Drummond" and "Western Jamboree."

The current stage show at the State-Lake theater marks the return to the footlights of Gus Van, lately devoting his time to radio and café appearances. He introduces a new partner, Harry de Costa, composer of "Tiger Rag." Other acts are Lorraine and Rognan, Frank Payne, Ross and Stone, Una Cooper, and Paul Nolan. The screen features Akim Tamiroff, Frances Farmer, and Leif Erikson in "Ride a Crooked Mile."

At the Rialto theater the list of stage performers is made up of such headliners as Della Carroll, Ada Leonard, Juanita Bates, Barbara Bow, Jean Carter, and Marion Miller. "Annabel Takes a Tour" is the film.

Electrical Orchestra.

An electrical orchestra, composed of twenty-four players, yet having the volume of a 150 piece ensemble, is being perfected by Leopold Stokowski. The famous conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra has been working on the invention at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena. After he has conducted the première of the orchestra at the Golden Gate exposition in August, the leader will take the ensemble on a tour already booked into the winter.

Opera Board

Robert Hall McCormick, executive vice president of the Chicago City Opera company, announced last week the following board of governors for the organization:

Mayor Kelly, honorary chairman; Mr. McCormick, chairman; William H. Stevenson, assistant to the board, and John D. Allen, Laurence H. Armour, Hill Blackett, L. E. Block, Johnston A. Bowman, Charles E. Brown, Col. George T. Buckingham, Robert H. Cabell, Robert F. Carr, L. Lewis Cohn, Charles S. Davis, F. B. Ernst, George B. Everitt, Barnett Faroll, Weymouth Kirkland, Ira Nelson Morris, James B. McCahey, Fred A. Poor, Guy Reed, Charles C. Renshaw, Abner Stilwell, J. C. Thompson, Robert B. Upham, Jason F. Whitney, and Albert N. Williams.

Mr. McCormick explained that the duties of the board will be to direct opera policy, to consider and execute methods for its proper financing, and select officers who will be responsible to the board of governors. He added that there will be no change in the present officers nor management of the opera company.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Although it has made over 3,400 concerts on its several world tours the General Platoff Don Cossack choir is visiting America for the first time this season. Their Chicago concert will be given in the Auditorium theater today. This group is not to be confused with the familiar Don Cossacks who appeared at the Civic Opera house last fall.

Today's singers are Russian exiles who settled in Czecho-Slovakia after the revolution. Under the patronage of Drs. Masaryk and Benes, then the president and minister of foreign affairs of the young republic, the choir was formed. Nicholas Kostrukoff became—as he still is—the director, and the choir adopted the name of a famous Cossack general, Platoff, who had performed great military feats a century before. Vienna in 1926 was the scene of their first successful concert, and their tours since then have taken them to several parts of the world, including South America.

The program this afternoon is made up largely of folk songs in varying moods. Sacred anthems by Lomakin, Donizetti, and Tschaikowsky are included in the first group. Dancing also forms part of the concert, in which Basil Ivanoff will perform a spectacular routine with knives.

Joseph Bentonelli, tenor of the Metropolitan opera and Chicago City Opera companies, will give a recital in Orchestra hall, Saturday night, as part of the Adult Education council's Musical Arts concert series. The tenor comes from Sayre, Okla., where he was known as Joe Benton. His appearances at the Civic Opera house last autumn included the leading tenor rôles in "The Barber of Seville," "Martha," "Faust," and "La Gioconda." With Merrill Freeland accompanying at the piano he will offer a group of songs in the old English style; French songs by Hue, Massenet and Koechlin; an aria from Vittadini's "Anima Allegra;" lieder by Strauss, Wolf, Grieg and Weingartner, and selections by Head, Branscombe, Sibelius, and Hageman. The concert will be prefaced at 7:50 by the usual lecture of Dr. Hans Rosenwald.

A young American pianist, Hazel Griggs, will make an appearance at the Studebaker theater today. Born in Texas, she has studied extensively in Cincinnati, New York, and Paris with such teachers as Lhevinne, Petri, and Cortot. In addition to her concertizing Miss Griggs gave a series of eight programs for children at the Texas Centennial exposition two years ago. The concert program lists the Bach-Tausig Toccata and Fugue in D minor, two pieces by Couperin, a C. P. E. Bach sonata, Mendelsshon's Variations Sérieuses, four selections by Brahms, two by Debussy, Ravel's Sonatine, and three preludes by Gershwin.

The first program of the Hans Lange Chamber orchestra series, scheduled for last Monday and canceled because of the blizzard, will be given on Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. The group is conducted by Hans Lange and will be assisted on the program by the Philharmonic String quartet. The unchanged program is as follows:

Symphony, E-flat Major..............Stamitz
Quintet, opus 29, for two violins, two violas, and cello..............Beethoven
Four Episodes..............Bloch
[First performance in Chicago.]

Two young Chicagoans will share the program at the Beaux Arts Salon in the Medinah club today. They are Dorothy Cunningham, coloratura soprano, and Marion Butler, pianist; both are only sixteen, and both have appeared on radio broadcasts. The New Century committee of Chicago and the Greater West Side Fine Arts committee are the sponsors. The pianist's contributions to the program are standard items by Chopin, Griffes, MacDowell, and Liszt. The soprano has included several of the best known operatic coloratura arias in her groups.

George Swigart, violinist, and Phillip Culkin, baritone, will give a joint recital at the Winnetka Woman's club tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock.

The WAAF Symphonic hour, at noon on Tuesday, will play a rare recording loaned to the station by Anna Dvorak [no relation to the famous composer]. The record is Czecho-Slovakian, made by Karel Reiner, playing on a quarter tone piano. The composition played is a suite for the Quarter-Tone Piano, Op. 11b, by Alois Haba, who has written much for this type of instrument. The composer himself gave the record to Miss Dvorak.

Hans Levy Heniot, who left Chicago six years ago to study and work abroad, marks his return to this city by conducting the Illinois Symphony orchestra at the Great Northern theater today. He is related to two musicians well known to Chicagoans—Heniot Levy, his father, resident pianist and composer, and Alexander Kipnis, his brother-in-law, opera and concert basso. The conductor's experiences in the past six years include receiving instruction from Pizzetti in Milan and the Stadts Hochschule in Berlin, and conducting prominent orchestras in Vienna, Moscow, Czecho-Slovakia, and South America.

Part of his duties today will include the first performance of four songs for soprano and orchestra by Radie Britain. The Chicago composer recently was awarded a first prize by the Texas Federation of Music Clubs for her "Rhapsodic Phantasie" for piano and orchestra, given its world première last April by the Illinois Symphony orchestra. Singing the new songs will be Esther Hart, a Chicago artist who is familiar to radio and concert audiences.

The full program for the afternoon follows:

Overture to "The Secret of Suzanne" ....Wolf-Ferrari
"Clouds" and "Festivals"..........Debussy
"Alborada del Gracioso"..............Ravel
"Sunken City," "Open the Door," "Twilight Moon," and "In Living Ecstasy"..............Britain
Esther Hart.
[First performance.]
Symphony No. 7, A Major........Beethoven

Assisted by a group of nine dancers, Walter Camryn will make his first independent appearance in Chicago this afternoon at the Goodman theater. Mr. Camryn is, however, a familiar personage to local dance enthusiasts and opera patrons, for he has been associated with Ruth Page's ballet, both when it performed independently and when it appeared with the resident opera companies.

Two one-act ballets and several divertisements comprise the program. The ballets are Erik Satie's "Mercure," choreographed by Bentley Stone, and "Roundelay," composed by Camryn to Ravel's "Valses Nobles et Sentimentales." "Casey at the Bat," "Hot Afternoons," "Ditties," and "Fashion Is Spinach" are titles of some of the remaining dances.

Eloise Moore, Bettina Rosay, Mary Gehr, Ursula Deasey, Margot Koche, Betsy Ross, Lila Volkoff, Jean Dovell, and Bernadine Oates will be the assisting dancers. Lora Aborn and Virginia Weber will be the accompanists.

Several items regarding the forthcoming concert by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra in the Auditorium theater are of special interest. The orchestra's conductor, Dimitri Mitropoulos, will make his first appearance locally on this occasion. Chicago will get its first opportunity to hear the conductor's transcription of Bach's organ fantasia and fugue in G minor. Malipiero's piano concerto will also receive its local première, Mitropoulos himself being the soloist while conducting from the piano. Besides the Bach and Malipiero compositions the orchestra will play Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel" and Brahms' fourth symphony. Feb. 21 is the date of this welcome concert, which is sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary and the Hellenic Craftsmen for the benefit of the Illinois Masonic Hospital association.

Natalie Rudeis, a scholarship holder in the University of Chicago's music department, will offer a piano recital in Kimball hall Monday night. The attractive program she has assembled will include the Bach-Busoni chaconne, a Clementi sonata, Schumann's "Phantasiestücke," six Paganini-Schumann etudes, pieces by Chopin and Rachmaninoff, and a Prokofieff sonata in one movement.

"Pirmyn," Chicago's Lithuanian chorus, is sponsoring a recital in Kimball hall tonight by Victor Bender, tenor, and Symeta Zimmerman, pianist. The tenor was recently the recipient of a scholarship to study in Europe.

The Chicago Woman's Musical club announces a contest for three scholarships of $100 each in vioce, piano and strings, to take place on Friday evening, March 31, in the Fine Arts building. Contestants must be native born or of naturalized American parents, and shall have studied with a teacher in Chicago or its suburbs for at least thirty weeks preceding entrance in the contest. The age limit for pianists, violinists, and cellists is twenty-four years; in voice, twenty-nine years. In addition to the scholarships, the winners are awarded a recital early next fall. March 1 is the final date for entry, and applications can be secured from Katherine Conlon Johnson, 80 East Jackson boulevard.

BRANDT NEW

Continental's Current Show Season's Best

A fragile blonde, a sprightly brunette, and a band full of entertainers are currently turning out the best floor show seen this season in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel.

The blonde is Francine, who with her partner, Rod Drigo, presents a répertoire of dances. No matter how intricate the steps, how difficult the lifts and whirls, there is always an overtone of effortless grace.

The brunette is the captain of the Dorothy Byton line of girls—Eleanor Christian. Eleanor's featured dances set a fast pace for her co-workers, but the line stays right in the running. It is the most compact and entertaining chorus on the avenue.

For comedy, Eddie Brandt and the Rhythm Boys stop playing the most danceable sort of music long enough to produce some of the year's best novelty songs. Favorite with the opening night audience was "Chin Chin Cheerio." Star of the entertainers is Jules Mendelson, the drummer with a flair for impersonations. His Jimmy Durante is better than Eddie Garr's, whose Jimmy was considered about as good as Durante himself.

At five she started dancing. At thirteen she entered a movie theater protégé show featuring Harry Richman. At 13½ she was sent back to school. Snce then [she's now 20] she has been singing. She is Mildred Fenton, star of the Gold Coast room show in the Drake hotel. Mildred is little and adorable, and her arranger, Phil Ellis, has provided her with songs that express her personality. By far the favorite of every one, including Wayne King, is "So Help Me," a wistful sort of number.

The discovery of the present show is Bob Rich, Northwestern university student, whose baritone versions of "Ol' Man River" and the "Desert Song" indicate a worthwhile talent. With Wayne King's tutelage, it won't be long before he has the finesse that makes a finished singer.

If you've never seen a man dance on his head and bounce on the back of his neck, Horton Spurr will show you.

Wayne King continues the music that has made him famous, and as a feature plays "Deep Purple."

Scheduled to open last night was Bob Neller, ventriloquist.

* *

Eddie White is coming back to the Royal Frolics soon, with Dolly Kay, and that's just dandy with the south-of-the-loop spot's patrons. Eddie can handle any kind of a crowd. Topping that, he is one of the steadiest volunteers when a benefit show looms nigh.

* *

Miss Franklin Crawford, who with her dance partner, Joseph Caskey, headlines the Midwinter revue that opened in the Palmer House Empire room Thursday, is something of a Chicagoan. Henry Crawford, railway lawyer, was her grandfather. Her father, W. R. Crawford, was for a number of years a board member of the Chicago Yacht club. Miss Crawford was born in Seattle.

With the dance team in the new show is Bill Talent, novelty juggler, Jack Williams, tap dancer, and José Castro, castanet dancer. The Abbott girls and Orrin Tucker's suave swing continue to be the popular background of the Empire room entertainment.

Dwight Fiske is filling the Colony club regularly, despite the weather, and although his present run ends this week, he will be back later in the year.

* *

Mike Fritzel and Joe Jacobson evidently have appointed themselves as their own severest competitors. Their procedure is like this: They gather the Frazee sisters, Eddie Garr, a couple of sure fire supporting acts, dress the bill with a half dozen of Fred Evans' best ensemble numbers, and present Chez Paree patrons with a compact, beautifully balanced show. So what happens? So they get Milton Berle to sign a seven weeks' contract, add Gracie Barrie, discover Everett West and Lucien and Ashour, and prod Mr. Evans into giving six more production numbers, and in a twinkling they have a compact, beautifully balanced show, with a terrific punch.

Then what happens? They get Lupe Velez to sign a contract, add the names of Everett West, Paul Haakon, Harris and Shore, and Gloria Bay, and without so much as a prod get more of Fred Evans' brainchildren—and they have what promises to be another slightly terrific show, come next Friday. You can't beat that kind of competition, only they do.

Night sights: Maggi McNellis continuing to hold the spotlight between her shows at the Balinese room, but as the best dancer on the floor. . . . Tom Montgomery of the Stevens doing a workmanlike rumba in the Continental room. . . . Mildred Fenton taking a busman's holiday by going to Chez Paree to hear Gracie Barrie sing. . . . More than 500 costumed guests at last night's "Gay Nineties" party in the Edgewater Beach hotel Marine dining room, sponsored by Misericordia hospital. [The Four Gordons, Fred Goody, wire dancer, Herbie Holmes orchestra, and the Harriet Smith lovely ladies gave the regular show.]

* *

Tony Owen of the Congress comes in breathless with the news that Lew Story, manager of the Royal Ambassadors, now playing in the Glass Hat, made his Chicago debut at the Trianon with Dell Lampe . . . that Eddie Fritz, accordionist-trumpeter-pianist with the Ambassadors, tooted his own horn in the Harrison High school band in Chicago some time back . . . that Ozzie Westley, also of the Ambassadors, uses an organ-guitar to get those smoothy effects . . . that Joe Vera is doing all right, thank you, at the Peacock room piano, and Irving McGrath and his chamber music still charm the Pompeian room diners, which leaves the fourth and last member of the Ambassador about as little publicized as the other senator from Idaho.

De Kalb Faculty Member Lauds Normal School

By the Rev. John Evans.

J. Hal Connor, head of the department of English at Northern Illinois State Teachers' college, De Kalb, has taken issue with Walter G. Clippinger, president of Otterbein college, Westerville, O., who in a Louisville, Ky., speech cited Pennsylvania studies which preferred liberal arts colleges over teachers' colleges for teacher training.

The Clippinger address referred to tests made by Dean Romeyn H. Rivenburg of Bucknell university, which indicated that Pennsylvania school principals by three to one favored liberal arts graduates over teachers' college graduates. Prof. Connor based objections on the view that the vast majority of those who expect to teach plan to do so on the elementary or grade school level.

"Dr. Clippinger cited the Rivenburg studies to show that high school principals favored new teachers with liberal arts training over those with teachers' college training by three to one," said Prof. Connor. "Then he points out that more than 90 per cent of the supervising principals of Pennsylvania are liberal arts graduates.

"Is it not possible that the educational background of the principals is responsible for their prejudice in favor of liberal arts graduates? I grant that there has been a decided prejudice in that direction, but I believe it is rapidly declining."

Prof. Connor then explained that his own education in "the three major universities of Illinois" had prepared him to take the same view while he was a high school principal as pointed out in the Rivenburg studies. In common with usual views, he said, he believed that methods and classroom techniques predominated in the curriculum of a teachers' college and for that reason had preferred liberal arts applicants.

"But I know now that I was wrong," Prof. Connor asserted. "The more progressive teachers' colleges require very few courses in methods. The number of 'education' courses required here in De Kalb barely satisfies the requirements of the North Central association for secondary school teachers.

"We offer rich curricula in the various subject matter fields. We achieve our college rating on the basis of comparison with liberal arts colleges. Other high school principals are coming to understand, as I did, that teachers' colleges are 'academically respectable!'"

Prof. Connor said that many young men and young women are deeply interested in the teaching of American youth and added that institutions preparing young people for such careers have an important responsibility. He said the placement record of the state teachers' college at De Kalb provides a view of high school principals' minds concerning the De Kalb graduate's effectiveness.

Total number of graduates nearing bachelors' or other degrees	105
Number in teaching positions	84
In positions other than teaching	7
In school [graduate or special]	6
Unemployed or not reporting	8
Total number of diploma [two year] graduates	128
In teaching positions	112
In positions other than teaching	3
In school	9
Not interested in teaching	1
Unemployed or not reporting	3

This report means that more than 87 per cent of the 1938 graduates of the De Kalb college are employed and more than 84 per cent are teaching school.

Chicago to Hear Berg's Violin Concerto for First Time

Music Festival Spurs Events in Other Cities

By Cecil Smith.

Aug. 19 already has been set aside as the date of the tenth annual Chicagoland Music festival. Like its nine successful predecessors, the festival will be held in Soldiers' field and will be sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc. A great pre-festival luncheon is again planned for the day before the festival.

Philip Maxwell, director of the Chicagoland Music festival, expects to make an extraordinary occasion out of this tenth gathering in the name of massed popular music. All the participating contestants—bands, singers, instrumentalists—are invited to share in the celebration. The tenth festival will thus become a summary and a glorification of all the achievements of the nine previous ones.

The total attendance figures for the past festivals are a bit staggering. Around 900,000 men, women, and children have come to Soldiers' field as auditors. More than 50,000 people from the whole vast middle west have participated in the performances as soloists, choristers, band players, actors in pageants, or in the many necessary executive and administrative functions. In addition to these 950,000, uncountable millions have heard radio broadcasts of the festivals.

With nine years of experience behind them and plans already well in progress for the tenth summer, the festival staf has long since faced and conquered most of the mechanical and organizational problems of so vast an undertaking. Virtually every contingency has already arisen at least once. Last year's festival rolled off with almost unbelievably well greased machinery. And I wish you might peek into the record files just to gain a small idea of the number of mistakes in detail that might have been made!

Other communities are rapidly taking up the idea of sponsoring summer music festivals patterned after the Chicagoland festival. As the movement spreads, and public interest is awakened in an increasing number of communities, THE TRIBUNE stands ready and eager to pass on the fruits of its successful experience. All prospective festival sponsors are invited to ask freely for advice and guidance.

A fortnight before the tenth Chicagoland festival occurs the second Mississippi Valley festival will take place in East Moline on Aug. 6. Here is an undertaking frankly planned after the Soldiers' field event. The contests are organized to parallel those of the parent festival. Last summer the winning contestants at East Moline were sent to Chicago. They emerged from the Chicagoland competition with smiles of satisfaction, for they had four prizes to their credit. Thus the Mississippi Valley festival serves a double purpose: It provides the citizens of the region surrounding the tri-cities with a regional musical celebration; and it serves as a proving ground for contestants in the larger Chicagoland festival.

Now the word comes that the festival idea has winged its way southward. Sponsored by the Miami Daily News, the South Florida music festival is scheduled to take place in Miami on Feb. 18. The details have been arranged by James Le Gate of the Miami Daily News, with the support of the publisher and managing editor of that newspaper.

Advance announcements of the occasion bear a flattering similarity to those of the Chicago Tribune festival. Three major competitions are already nearing their final stages—for singers, solo instrumentalists, and baton twirlers. Bands, drum and bugle corps, and choruses from the public schools are also invited to take part. The spectacle will take place in Miami's Burdine stadium.

The newest city to adopt the festival idea is nearby Whiting. This year the northern Indiana city is observing the golden jubilee of its founding in 1889. One of the principal civic celebrations will be the Calumet District Music festival on July 1 and 2. George Calder, supervisor of music in the Whiting public schools, has taken over the direction of the festival. He is planning an occasion with a double significance comparable to that of the Mississippi Valley festival. To the usual outline of events he has added a choir contest with the intention of bringing hundreds of additional singers into rapport with the plan. Furthermore, he expects to augment his program by presenting outstanding Chicago artists at each concert.

These important instances do not complete the list by any means. Another valuable venture is the Central Illinois Music District festival, organizing the musical resources of the Urbana-Champaign region. It is hoped that the Racine, Wis., festival, allowed to lapse last summer after seven successful years, will be resumed in 1939.

In the next few years it is possible to envisage a rapid growth in the number of local and regional festivals inaugurated throughout the country. These undertakings perform a useful community function in holding together through the summer many musical groups which otherwise would disband for lack of anything to do. The musical imagination of the participants is stimulated by contact with eminent conductors and musicians. The attention of the public is focused upon the healthy value of sociable music making.

As this festival movement gains momentum new problems loom ahead of it. These are primarily artistic rather than practical. The successful festival director of the future will be the man who can gradually elevate musical standards from year to year without losing contact with popular taste and enthusiasm.

Louis Krasner Will Play Work with Symphony

By Edward Barry.

Followers of music and the dance are offered this week such major enticements as a first local presentation of the Alban Berg violin concerto, two performances by Trudi Schoop and her comic ballet, and a Josef Lhevinne piano recital.

Louis Krasner, Boston violinist and a moving force in the composition of the Berg concerto, will play the work with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Frederick Stock conducting, Thursday night and Friday afternoon. Some years ago Krasner met Berg in Vienna and tried to interest the composer in the creation of a big solo piece for violin, something which he had never yet produced. Krasner also told Berg about the discerning performances of excerpts from his opera "Lulu" that Serge Koussevitzky had conducted in faraway Boston. Berg promised to think the whole matter over and to attempt a new work—not necessarily a violin concerto—which would receive its first American performance at Koussevitzky's hands.

A tragic event hurried the composition. The death of Manon Gropius, a girl not yet out of her 'teens, stirred Berg to musical utterance. She was a young Viennese whom he had admired and loved deeply, as a father might a daughter. The concerto is a memorial to Manon and bears the inscription "To the Memory of an Angel."

Sure enough, the concerto received its first American performance under Serge Koussevitzky, with Louis Krasner playing the solo part. This was in March of 1937. The composer had died late in 1935, soon after the completion of the concerto. Otherwise he would have had the satisfaction of hearing of the enthusiastic reception which Boston gave to the work and its performance.

Berg was a follower of Schönberg, whose music is so radically different from what the ear is accustomed to that it has never yet won any very sure place in the répertoire. It is said, however, that in this concerto Berg allowed the huge emotional interest of the piece to soften the angularities so noticeable in his other works. The concerto introduces a Bach chorale whose first notes are the same as those upon which Berg began to build his work.

Mr. Stock promises Mozart's D major Symphony and his own transcription of the Tschaikowsky trio for the purely orchestral items of the two programs.

Trudi Schoop and her Dancing Comedians, now the official name of the troupe, will present "All for Love" this afternoon and "The Blonde Marie" this evening. Both performances are in the Civic theater.

Miss Schoop, the moving spirit behind this talented company of twenty young men and women, is a Swiss born dancer who decided long ago that her talents lay in the direction of mimicry of the everyday characteristics of everyday people. Ten years ago in Berlin she gave her first performance based on this idea. She has been very successful, and during the last three years has extended her activities to America.

The staple of the Schoop troupe is not dancing in the ordinary sense of the word. Rather it is miming, apt and cleverly conceived, which goodnaturedly holds a mirror up to nature and usually displays humanity in its less comely and less dignified aspects. There is great penetration in Miss Schoop's ideas, a penetration which often goes far beneath the surface and succeeds in presenting an underlying character rather than a superficial appearance. As is to be expected, her most devastatingly successful darts are directed at pompousness in all its forms.

Both "All for Love" and "The Blonde Marie" are long works consisting of many episodes and bound together by a unifying idea or a simple story. The members of the troupe, all "characters" of one sort or another, are experts at executing even the most subtle ideas of the leader.

Josef Lhevinne, Russian pianist now living in the United States, will play a recital in Orchestra hall next Tuesday evening. The Adult Education council, sponsor of this Musical Arts piano series, had originally scheduled Serge Prokofieff, Russian composer and pianist, for Feb. 7. When the latter canceled his American tour Mr. Lhevinne was engaged. The recital will not be without its sentimental aspects, for Josef Lhevinne was the first artist to appear on the series two years ago last fall.

The program consists of the Chopin B minor Sonata; an impromptu, mazurka and scherzo by the same composer; four Debussy pieces, and a like amount of Liszt. The evening is scheduled to close with the last named composer's immensely difficult "La Campanella."

Mr. Lhevinne is a phenomenally well equipped pianist who has made innumerable recital and orchestral appearances in this country. Four of them have been with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. He has done a great deal of two piano work with his wife, Rosina.

'Victoria' Profit

When Helen Hayes rang down the curtain late in January on the last performance of "Victoria Regina"—the city was Pittsburgh—the production had grossed $2,852,538. This highly profitable theatrical venture began in December, 1935. In its four seasons since then eleven members of the company have been retained, as well as all but one of the road crew of stage hands. When Vincent Price seceded from the rôle of Prince Albert to enter motion pictures, his place was taken by Werner Bateman. The closing of "Victoria Regina" leaves Miss Hayes without plans for the future.

Alice Cavorts Gayly in Taylor Suite Records

In a sky blue album decorated with figures of Alice and her eccentric friends, the Columbia people present Deems Taylor's "Through the Looking Glass" suite. The recording was made by the Columbia Symphony orchestra, Howard Barlow conducting, under the personal supervision of Mr. Taylor himself.

The many adults for whom Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass" have never lost their fascination should want to know this infrequently performed music much better than they do. And it will delight children of twelve or fourteen who are enjoying their second or third experience with the books.

In this music Mr. Taylor has deftly communicated the unpredictable moods of the story and has filled the suite with a general atmosphere of sunny warmth and gentleness. Listening to it enhances that happy, feather light feeling of unreality which merely thinking about Alice's mad episodes so often produces. The brochure which accompanies the set helpfully quotes a few of the astonishing little poems from the book.

Antal Dorati, the young conductor with whom we became acquainted during the visits of the De Basil Ballet Russe, leads the London Philharmonic orchestra in a new recording of Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake."

Listening to this music one remembers the exquisite dancing of Alexandra Danilova, who has had the lead in so many Chicago performances of "Swan Lake." And pictures crowd the mind of the floating white forms and the elegant noblemen of the ballet. One wonders whether the music alone, without these memories of actual stage performance, could create the intoxicating spell it does.

The new Columbia set does not contain the complete ballet score, but only selections. Strangely enough, the principal theme of the work does not occur until the very last record.

No fairy tale nor ballet characters haunt the mind and influence the ear as we hear a third new Columbia release—Beethoven's quartet in E flat for piano and strings. This is early Beethoven, pure and classical in character. The performance is given by E. Robert Schmitz, pianist, and players drawn from the Roth String quartet.

Keys to America.

Gertrude Lawrence's collection of keys to American cities continues to grow. The latest addition is that of Pittsburgh, where the popular actress is to be seen in "Susan and God."

EVELYN ARMSTRONG, Joan's attractive mother.

ADELAIDE NOONAN, whose job the rich girl has agreed to fill until Adelaide recovers from her illness.

CHARLES ARMSTRONG, Joan's understanding and wealthy father.

ALICE DANIELS, Mr. Bowen's present secretary, who is giving up her job to get married.

MISS HARRINGTON, Kirk's secretary.

THE STORY TO DATE

● Joan Armstrong learns that Adelaide Noonan, with whom she'd attended secretarial school, has collapsed with tuberculosis just as she was about to start work as secretary to William Bowen, executive of an export firm. Dr. Deering, friend of Adelaide's father, had gotten the job for her and has now arranged to send her to his uncle's sanitarium in Arizona. Joan has longed to work, but agreed with her parents that she shouldn't deprive some needy girl of a job. She has refused to marry faithful Tommy Emerson, whom she doesn't love. Now Joan offers to hold down the job for Adelaide and send her the salary. With the aid of Bob Deering she wins the chance in spite of the misgivings of Bill Bowen, her employer. Joan moves into an apartment of her own. From Alice Daniels, Bowen's ex-secretary, who left his employment when she married, Joan learns that her employer is married. She learns also that at least one of Bill Bowen's secretaries had been in love with him.

JOAN stared at Alice across the table. She shook her head as if to clear it. It wasn't possible; she hadn't heard correctly. She must be dreaming. She said flatly:

"No, I didn't know it. And I can't believe it!"

"It's true enough," Alice told her.

"But it seems so — queer," said Joan with animation. "I mean—he never mentions her—there isn't a picture on his desk—no one in the office says anything. . . . It doesn't seem natural. I would have heard something during these past weeks. She doesn't even telephone him. Men's wives always telephone them at the office," Joan went on, "or at least so I've been told. And get sore as anything if you say they're in conference!"

Alice was laughing. She said: "Of course. I understand how astonished you must be. But it wouldn't have occurred to any one in the office to say anything to you —in the circumstances."

"They have separated, then?" interrupted Joan.

"O—poor thing!" said Joan softly. She was speaking of the unknown and tragic Mrs. Bowen, but she was thinking of her employer. Perhaps that explained so much in him—the guarded expression of his eyes, the brusqueness, the air of fending off people as if he were on the defensive against friendliness.

"She was the prettiest thing!" remembered Alice without rancor. "They were married seven years ago—less than a year after the firm was founded. She was the daughter of old Hadley—our bookkeeper in the other company. She had a job in one of the big shops, modeling. Sat for commercial photographers, too, and illustrators. She had the loveliest figure I ever saw, big black eyes, and red-brown hair, shiny like a chestnut burr.

"They met at the office on a day when she'd come in to see her father about something, and—well, it was all over but the wedding march almost at once. I never saw two people crazier about each other. And he was doing so well — Mr. Bowen, I mean — they could have been married straight off. But Mr. Hadley objected, and then he died— and, anyway, as soon as the new firm got under way they were married. She hadn't any one except her father. He'd opposed the marriage at first, and that seemed so odd to every one — because he liked Bill Bowen so much, and it was a good marriage for the girl. Ellen, her name was.

"Well, anyway, they were married. And she stopped working, and they had the most attractive apartment you ever saw, over near Sutton place. I went up there several evenings to do some work, and once she —Mrs. Bowen — gave a dinner for half a dozen of us. She was a peach . . . I keep talking about her in the past tense—— "

"But what on earth happened?" asked Joan.

• • •

"SHE had a baby," said Alice. "A little boy. She was never—well after that. It was only then that Mr. Bowen found out that the same thing had happened to her mother. She had died in an institution. . . . Poor old Hadley! He couldn't bear to tell him, so he opposed the marriage as best he could. But he couldn't—or wouldn't—give the real reason. It was all so unfair, and a terrific shock. You see, Ellen Bowen didn't know, either. She believed her mother had died when she was born."

"Won't she ever be well?" asked Joan pityingly.

Alice shook her dark head.

"I'm afraid not." She looked at Joan with clear, grave eyes. "I'm telling you this," she explained, "because I thought perhaps you'd better know. It's possible that he'll tell you some day. I knew, of course, from the beginning. And there were things I had to do for him."

"Where — is she?" asked Joan, low.

"In a private sanitarium in Massachusetts," Alice told her. "She has everything he can give her— except sanity," she added sadly. "Her own little bungalow, nurses, day and night, and the best medical care. She's perfectly healthy— sometimes when she's better she plays tennis, swims, plays bridge, dances.

"But she has long periods when she is not so well. Disturbed, they call it. She doesn't know him, then, at all; she seems to dislike him, is almost violent. But the times when she does know him and asks when she may come home are almost worse for him, I think. You'll understand soon enough. And you'll get to know when he's been to see her, and just how she is at the time."

Joan's eyes were full of tears. She knew very little of tragedy. She asked after a moment:

"Where's the little boy?"

"Bill Junior? He's at home with his father."

"He lives in the Elsworth," said Joan. "I thought, of course, he was a bachelor, living in a hotel."

"Ellen's elder sister lives there with him and the baby and the nurse," said Alice. "She was a school teacher. She—she thinks it her fault, too. Because she knew, and kept silent. She's ten years older than Ellen, and it was after Ellen's birth that their mother—— Miss Hadley never married. She's completely devoted to the boy, of course. He's rather delicate. There's a trained nurse with him always. And they have an apartment at the Elsworth—with a cook and all that. It's an apartment hotel.

"But Mr. Bowen has his own suite . . . when he entertains he uses the hotel service. It's all rather mixed up. But as Bill Junior isn't very well, he and his aunt and the nurse are away a lot. Summers they take a house in the country, and last winter they were in California. . . . You'll meet Miss Hadley eventually," Alice ended. "She'll be rather suspicious of you at first. She was of me, even long as I had been with her brother-in-law. But she got over that. She's been very nice to me—sent me a silver dish for a wedding present."

IT WAS inevitable that this news would make a difference in Joan's attitude toward Bowen. She was immediately desperately sorry for him. It explained him to her very fully, and she was able to make all allowances for certain things which had estranged her — an occasional sharpness and coldness of manner, irritability, outbursts of impatience. She kept thinking of the picture Alice had drawn of him—eager, so much in love, and so happy — and then to have that happen! It must be hideous to live with grief day in, day out for years and years.

She consulted Bob Deering one night when he was able to snatch the time to come and dine with her. Lily had broiled a chicken to perfection, and it was pleasant and intimate in the little flat with the first flurries of soft early December snow against the window panes, the shades drawn, and the lamps lighted. She began to tell him the story without names — and realized too late what she had entirely forgotten, that he and Bill Bowen were friends. Then she broke off, flushing. "I'm sorry," she said, embarrassed, "but I forgot—— "

"Of course you forgot," he said. "You're talking about Ellen Bowen. Who told you?"

"Alice Daniels—she's Alice Hampton now. His ex-secretary."

"O, of course; nice dark girl, very clean cut and intelligent. I remember her. As a matter of fact, it was through Ellen Bowen that I came to know Bill. I had a resident job then at the hospital where her baby was born. We struck up quite a friendship, she and I—and, of course, Bill. She was a swell girl," he said.

"But it's all so dreadful — isn't there—any hope?"

"We never stop hoping," he said. "Bill Bowen doesn't." He shrugged and looked old, suddenly, and very tired. "Such cases are not uncommon. Many are cured between two and eight months. In others the cure is never complete."

"I'm so sorry for him," she said simply.

"Of course you are, as are all his friends. Like him better now, don't you?" he asked carelessly.

She said honestly: "Yes — now that I understand him better. But I was beginning to like him anyway."

"Work just as thrilling?" he inquired tolerantly.

"More so, and don't look at me as if I were a two-year-old learning to knit or paint with my thumb or something," she said indignantly. "O, I wish some one would take me seriously!"

"How can they when you say that in exactly that tone and look about sixteen? What do you hear from your mother and father?"

Her father, she reported, was better than he had been in some time; her mother was fine; they were happy; they missed her. And she, of course, missed them. Christmas would be lonely without them.

"I thought," said Deering diffidently, "that if—if you had nothing better to do, you and I might spend it together? Of course, I'm not much of a hand at holidays. Don't take 'em. Apt to go out on a case any time of the day or night. That's what it means to be a G. P., you know," he added, smiling.

She said: "Bob, I'd love to. But Christmas day I'm pledged to the Emersons."

"Ah, Prince Charming," said Deering, half laughing, half serious. He had met Tommy once and had liked him on sight.

"Well, his mother's a darling," said Joan. "And his father, too. So I'm going to them for the day. But Christmas eve seems more exciting, somehow. I mean it's — well, I've never gotten over that waiting feeling, the suspense and all. I'm always a little sorry when its actually Christmas and you can open packages, knowing all the time that it's about over."

"You kid!" said Deering gently.

"Let's have Christmas eve together," she suggested enthusiastically. "We could have dinner here. If there's a call I'd love to go on it with you. And perhaps you could go to midnight service with me. I've always been; I love it."

He said gravely:

"If you would sacrifice your Christmas eve to me, Joan, I'd feel greatly honored."

"It wouldn't be a sacrifice. How can you be so silly!" she demanded with spirit. "And look, we'll put in a long-distance call for Adelaide. Surely they'd let her talk—on Christmas eve?"

Adelaide was a bed patient, but her progress was good, and after New Year's she might be permitted to be up an hour or so a day, she wrote Joan happily.

"That," said young Dr. Deering, "would be great. She'll be tickled to death."

"How about you?" asked Joan, smiling.

"Of course." Then, seeing her smile, he scowled at her. "Now it's your turn to be silly," he warned.

• • •

BUT she went on smiling, which exasperated him. She was perfectly convinced that Deering had much more than a fraternal interest in little Adelaide Noonan, and surely she was at least half way in love with him—it couldn't be all gratitude. He likes to be with me, she thought without resentment, because of Adelaide, a common bond.

They had grown to be good friends and she was beginning to look on him as a sort of safety valve. She could go to him with all sorts of problems and grievances. Much as Tommy loved her, and she knew that he did, even depended upon it unconsciously, she could not consult him as she could Bob Deering. Tommy's very devotion to her was an obstacle; he could not deal impersonally with anything which affected her.

Career by proxy, she thought, and now girl friend by proxy. Seems to me I'm living Adelaide's life for her with a vengeance, keeping her job and her young man safe for her until she's well enough to take them over!

Deering was muttering, annoyed, that he didn't have time for girls.

"Well, make time," said Joan serenely. "How old are you—thirty-four, isn't it? Do you want to grow a long gray beard before you're forty? I bet there have been pretty nurses in your life, dear doctor."

He had to grin at that. "A couple," he admitted sheepishly. "There was one blonde—— " He leaned back in his chair and sighed. "But I had a load of debt to carry, and it takes years to get started. And the way I wanted to work—well, it didn't look like a specialty and a Park avenue office ahead—not my job, you know. I wasn't going in for surgery or fashionable neuroses.

"So that was that. I didn't want to see any girl get old and worn trying to make ends meet, scraping around for butcher and grocer and rent . . . having a couple of babies, perhaps, and wishing herself back at work again, free at least, with a little money of her own. Not fair."

He looked so startled that she laughed aloud. He had tilted his chair back from the table, and now the legs came down with a crash.

"For heaven's sake be careful!" cried Joan. "That's a rented chair." Lily put her head in from the kitchenette inquiringly. "It's all right, Lily," Joan assured her. "And we'll have coffee over by the fireplace. And the pie was grand."

When they moved from the gate-legged table to the divan before the fire, where the coffee table stood, she said demurely:

"Sorry to have frightened you. I haven't any designs on you, you know."

"Gosh," he said, "what an idea!" He was, she saw, bitterly embarrassed. It amused her, without cruelty. She said, laughing at him: "You looked as if you were going to cut and run. If and when I propose to you or any other man I'll do it with more—more tact and subtlety and a lot more emotion."

He said, leaning back on the divan and stretching his legs toward the gay little fire:

"This is fine. You did scare me. You're the only rich girl I know."

She asked, "Did I hear you add, 'thank God'?"

"Of course not," he said indignantly.

"How about a grateful patient, then?"

"They aren't any too grateful," he said, "and there are about enough patients to pay the rent and food after a fashion and Miss Deakin's salary—and none of 'em are young, beautiful, and rolling in what it takes."

"I'll get you some," she said.

"Wouldn't one do?" he asked, alarmed.

"Two or three, so you'll have a choice," she told him, laughing.

He looked at her severely.

"I don't know how I ever got mixed up with you," he mourned.

"That," said Joan serenely, "brings us right back to Adelaide."

• • •

CHRISTMAS that year fell on a Friday. On Wednesday evening just before closing time the buzzer on Joan's desk sounded and she went in to find Bowen standing before the windows, his hands in his pockets and his shoulders hunched. He turned as she entered, startled, as if he had forgotten he had sent for her.

"You wanted me?" she asked.

"O, yes, of course." His face cleared. He motioned her to a chair and sat down at his desk. He said awkwardly:

"I wonder — I mean, could you spare some time to help me out? You see, Miss Daniels—was accustomed—— "

She thought, what did she do that I can't do? "Yes, of course, Mr. Bowen," she answered.

He explained after a moment:

"My little boy—— " Her heart quickened. It was the first time he had spoken to her of the child. He went on abstractedly, as if of course she must know about the child: "You see, my sister-in-law, his aunt, is ill with the grippe. She's always seen to it that he had a good Christmas. I'm not much on these things. Miss Hadley does my shopping for me. This year she hasn't been able to, of course. And it slipped my mind, confound it, till the last minute. Billy's regular nurse is away on a vacation. We've a stranger there now looking after him. And another to take care of his aunt. It won't be much of a Christmas for him, I'm afraid."

She said eagerly: "I'd love to, Mr. Bowen. What can I do?"

"I have to go to a stupid dinner tonight," he said. "I thought, if you'd get some things for me?" He looked at her helplessly. "Billy's a little over six," he explained. "He likes books—and the usual toys."

She asked, "Has he a tree?"

"I never thought of a tree," said Bowen. She could see that he hated the idea, hated Christmas for its memories, hated everything, was merely going through the mechanical gestures so that his little boy would not be too disappointed.

She said:

"Look, suppose I go out and shop now. The stores are open late. Would you let me buy a tree and bring it up? I have an engagement tomorrow evening. But if I could bring it tonight—and trim it? Is there a room you could shut off, so he wouldn't see it?"

"Downstairs," he said, "in my library—that would be awfully good of you, Miss Armstrong. When you're through, then, if you'd come right up—— "

"I'd like to do it," she said swiftly.

He told her the shops at which he had accounts, gave her carte blanche, and dismissed her, smiling abstractedly. She thought, putting on her hat and redding her lips, poor man . . . if he would go out himself, buy a toy at the five and ten, wanting to, loving it—it would make so much difference.

So she went shopping, until she was very late indeed for dinner. Lily, warned by telephone, grumbled and kept things hot, and eventually Joan arrived home in a taxi with her arms laden. She wouldn't trust to deliveries. Billy must have his things on time.

She ate her dinner hastily on a tray and went immediately into a welter of bright paper and ribbons and holly trimmings. She had bought all the things she believed a little boy past six would like—engines and trucks, a Noah's ark, heaps of books in gay jackets, and mechanical toys and things to build, and things which taught you to count.

When she was through Lily and the doorman carried the packages to the taxi for her. She had laid her own car up until the spring. And often regretted it. But the taxi man was helpful and full of something which she hoped was Christmas spirit and not just spirits with the Christmas left out. And on the way she stopped at a florist's and bought a tree, not too small, and some holly wreaths tied with red ribbon.

• • •

IT TOOK the doorman and several bellhops at the Elsworth, the big apartment hotel overlooking the park, to get her safely up to Bowen's apartment on the fourteenth floor. She was evidently expected, for every one beamed upon her when she spoke her name, and Bowen's manservant opened the door for her, her entourage, and the bundles without amazement.

"If you'll come right in the library, Miss Armstrong," he said.

Bowen's own apartment was small, but the rooms were large. Living room with a terrace, dining room, library, bedroom and bath. The library was high-ceilinged, and there was a fireplace.

Evans introduced himself. "I am Evans," he said, dignified and practically regal. He set up the tree in the holder she had brought, and she opened the big carton of trimmings. Tinsel and globes and peppermint sticks. It was fun trimming a tree. She had thought she would miss it this year except for the table tree she and Bob Deering would share.

She was warm, her face flushed, her fair hair disheveled, but whistling at her work when shortly after ten o'clock Bowen came in and found her finishing, putting the wrapped parcels under the tree, and displaying the big fire truck to its best advantage.

He stood in the doorway and said, "Well!"

Joan whirled around. "O, it's you," she said, conscious of her disorder. She was dirty, her hands were black, and she was tired. "Is it all right?"

"It's—fine—— "

She snapped the switches and the lights glowed on the tree. "Do you think he'll like it?" she asked.

"How could he help it?"

Joan went over to a chair and picked up her handbag. "Here's the list of the things I bought," she told him. "There are one or two little toys which aren't on it. I brought them to him—from me." Her tone said anxiously, "I hope you don't mind?"

"That's sweet of you," he said slowly. He looked from her to the glittering, glowing tree and to the three windows hung with holly. "I'm very grateful," he added.

"I bought tags," she told him. "I thought you might write them for him—for yourself and his aunt."

"O," said Bowen, laughing, "I dunno . . . he's such a baby he won't know the difference."

"Perhaps he will. It makes it more—orthodox," she urged, smiling. "It gives it a sort of reality. Then, of course . . . I brought the things for his stocking. He will hang it up, won't he, tomorrow night?"

"I'd forgotten all about that," said Bowen, staring at her. "Yes, of course. His aunt always does it for him. That's good of you, too. You've saved him from a bitter disappointment."

He sat down at the desk and smiled at her. "Do sit down. I've asked a great deal of you, I know. . . . You've done more than I deserve. . . . Cigarets are there in the silver box."

• • •

SHE smoked one reflectively while he wrote the tags and put them on the packages, after lifting them to feel them and ask their contents, exclaiming over the wrappings. He said almost shyly when he had done: "You have made it a real Christmas for the boy. His aunt and I have always gone through the gestures. But somehow our hearts weren't in it."

She said low, "I understand."

He looked at her sharply.

"I believe you do," he said; and then, "Alice spoke to you — about Billy's mother?"

She hesitated, fearing to betray a confidence. But he went on quickly: "That's all right. If she hadn't, I would have sooner or later. You would have to know. You see, there will be things I'll ask you to do for me, now that I've found you can make yourself invaluable." He lifted his hand as she started to speak. "O, but you can be, you know," he said. "You're proving it every day. And, as I said, there are personal things. . . . Alice handled my check book for me."

She felt as if she had been given a medal and an embossed certificate. Presently he walked over and stood beside her. He said, "I bet you didn't have much dinner."

"Not much," she admitted, astonished to find herself ravenous.

He pulled a bell rope near the fireplace. "Evans will order something," he said. "Thank heaven for hotel service."

"But you had dinner."

"Not much—it was very dull. Old lady with ear trumpet next to me. Important old lady, mother of one of our largest accounts," he explained, smiling. "Shouting took away my appetite."

Evans came in and smiled involuntarily at the sight of the Christmas tree. True, he had helped with the highest trimmings and had put on the lights, but he hadn't expected things to be so festive, somehow. He composed himself and listened to Bowen issuing orders with extreme gravity.

Joan said, distressed: "But really —you mustn't—— "

"O, but I must. We both rate it."

She said: "If I could wash? I'm filthy. That tinsel stuff comes off."

Presently she was washing her hands and face in a giddy bathroom all blue and green fish and bright red lobsters. Boiled at the bottom of the sea, she thought, amused. She combed her hair, dampened it, pressed it into waves, applied powderpuff and lipstick with industry. She took her time about it and came out refreshed, a new woman. Bowen rose as she entered.

"Would you like to see the boy?" he asked her hesitantly.

"I'd love to," she said instantly.

He opened the door between his library and the neighboring apartment. Lights glowed here and there in an empty living room. Another door, and they went down a hall, and then Bowen stopped. He said, whispering, "We mustn't wake him."

• • •

THEY went into a nursery in which a night light burned. In the room beyond a woman in uniform sat reading. She rose, but Bowen shook his head and went quietly to the bed in which his son lay. Joan followed and bent over and caught her breath. She had never seen so beautiful a child.

Dark red hair in damp curls over a noble little head, a pale olive skin, long black lashes lying on his cheeks . . . he had a fine little nose and a rich mouth, curved in the innocence of childhood. But he was very thin—and his hands flung on the coverlet looked too small and too helpless even for his six years. Joan's throat closed—looking at him.

When they went back into the corridor the nurse was there waiting. Bowen asked: "Have you seen Miss Peterson? How is my sister?"

"Doing nicely," said the round, pleasant-faced woman.

"And Billy?"

Bowen nodded, and he and Joan made their way to the library. He said, explaining: "He doesn't sleep well, you see. Nervous—— "

"A baby like that!"

"Yes." His face was clouded.

She remembered his mother—and his grandmother. She thought, That's heredity, I suppose; I must ask Bob.

She asked, "Are his eyes dark?"

"Yes. Like his mother's." His eyes went toward his desk. For the first time Joan noticed the picture there. She asked impulsively:

"May I look?"

"Of course." He brought the picture to her in its heavy silver frame. The girl who looked back at her, with Billy's maturer mouth curved to laughter, was very lovely. Her dark eyes were confident and sweet and she held her head high.

Joan said sorrowfully, "She is exquisite, Mr. Bowen."

"She was," he said. He took the picture from her, replaced it carefully. "She still is," he said heavily, standing at the desk, his back toward her.

Evans knocked and came in with the waiter, who set up the small table for them. Joan went to look, greedy as a child. Breasts of chicken under glass, a salad, a frozen sweet surrounded by ice, and, in a pail of ice, a bottle of champagne.

She cried, pleased and excited:

"It's a party!"

"It is. And am I hungry!"

"To your merry Christmas," he said.

"Thanks. And to yours."

He said, "Well, I've outgrown Christmas, I'm afraid."

"Billy hasn't. He's just beginning. He'll teach you all over again," said Joan.

"That's so, if I make myself learn," he said slowly. "Well, I'll try. . . . You've done a lot for us both tonight."

"I'm glad," she told him simply.

He asked her presently:

"Are you happy in your work, Miss Armstrong?"

"Very," she assured him sincerely.

"It seems odd," he mused, "a girl like you—— "

But she was laughing.

"What's the matter?" he demanded.

She said: "Look, what would Emily Post say? It's almost midnight, and secretary sups in employer's apartment on chicken under glass and champagne. It's perfectly shocking."

He said, laughing with her:

"Well, here's to Emily Post—and more shocks — and, I hope, to our better acquaintance."

Menuhin Concert Proceeds to Aid Work of Girl Scouts

By Betty Browning

February, a month associated preëminently with great Americans, is the time appropriately chosen by many organizations to help promising boys and girls a notch upward toward achievement.

The Girl Scouts will further their citizenship building for the future by sponsoring Yehudi Menuhin's concert Sunday afternoon, Feb. 19, at the Civic Opera house. Proceeds of all ticket sales by the organization will finance the activities through which some 8,900 Chicago girls are being trained to fill useful rôles in adult life.

Besides this concert, the annual autumn sale of cookies made by the Scouts themselves, plus individual contributions and a donation from the Community fund, meet the organization's budget. Mrs. Stanley Gibson, finance chairman, is in charge of the benefit. Mrs. Howard K. Jackson, acting commissioner since Mrs. Richard Bentley's recent resignation; Mrs. Nathan S. Davis III., Mrs. Arthur W. Wakeley, Mrs. John G. Ralston, and Mrs. A. K. Selz are among other leaders interested in the success of the event.

The Girl Scout program is designed to foster an interest in hobbies and interests which will enrich the girl's leisure hours throughout life and perhaps lead to her finding a vocation best suited to her talents. Girls from 7 to 18 are enrolled in troops which meet under the guidance of volunteer women leaders. The groups are limited to not more than thirty-two in order to provide each girl with the maximum of guidance by the two women who direct each troop.

Danish Royal Couple Will Visit Chicago

By Cousin Eve.

Committes already are being formed and plans are shaping up for another royal visitation. The crown prince and princess of Denmark are coming our way. En route from San Francisco to New York they take us in their stride. The heir to Denmark's throne is a young man in his thirties, while his wife, who was Princess Ingrid, daughter of Sweden's crown prince, is in the early twenties.

They are a charming, attractive couple, democratic like all the members of the Danish royal house, who move about Copenhagen as freely as any citizen. The royal couple ride in the trams and frequent the delightful cafés which abound in the capital like any other Danes.

Consul General and Mrs. Reinald Baumann head the men's and women's committees of arrangements. So far, outside of a state banquet, the plans are vague owing to lack of knowledge about the length of the royal visit.

The Toscanini concert has been and gone. Like all things one looks forward to for weeks and weeks, when they are over one misses them. It was a very courageous and expensive matter for the woman's board of Passavant hospital to present Mr. Toscanini and his orchestra in Chicago, a musical adventure costing thousands. Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman was honorary president of the group who made the affair such a success, while the other officers were Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, president; Mrs. James R. Offield, first vice president; Mrs. Frank E. Wilhelm, second vice president; Mrs. Bryan S. Reid, recording secretary; Mrs. Alden B. Swift, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Gardiner Van Ness, treasurer; Mrs. Farwell Winston, assistant secretary, and Mrs. Frank S. Sims, assistant treasurer.

Members of the board:

Mrs. L. H. Armour	Mrs. Max Hoffmann
Mrs. O. E. Babcock	Mrs. H. P. Isham
Mrs. R. R. Baker	Mrs. G. J. Jaeger Jr.
Mrs. E. S. Beck	Mrs. J. F. Jelke Jr.
Mrs. W. J. Cawley	Mrs. E. A. Leight
Mrs. W. B. Cudahy	Mrs. James Norris
Mrs. W. J. Cummings	Mrs. Daniel Peterkin Jr.
Mrs. I. S. Cutter	Mrs. George Rasmussen
Mrs. Andrew Dallsstream	Mrs. Paul Rowan
Mrs. Loyal Davis	Mrs. W. M. Scudder
Mrs. John Dern	Mrs. R. M. Shaw
Mrs. Robert Dunham	Mrs. E. B. Smith
Mrs. G. C. Ellis	Mrs. A. E. Stevenson
Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr.	Mrs. Denis Sullivan Jr.
Mrs. H. W. Fenton	Mrs. O. J. Taylor
Mrs. E. R. Fifield	Mrs. J. W. Thorne
Mrs. G. T. Gerlach	Mrs. Mark Trude
Mrs. C. B. Goodspeed	Mrs. Lawrence Williams
Mrs. A. O. Hartmann	Mrs. W. A. Yager
Mrs. C. D. Harvey

Everything was sold out. It was a superb concert, a well balanced program, with Beethoven's long "Heroic Symphony" and Wagner's Prelude to "Der Meistersinger," also "Forest Murmurs" from "Siegfried." There were, too, Brahms, Berlioz, and Rossini. The great pleasure to me was not so much the music, which was lovely, but the actions of the conductor.

Here was a man full of fire who worked himself up tremendously, but who was restrained. His face showed something of this, but there were no wild gestures, nor mane tossings. The form of the maestro was perfect throughout. He received shouts and bravos with magnificent detachment, and the modesty of his behavior was great. Anybody who expected flamboyancy was out of luck, because there was nothing spectacular about the concert except that Toscanini was there and we didn't have to dial for him on the radio. Even better than music was it to see Toscanini. For this the audience had paid in over $30,000 for one grand and glorious performance.

Women wore their most glamorous gowns, delicate tulles, lamés, and laces, and the men sat up like soldiers and forbore from yawns, cat naps, and similar signs of ennui. Applause was thunderous, and the crowd swept out into the lobbies for the entr'actes to talk it over. And every one kept saying how grand it was and also how delightful it would be to have our season of grand opera at the Auditorium once again.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kirk shared the center box with Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mme. Toscanini, and Dr. and Mrs. Glenn Frank of Madison. Mrs. Kirk, as president of Passavant's woman's board, had promoted the concert and was radiantly robed in black velvet with orchids, the heroine of the evening.

Next on the left were Edward Ryerson Jr., president of the Chicago Symphony, Mrs. Ryerson, and Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock, also the Paul Wellings. Just beyond were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swift and the Frederick Woodwards and beyond them Mr. and Mrs. Ira N. Morris, the Edward Morrises and Robert Hall McCormick. Outstanding for good looks: Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne in black with a few scattered poppies, Mrs. Clive Runnels, in silver lamé, Mrs. Edwin Stanley in white satin, also the Walter Cobb Colemans, newlyweds. Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Cabell had Mr. and Mrs. Roy McWilliams of Biarritz and Mrs. Cabell was saying au revoir, because she was sailing for France on the Aquitania to visit the charming French countess, her daughter. Mrs. George Rasmussen, in pink lace threaded with gold, had a large party, and Mr. and Mrs. Orville J. Taylor had eight guests. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bennett were there; Mrs. Richard T. Crane, in a box with a party, and the Charles B. Goodspeeds—the much admired Bobsey, in pure white with a bit of a jacket. Concert dress after all is more subdued than opera.

Beside the musical thrill of the evening was the financial thrill of having salted down $13,000 for Passavant hospital. It cost $17,000 to have Toscanini come to Chicago with his merry men, but the work it cost the promoters of the concert can never be told. The committee was hard at it until luncheon time the day of the concert. My new white straw cartwheel is off to the Passavant woman's board.

Sir Ronald and Lady Storrs were met at a cocktail party given by their cousins, John and Marguerite Storrs, who chose the Arts club for it. The small dining room with its nice view out upon the river was used, and guests seated themselves at small tables on gay little crimson satin chairs. The party was all gathered when Sir Ronald and his lady arrived. He was in a very gay mood for a man twice baptized during the day. At a large luncheon in honor of Nadia Boulanger, the orchestra leader of Paris, milk a plenty had been spilled upon Sir Ronald's coat. And ere long a cup of coffee drenched his waistcoat, which catastrophes he wittily called "café au lait." It was obvious at the tea that the great authority on Palestine and the Jewish question had been home and "changed." He was very amusing about his book, asking everybody if they had read it. And if it were their own copy or out of a rental library? In the first case he offered graciously to autograph it.

Among those asked to the party were Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Col. and Mrs. Ralph James, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Edward Bennett, Miss Alice Rouillier, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Field, and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Compton.

John Storrs is showing some new sculptures in the Rouillier galleries, Fine Arts building. The show opened with a tea on Saturday and continues for a fortnight. Among the exhibits is a portrait in marble of Mrs. James Hopkins. This I chanced to see last summer in the sculptors' studio in France. It is a profile in high relief, very effective. Another fine piece in an abstract panel in four metals. David Adler, noted artist and architect, has just bought a Storrs group, heads of wild horses.

In more ways than one, the annual meeting of the Visiting Nurse association Tuesday afternoon was inspiring. It was held in the Chicago Historical building in Lincoln park at North avenue, and nothing in town is lovelier. One walks in lofty halls dedicated to Chicago's past, and multifarious relics of American history. There are the anchors of the Christopher Columbus caravel, old rooms done in early American fashion, a wonderful collection of Lincoln's things, of beautiful early day costumes, of choice silver, of prints and rare documents.

In the large auditorium downstairs, the president, Mrs. Robert A. Gardner, called the meeting to order. A tall woman, gracious, and distinguished, she addressed the corps of 138 trained visiting nurses and her co-workers in Chicago society.

Reading a message of duty done, of $360,000 dollars expended, and of an even larger budget for next year. It was a magnificent report, really thrilling. Next came Mrs. George Ranney, reporting on the nurses and their interesting life among the sick and hapless, adventurous but hard. Three hundred thousand visits made in the year, forty thousand people cured.

Young Mrs. Watson Armour Jr. reported on study and after care of infantile paralysis, putting grace and humor into this dread subject, which had a great decrease last year in Chicago. Miss Mary Westphal, the superintendent, gave a marvelous résumé. The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. Ralph Winston and many inheritances and gifts announced. And then the head of the auxiliaries, Mrs. Aldis J. Browne, covered in great style her subject, which was complex and many sided. One could not help but admire these serious minded women who steer this great charity. The Visiting Nurse association has been carried on by Chicago society leaders for fifty years. From mother to daughter, the membership goes on. Mrs. John H. Blair was elected president for 1939, Mrs. Selim Mac Arthur and Mrs. Ralph Winston vice presidents, and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey treasurer.

Good moving pictures shown at the end were taken by Louise Dewey Smith. These showed visiting nurses on the daily round. There was a party afterward upstairs, elegant and gorgeous as a wedding. This came from the private purse of the directors, who had the best caterer in town to serve superlative refreshments by a corps of butlers. Mrs. James Douglas and Jean Schweppe Armour sat in state at services of gleaming silver. There were two long tables gay with February flowers, irises, tulips and such; nothing is too good for the visiting nurses, many of whom had medals that day for twenty years and ten years with this great charity. Mrs. Dewey had the tea in hand congratulating the nurses on their splendid record and marking the party truly social. Among the directors and friends of the society there, Mrs. John Drake, Miss Naomi Donnelley, Mrs. Donald Wegg, Mrs. Secor Cunningham, Mrs. Edward Litsinger, Mrs. James Hutchins, Mrs. Joe Ryerson Jr., Miss Frances Jeffery, Miss Frances Whedon, Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, Mrs. Charles E. Brown, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, Mrs. Charles Garfield King, Mrs. Gaylord Donnelley.

One hears at parties like these news of long ago friends. Elizabeth Drake had been in New Orleans. Who should be living there in great spendor but Rothwell Sheriff, with his charming wife and babe of seven months.

Rothwell, a grandson of the venerable William H. Mitchell, who died full of years and leaving a large fortune, married rather late. His first cousins, Harold and Arthur Acton, sons of Hortense Mitchell Acton, have not married at all. Arthur has new found vogue as a painter of portraits in London, and Harold has joined the citizens of Peking, where he lives in an old palace of the Ming period.

February, I believe, will be quite a month in Chicago. People who are not off for South America seem to be headed for California. The Frederic Woodwards leave for Pasadena today, and Mrs. James W. Thorne and her sister, Mrs. Alden Swift, are going by the same train. The James M. Hopkinses are already in Sun Valley and going soon to Ojai, which cuddles in the mountains back of Pasadena and where the habitués are happy as the days are long. They say the inn is perfect there.

People who walk out with their dogs on dark nights, now and then find adventure. Bowman Lingle, who was strolling with his handsome chestnut haired Danish dog one evening before the great snow, saw something black in a Division street gutter. Turning it over with his stick it proved to be a nice silky looking garment with quite an air. Closer inspection made him think of taking it home, and there it developed into somebody's dinner coat in excellent condition. Here was a first class mystery; maybe murder or kidnaping, or what? The name of the owner printed inside added to the excitement, "T. Roosevelt," and the phone book further helped matters by giving the address of young Theodore, grandson of the great Teddy. Young Roosevelt is oldest of the four children of Theodore and Grace Roosevelt, and lives in Chicago.

The young man came bounding up after his coat which he hadn't worn in a fortnight. He couldn't explain the mystery more than to say that a valet might have taken it out to press. But with a real Teddy grin he remarked that it was wonderful to have it back, because he expected to wear it for the next ten years. With Chicago gutters yielding dinner coats, it is worth while to watch one's step.

AVALON PARK NEWLYWED

Decorators Use Black as Touch Most Rooms Need

A famous decorator once said that every room needs a touch of black in its color scheme. Black brings out the beauty of colors. The faint tints of pearls are seen best against it. That is why a jeweler shows pearl necklaces against pieces of black velvet.

So, a pair of black pillows on a couch will enhance the loveliness of the colors in the upholstery, or side chairs done in fabrics with black backgrounds will have the same effect. Black, too, tends to "hold down" a room. It is a heavy, massive color, and creates a feeling of weight. Also it acts as a perfect finish.

Remember not to go in heavily for black, however.

Contest to Choose Negro Queen of Exposition

A nation-wide beauty contest for the selection of a Negro queen of the Golden Gate International exposition has just been announced by the colored citizens' exposition committee.

Personalities to the Fore in Lecture Events

Stuart Chase, Vincent Sheehan, a Nobel prize winner, an assistant surgeon general, and a psychoanalyst who was a member of Kerensky's cabinet, are among the personalities who will make this week an interesting one for lecturegoers.

"Where Do We Go From Here?" will be the title of Mr. Chase's talk before the Chicago Woman's Aid at 2 o'clock Tuesday at its headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue. The noted economist and author will be presented by Mrs. Jesse R. Gerstley, second vice president and program chairman.

Two other meetings of unusual interest are planned for the Chicago Woman's Aid this week. Dr. Horace J. Bridges and Dr. James Franck, 1926 Nobel prize winner, will speak at a luncheon sponsored by the new refugee service committee tomorrow. Dr. Franck, who won the Nobel prize for his work on the atom theory, voluntarily exiled himself from Germany in 1933 and now is in the department of physical chemistry at the University of Chicago. Dr. Bridges, well known author and lecturer, is head of the Chicago Ethical society.

Clifton M. Utley, director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, will speak at the organization's current events breakfast Friday noon.

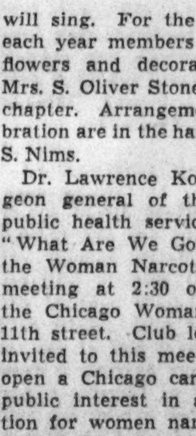
Vincent Starrett, Chicago novelist and critic, will address the Chicago Dickens Fellowship at its annual Dickens dinner Saturday evening at the House of Biggs, 50 East Huron street. Mrs. Charles E. Platte, president, 4423 North Mozart street, is in charge of reservations.

For its combined twenty-fifth birthday celebration and White breakfast Saturday at the Blackstone hotel, General Henry Dearborn chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will have Col. George T. Buckingham as speaker. His topic will be "Patriotism." Roy A. Schuessler, baritone, will sing. For the White breakfast each year members wear white, and flowers and decorations are white. Mrs. S. Oliver Stone is regent of the chapter. Arrangements for the celebration are in the hands of Mrs. Foster S. Nims.



Mrs. S. Oliver Stone.

Dr. Lawrence Kolb, assistant surgeon general of the United States public health service, will speak on "What Are We Going to Do About the Woman Narcotic?" at an open meeting at 2:30 o'clock Friday at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. Club leaders have been invited to this meeting, which is to open a Chicago campaign to arouse public interest in a federal institution for women narcotics. Dr. Kolb opened the federal institution for men sufferers at Lexington, Ky.

"Slums—A Moral Issue" is the topic chosen by Gael Sullivan, associate state director of the Federal Housing administration, at an open forum and tea of the newly organized Chicago Catholic University club this afternoon at the Medinah club.

• • •

"History and World Affairs as Viewed by a Psychoanalyst" will be the subject of Dr. Gregory Zilboorg next Tuesday evening at the Chicago Woman's club. This public lecture is one of a series sponsored by the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis. Dr. Zilboorg, who is director of research for the committee on the study of suicide, was a journalist in Russia in his youth and was a member of Kerensky's cabinet. He now is writing a history of psychiatry. Dr. Zilboorg also authored the Theater Guild version of "He Who Gets Slapped."

Mrs. Charles W. Sewell, administrative director of the Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau Federation, will speak on "The Nation's Debt to the Farm Home" at the round table of the Daughters of Indiana, Tuesday. David Seabury will lecture on "Our Undiscovered Resources" at the regular afternoon meeting following.

"Preserving Your Complexion" will be discussed by Dr. Francis Eugene Senear under the auspices of the Chicago Medical society in a public lecture at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Chicago Woman's Club theater.

• • •

The Chicago branch of the National League of American Pen Women will hear Adelaide Howe Sisson and Lena Dexter Owen speak at its luncheon Tuesday at the Woman's University club, 410 South Michigan avenue. "Fundamentals of Our Government" and "International Broadcasts" will be their respective topics.

Federation day will be observed by the Indian Council Fire at 3:30 o'clock today at 32 West Randolph street. Archie Phinney of Minneapolis, Minn., will speak. Leaders of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will be guests.

Bathing Togs Go Frivolous.

There's no doubt about it, feminine fashions are becoming decidedly more feminine. The newest bathing suits designed for southern beaches are really tricky, even a bit naughty. One of gleaming white rayon has a flared slit skirt, ruffled corset cover bodice and short ruffled panties. Another of white polka dots on wine rayon and silk surrah has a white frilled edging on the short gored skirt and bra top.

RIVER FOREST NEWLYWED

Mrs. Robert Andersen is the former Betty Lillian Waskow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Waskow of River Forest. Mr. Andersen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Andersen, also of River Forest.

Three Clubs Are to Have Parties on Anniversaries

Three organizations, widely diversified in interests, are celebrating anniversaries this week. The Big Sisters will combine their celebration with a luncheon and third quarterly meeting Tuesday at the House of Biggs, 50 East Huron street. The Hotel Women's association will hold its 18th anniversary dinner Wednesday at the Edgewater Beach hotel, where its first dinner was held. The Oberlin Woman's club of Chicago will celebrate its 25th birthday Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. Nelson Metcalf, 6946 Chappel avenue.

The Rev. John A. Kilian, S. J., will speak on "Mission Activities Among the Untouchables in India" at the Big Sisters' meeting. A board of directors' meeting and a reception will precede the luncheon at 1 o'clock. Mrs. George V. McIntyre, who will preside, has headed the Big Sisters almost since the inception of this pioneer organization of women interested in underprivileged girls.

A reception will be held before the Hotel Women's dinner, and there will be dancing afterward, with entertainment. Leading hotel men will be guests. Mrs. Georgia A. Hunt is president. Miss Helen Searle is receiving reservations at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Charles J. Ewald will describe his work with the Society of Friends in Spain before the Oberlin Women's club. A cake and candles also will be in order.

Alliance Has Bids Out for Annual Benefit

A glamorous and red-frocked queen and a vulnerable jack figure mysteriously in the invitations sent out by the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago to its annual benefit card party and tea Saturday afternoon in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

"Prizes, prizes, prizes, prizes," also read the invitations. Miss Elizabeth K. Eckert and Mrs. Nellie Small will model costumes that will be among the prizes. Proceeds will go to the welfare fund through which the alliance helps high school and college girls to continue their education. Mrs. Elsie A. Runyan is chairman of the party.

Another benefit event of the week will be a luncheon and bridge party sponsored by the Chicago Intercollegiate Alumnæ association of Kappa Kappa Gamma Wednesday at the Milk Foundation association, 75 East Wacker drive. Proceeds will go to the national philanthropies of the fraternity.

Mrs. Emma Huising Wall.

This afternoon the eighteenth annual grocery shower for the St. Rose Social center and kindergarten will be held at the center, 308 West 25th street. The Sisters of St. Mary of Providence daily care for fifty-six children at the kindergarten and provide a variety of activities to hundreds of others through the social center.

Cards and games with refreshments are planned for those who come to the shower. Mrs. Emma Huising Wall again is chairman. Mrs. Mary Whelan is president of the center and kindergarten auxiliary.

The newly formed auxiliary of the Cordi-Marian settlement, 1100 South May street, will give a card party Saturday at the settlement. A rhythm band composed of twenty-four little girls between the ages of 4 and 9 will play under its 8 year old conductor, Albert Mazzone. A style show and refreshments also have been arranged. Miss Beryl Klein is general chairman. Refugee nuns from Mexico run the settlement.

The St. Mary of Nazareth hospital at Leavitt street and Augusta boulevard will receive the proceeds of the junior auxiliary's annual card party Wednesday evening in the hospital auditorium. Miss Alice Zarzycki is chairman. Miss Helene Perlinski heads the auxiliary.

The Society of Chicago Women will sponsor a luncheon and benefit card party at 11:30 o'clock Thursday at the Hotel Sherman. Proceeds will go to the society's charities. Mrs. F. E. Sperlich is president.

Vacationist's Diary Tells of Desert Gayety

By India Moffett.

Thursday: Good-by, PHOENIX, ARIZ. Chicago, for a little time. It's wonderful to be leaving for Arizona, but it will be just as wonderful to get back; that I know from past experience. How fertile the fields in Illinois are. I wish there were even a tiny hill in the distance, but if there were perhaps the fields would not be so full of the promise of abundant life.

The afternoon passes and several times, as the long train rounds a curve, we catch a glimpse of a shining engine, silver gray and red, really a thing of beauty. We cross the Mississippi river into Iowa just at sunset and every one gasps at the magnificence of the sky. We are going straight into a fiery furnace. A fire that is so brilliant and so vari-colored that it looks as though some mighty hand had sprinkled dried seaweed on it. The fire is out and darkness descends all too quickly.

Friday: We are in Colorado now, having passed through the northern part of Missouri and Kansas in the darkness. "Where are we?" we ask the porter. "La Hoon-tah," he says, but it isn't until we find La Junta on the map that we know what he means.

Now we have mountains, plenty of them, snow capped, although there is little snow down where the train is running. We come to a curve; alas, our shining silver engine is gone and we have had to fall back on an ugly but powerful black steam engine to pull us through the mountains we will be climbing most of the day.

At last we are up to 7,526 feet, the highest point between Chicago and California on our rail route. It is a station called Wootton, after a pioneer who ran a roadhouse and maintained a toll road before the railroad came. It is on the old Santa Fe trail, and just beyond Wootton we go into New Mexico and the 2,678 foot Raton tunnel. We descend a little then, only to rise again until at Glorieta we are at 7,421 feet. Down again until around teatime we are at Albuquerque, which has an altitude of 4,934 feet. In the distance are the forbidding and tragic Sandia mountains.

Saturday: Just time for some orange juice and coffee and then we are in Phoenix, in the Valley of the Sun, as the Phœnicians call it. We are met by a gracious young woman whom the hotel management has sent to welcome us, and whisked through the city out to the Arizona Biltmore hotel on the desert. It's a sort of Arabian Nights hotel, sprawling, if such a word could be used to describe anything so elegant, so luxurious as the Biltmore, over the desert at the foot of Squaw peak.

Built after Frank Lloyd Wright designs of blocks of concrete, the hotel proper and its many bungalows are not really in the desert, for all around are green lawns, colorful gardens, and citrus groves. But just beyond the irrigation canal is the desert, literally as dry as dust, with tall Sahuaro, graceful octillos, bristling cholla, fat barrels, little pincushions, and all belonging to the cactus family. Mesquite bushes, paloverde trees that in the spring will turn to gold, greasewood shrubs and various other interesting vegetation are grayish-green now, but in April the desert will bloom; every cactus and bush will blossom and over the whole desert will be a carpet of flowers. A never-to-be-forgotten sight.

At luncheon in the big dining room of the Biltmore we see several familiar faces. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Neilson, who have been in Phoenix since autumn, but who are leaving that night; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins, who will be here all winter; Mr. and Mrs. Curtis A. McWhinney of Highland Park; Edgar A. Stevens, Mrs. John D. Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Cresap, Miss Nora Carney, Robert L. Fowler, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kauffman. The Neilsons are not going back to Chicago, but to New Orleans to sail for a South American cruise.

Dinner Saturday night at the Camelback Inn, the newest of the several superdude ranches very near Phoenix. It is only 3 years old, but already it is a favorite place with middle westerners and easterners wanting a more simple life than is led by Biltmore guests.

Dinner dresses are seen only on Saturday nights at the inn, whereas at the Biltmore one "dresses" every night. The Camelback buildings are said to be the largest adobe plant in the country, for every one is of 'dobe, with plaster exteriors of pale beige. They have a pinkish glow, but whether that is a reflection of great Camelback mountain, which is just to the south, I don't know. Camelback is a rich copper color in some lights and a salmon pink in others, but it never is drab nor dull and it colors everything in the vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward W. Willits of Highland Park are at the inn this winter and so are Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine Jr. and her sister, Miss Margaret Valentine. Young Gordon and Pat Valentine are with their mother and aunt, and Mr. Valentine, will join his family soon.

Sunday: A short ride skirting the Biltmore golf course, for we remember "Doc" Pardee's admonition as we left the stables not to do too much the first time or we'd eat our breakfast standing up tomorrow. Luncheon at the Wigwam in Litchfield park, which didn't start out to be a hotel, but which, like Topsy, just grew. It was started twenty years ago by the Goodyears as a ranch on which to grow long staple cotton. The directors and their families came; their friends came, too, so about eleven years ago it was enlarged and made into a hotel. Among the well known Chicagoans who often have enjoyed winter vacations there are Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock. Some who will be there soon are the Henry A. Scandretts and Henry Jr., and Mrs. James H. Winston and her daughter, Laura.

The Robert C. Schaffners were two Chicagoans in a recent party at the Wigwam that had a unique experience shooting coyotes from a blimp. Mr. Schaffner was one of fourteen directors of the Goodyear company who came west to attend a meeting in Litchfield park, the first meeting of the sort ever held anywhere but in Akron, O., or New York City, by the way. Capt. Sewell had shot a bobcat from the blimp as he came west, which gave the directors the idea of hunting coyotes from the air. It was a successful hunt, we were told, and great sport.

Sunday night we dined at Arcadia lodge, "Jay" Hunt's new place at the foot of Camelback mountain. Arcadia lodge and Jokake Inn are south of the mountain, Camelback Inn is north.

Jarvis Hunt, the architect, built himself a beautiful house eight years ago that today is the nucleus of Arcadia lodge. It is Jarvis Hunt Jr., better known as Jay, who left Chicago last fall and came west to try to equal or better the success he made of the Key club in East Ontario street. His chef is from Antoine's in New Orleans and, although the restaurant and cocktail lounge have been open only two weeks, they already are popular with winter resorters who occasionally like to stray away from their American plan hostelries, no matter how good the food in them.

Monday: Lunch at Jokake, which is in its thirteenth season as a combination hotel and dude ranch. Its buildings really are pink; low, rambling buildings nestling on the south slope of Camelback. A former Chicagoan, Robert T. Evans, and his wife are the hosts here. A little to the west is the charming house of Mr. Evans' mother, Jessie Benton Evans, the artist, who had the first house in the district and whose Friday "at homes" are among the social affairs of each winter.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Holland are the first familiar faces we see in the patio, where luncheon is being served from a cold buffet table and a sizzling grill. The Hollands and their little daughter, who live in Greenwich, Conn., are spending the entire winter at Jokake. She is the former Miss Lydia Hibbard of Chicago and her father, Frank Hibbard, was here last week to visit them.

Monday evening at Lacolina Solana, Mrs. William Wrigley Jr.'s spectacular and beautiful house atop a hill just southwest of the Biltmore. We literally can look down on the rest of the world from here, but to look down on any one, figuratively speaking, is far from the sort of thing Mrs. Wrigley does.

"It is a privilege to be able to live here, isn't it?" she asks. "But it is a lonely place without my family," she continues. Some of her family will be with her later in the season, however, for her granddaughter, Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan Jr., and her husband and their little son, Wrigley, will be with her as soon as Mrs. Sullivan is able to travel after the birth of their second child. Mrs. Sullivan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Offield, are going to Florida this winter instead of west.

Mrs. Wrigley's son, Philip K. Wrigley, and his wife and their children will be coming west soon, too, but they will stop in Phoenix for only a short visit. When they come west they always are anxious to reach their ranch home on Catalina Island where Mr. Wrigley has a fine stable of Arabian horses and where Mrs. Wrigley and the daughters do all the housework and cooking.

Among Mrs. Wrigley's other guests Monday evening was an ex-Chicagoan, Mrs. James Minotto, and her son and daughter, Demetri and Ida May. The Minottos live on a ranch just out of Phoenix. Mr. Minotto was not with his family that evening, for his duties as a state senator and as the head of a big dairy keep him well occupied. Young Mr. Minotto, too, takes his business duties seriously, for he was busy so late at the dairy that he came to Mrs. Wrigley's in a milk truck instead of the smart roadster he usually drives when on pleasure bent.

Other opportunities will be afforded talented young men and women through contests sponsored by the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs. Entries must be received by Feb. 15 and the contests will be held a month later.

Arrangements for the contests will be discussed at a meeting of federation officers, club presidents, and departmental chairmen at 11 o'clock tomorrow at the Chicago Woman's club. Mrs. Frank P. Whitmore, Chicago district president, will preside. This meeting was postponed from last Monday because of the blizzard. The contests are for junior students, student musicians, and young artists, with divisions for piano, violin, and voice. A $25 prize will go to each winner in the student and young artist classes.

Applications for the Illinois young artist contests must be sent to Rose Du Moulin, 421 Surf street, by Feb. 15. Student musicians should apply to Mrs. William H. Knapp, 2126 Orrington avenue, Evanston.

Another hearing will be given young musicians through the annual spring presentation concert in May of the musical guild. Auditions will be held Feb. 15 at 1:30 o'clock in room 825 of the Fine Arts building. Any student of vocal or instrumental music who has not previously appeared in a debut recital with critics present is eligible for an audition. Mrs. Rosine Bachrach, 3166 Sheridan road, is receiving applications until Feb. 11.

Racing Park's Opening Draws Miami Society

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA. "Fantastic beyond description, with more than 3,000 persons over the fence, including grandpa, grandma, and several very young ladies wearing very abbreviated garments." Such is the description of an eye-witness who helped to swell the crowd of more than 15,000 who stormed the gates when Gulfstream Park, south Florida's newest horse racing plant, just north of Miami Beach, was opened to admit an eager throng last Wednesday afternoon.

Tropical Park has been the racing troopers' rendezvous. Hialeah has been society's daily fashion show. Gulfstream blossoms forth as the tourists' paradise, a factor to be reckoned with, and the center of much kindly interest. Home in 18 minutes, if you live on Miami Beach.

That the track is marvelous, the grand stand fine, and betting facilities excellent, all are agreed. The opening day would indicate that the strategic location of the new track may do for its future all that its proponents have hoped.

Judge and Mrs. J. Julien Southerland included a number from Chicago in their party of thirty-eight which occupied six adjoining boxes at the opening. They included the David J. Molloys, the Gerald Butlers, the junior William J. Atwills, Mrs. F. M. Howell, Mrs. Helen Wade, Mrs. Warren Shields, the Thomas J. McKearnans, and George Ade of Brooks, Ind.

Society of metropolitan Miami would like to borrow the torch from the Hillsborough Lighthouse, a few miles up the beach, that they might have extra illumination to throw upon the question of what lies beyond the latest development in a favorite amusement field. The new supper casino in Surfside, known as the Brook club, which opened ten days ago, ran merrily along for four consecutive nights. Then the gambling lid was clamped on in Dade county, assertedly on orders from Tallahassee, although fashionable La Bohême and Bourgeois Plantation in adjoining Broward county flourished uninterrupted with speculation very rife.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell Nelson, recently married in Chicago, returned there Tuesday by plane after spending their honeymoon on the yacht Freda, turned over to them by the owner, Frederich A. Poor, whose guests they were. Donald Hoffman, Mr. Poor's nephew, and Mrs. Hoffman, arrived Sunday to spend February as house guests of Mr. Poor. With the Daltons of Winnetka, the Hoffmans enjoyed a fishing trip among the Florida keys this week. The two men on a chartered cruiser went to the keys Tuesday. Their wives took the Freda Wednesday, joining them for the day and all spent the night on board, returning Thursday to welcome Mr. Poor on his return from two weeks spent in Chicago.

In marked contrast with Chicago's snowclad homes was the summery atmosphere of the patio of the Harry E. Vaughns on Alton road last Sunday, when a large number of Chicagoans were among fifty guests at a cocktail party which had the patio for its setting. Easter lilies were used throughout the lower rooms of the house.

The annual men's golf tournament at Indian Creek club, a 36 hole medal play with handicaps, in competition for the president's trophy, provided by President David J. Molloy, was played Thursday and Friday with William J. Atwill Jr. in charge of the tournament. Mrs. Atwill will have charge of the women's tournament which is to be staged two weeks later.

Mrs. Lois Neis of Chicago is spending the winter season at the home of Mrs. J. Van Tuyl Daniels. The William Donohues of Chicago arrived Wednesday to visit Mrs. Daniels. Invitations have been issued for a reception and tea which Mrs. Daniels and her daughter, Mrs. George R. Mathisen, will give Feb. 12.

The Joseph Drolls of Chicago spent the week-end fishing at Cat Cay, returning to Miami Beach Wednesday. Access to the famous fishing resort is by invitation of its owner, L. R. Wasey of New York.

WILL BECOME A BRIDE

Miss Annette Garfield's engagement to Louis Bloom is being announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Garfield of the Cornell Towers. Mr. Bloom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bloom of 5240 Ingleside avenue.

Golden Yellow Is Available in Roller Shades

The Window Shade institute has recently introduced its fourth new color in shade cloth—chrysanthemum yellow. The other three are larkspur blue and springleaf green for cool rooms in summer, and sunrose, a winter tint to bring the sunshine indoors.

Chrysanthemum is another rich, warm tone that gives the rooms of your home a hospitable glow, and like sunrose, seems to capture the sunshine and bring it indoors. Decorators tell us yellow and its various tones are one of the most popular and important colors now. This holds true in wall papers, paint, fabrics, and draperies.

The institute has discovered women are eagerly accepting these new style colors in window shades and are definitly asking for shades that bear the label "cloth." The institute's seal is the consumers' guarantee of a good quality cloth window shade, woven on a loom, processed and colored, a shade that is more weather resistant, stronger edged, and sturdier and that is hung straight and true on good spring rollers.

FUTURE WEST SIDE BRIDE

Dr. and Mrs. Frank L. Brown of 23 South Central Park boulevard have announced the engagement of their daughter, Bernice, to Haldore Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Hanson of Duluth, Minn. Miss Brown attended Carleton college and in her junior year taught school at Ming I middle school, Fenchow, Shansi, China. Mr. Hanson attended Carleton college and taught school at Central China college in Wuchang, China.

Parisians View Engravings in l'Orangerie

By May Birkhead.

PARIS The capital is again in face of the uncertainties and alarms. While the French hope for the best, they cannot help feeling uneasy over the effect that events in Spain may soon have on France.

In the meantime, any escape from the anxieties of the present is eagerly seized on. A chance to forget the routine burden of worry is offered at the Musée de l'Orangerie which, visitors to Paris will recall, is situated in the Garden of the Tuileries, near the Pont de la Concorde. Parisians of all classes have been going to see the remarkable collection of engravings, most of them of the 18th century, forming a small part of the treasures assembled by the late Baron Edmond de Rothschild.

Baron Rothschild died a few years ago, leaving a collection of over 20,000 engravings and drawings, from the 14th century to the 20th. He willed this collection to the Louvre, if means could be assured to give it the proper care, and to arrange that it should be accessible to the public. This bequest, with its rigorous conditions, furnished a problem for the directors of the Louvre. How could they house such an immense collection and assure that it could be put on view, in part at least, from time to time for the delectation of the public? The latter question was the harder to answer inasmuch as the riches of the Louvre, in art works of all sorts, are so numerous and so constantly increasing that a choice has constantly to be made of what can be shown.

For many years the part of the Louvre known as the Pavillon de Flore, on the side of the Seine and nearest to the Tuileries palace that was destroyed by the commune in 1871, has been occupied by some of the offices of the ministry of finance. But recently it was arranged that a large part of this space should be devoted to housing the Rothschild collection of engravings and drawings as soon as it is ready to be put on view.

Many of these wonderful engravings represent the best "état," or condition, of the maker's proofs, and those of the 18th century, many of them, have the delicate coloring that reproduces the characteristic beauty of Boucher's drawings and paintings, of which there are hundreds in the Rothschild collection. Inasmuch as sunlight or strong daylight injures the coloring, steps have been taken to place them in a rather moderate natural light and then to call in the aid of electricity to show them to advantage. The special curator of the collection opines that the best method is to provide the spectator with a magnifying glass to which a small portable electric bulb is attached.

Another problem that faced the curator and the management of the Louvre was the manner of cataloging and recording the engravings. In order to please everybody, from the specialist to the merest quidnunc, it has been decided to arrange a double catalog, one alphabetical, the other an index by epochs, and to supply on the cards full criticial information, even including photographic designs which would permit the characteristics of the paper on which they originally appeared to be recognized. In view of the enormous value of the collection, it is foreseen that only a small part of it will be on view at any given moment. Some idea of its worth, in terms of money, can be grasped from the fact that pieces which Edmond de Rothschild picked up years ago for almost nothing have reached in recent years a figure such as $12,000.

Fund Raising Campaigns on Club Schedules

Today will bring to a close one fund raising campaign, that of the Willing Workers Woman's club, and will open another, Chicago Junior Hadassah's. A "loyalty" dinner-dance this evening at the Stevens hotel will celebrate the successful culmination of the former organization's efforts in behalf of underprivileged tubercular patients.

A breakfast in the grand ballroom of the Midland hotel at 11 o'clock today will be the starting point of Chicago Junior Hadassah's drive for $11,000. Eleven sections, comprising a total of 1,200 members, will participate.

Organized thirty-five years ago, the Willing Workers supply milk and eggs daily to tuberculous families under the supervision of the Jewish Charities, and provide clothing for children of these families.

● ● ●

The Winfield tuberculosis sanitarium at Winfield, Ill., is an important beneficiary of the Willing Workers. The organization has erected a children's building there at a cost of $28,000, has supplied modern refrigeration costing $3,300, has furnished a children's cottage, and has equipped dental and schoolrooms, an X-ray room, and a diet kitchen.

Mrs. Hugo King is president of the Willing Workers. Mrs. George Levitt and Mrs. A. Chester Green are handling reservations for the dinner-dance.

Rabbi Morton M. Berman will be the principal speaker at Junior Hadassah's breakfast, and leaders of senior Hadassah will be guests. Miss Sarah Leifer, fund raising chairman, will assign to the eleven groups their quotas in the drive. Junior Hadassah raises $78,000 annually for its enterprises in Palestine. These include the support of Meier Shfeyah, children's village, and of Pardess Anna, orange grove where young people are taught citrus farming; joint maintenance with senior Hadassah of a nurses' training school in Jerusalem, and the purchase of land through the Jewish National fund. Junior Hadassah coöperates in the Youth Aliyah movement for transferring refugee children from central Europe to Palestine.

Chicago Junior Hadassah recently has established a cultural institute to help its members earn the organization's gold cultural fellowship key. Elementary Hebrew and Jewish history are taught in classes meeting each Wednesday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock at the South Side Hebrew congregation, the Hebrew Theological college, the Humboldt Boulevard temple, North Shore congregation, and Beth Itzchok congregation. Both men and women are invited.

● ● ●

Arrangements for the annual dinner-dance of the Chicago division of the National Home for Jewish Children at Denver, Colo., will be discussed Wednesday evening at the Auditorium hotel. Refreshments will be served. The dinner-dance will be held Sunday evening, March 19, in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel. Proceeds will go to enlarging the home's facilities. Refugee children, as well as children of destitute tuberculous parents, now are being admitted to the institution.

Another of the Blind Service association's monthly parties for the residents of the Industrial Home for the Blind will be given Tuesday evening at the home, 1900 Marshall boulevard. Mrs. Abraham Hartman and Mrs. Carl Lang will be hostesses, and Mrs. Harold B. Wolffs will give a program of readings and music.

● ● ●

"Information, Please," is the title Jacob Spitzglass Junior Ort has given to its meeting at 3 o'clock today at the Congress hotel. Each member is to bring a question and an answer. Cabinets in Break Front Style Revived

One of the handsomest of all pieces of furniture made during the golden age of design, the 18th century, in England, was the break front cabinet or bookcase. It is so-called because instead of being straight across the front it has a center section that stands out a little from both ends. Usually this section contains drawers below an upper series of shelves. The end sections, on the other hand, have lower cabinet spaces beneath the upper shelves.

Sometimes these shelves [for books or china] were enclosed by glass doors and sometimes they were behind doors of wire grille. The woods used in break front cabinets were mahogany, walnut, butternut, and deal. Often they were finished in elaborate and costly lacker in the Chinese style.

These handsome pieces of furniture are now definitly back in the style picture. It is possible to select from a number of beautiful types that are being made by manufacturers known for fine woods and skilled craftsmanship.

New Pasadena Clipper Club in Debut Tonight

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL. Sunday evening takes on new importance tonight for a fashionable Pasadena set. The Clipper club makes its debut as a rendezvous for dining and dancing, appropriately enough, in the Huntington hotel's new Ship room, whose walls are lined with bas relief and full-rigged clipper ships of the early American era.

The membership, which is by invitation, is still shrouded in mystery, for cards went out to the chosen few only last Monday night. The membership committee, however, is made known today and includes names of interest to Chicago society.

Among them are Mr. and Mrs. Otis Buckingham [Sue Valentine], Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hunter [Gwendolyn Mitchell], and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Matthiessen Jr. Others are Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks [Isobel Hudson], Mr. and Mrs. Franklin M. Baldwin of Monterey and Hotel Huntington, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Brackenridge [Antonia Macneil], Mr. and Mrs. Robert Freeman Ford [Janet Vosburg], Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Jennison [Lillian Drummond], Miss Esther Klinck of Buffalo, N. Y., and Kirkwood Jewett Jr. of New York City.

Mrs. Otis Buckingham was elected this week to succeed Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr. as president of the Pasadena Visiting Nurse association. Mrs. Robert A. Millikan is corresponding secretary. The annual meeting was held at Mrs. Buckingham's home in South San Rafael avenue. Other Chicago names on the board are Mrs. Edward S. Clark, Mrs. Russell M. Decker [Virginia Raff of Evanston], Mrs. George Ellery Hale, Mrs. William Ellery Hale, and Mrs. A. B. Ruddock.

Friends of Edward A. Cudahy welcomed him back last week from Chicago to the Huntington, his winter residence. Also at the Huntington are the former Chicagoans, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Watters of Montecito. Also in the northern colony at the hotel is Lord Tennyson of Burlingame, there with Henry Potter Russell, Burlingame sportsman. They are back from Santa Fe where they went for Bing Crosby's golf tournament. And among other arrivals are Mrs. W. Irving Osborne of Evanston and Mrs. John F. L. Curtis of Chicago.

Arriving last Sunday to spend a few days with Miss Anna Morse, who makes her home at the Vista del Arroyo, were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hosmer Morse of Lake Forest. Miss Morse entertained her relatives with a small tea Monday, inviting close Chicago friends.

Here after a visit in Mexico City with her husband's father, Albert Doerr, Mrs. Karl Doerr of Evanston is to be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hammer of South Pasadena for a time. Her husband has returned to Evanston. During Mrs. Doerr's visit here she will be entertained by her husband's brother and wife, the Albert Doerrs Jr. [Harriet Huntington].

A house guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hellweg who came to Pasadena from Chicago a year or more ago, was Dr. Massey Hamilton Shepherd Jr. of the University of Chicago faculty. At present, the young scholar is doing research at the University of California at Berkeley, but he will return here again to be with the Hellwegs and to do further research at the Huntington library, only a block or two from the Hellweg residence in Holladay road.

WATCH YOUR THROAT LINE

The first place to show the march of the years, the first place to show the sign of neglected skin care... upon it depends half the beauty of your face.

It must be firmed, toned, soothed, as only Elizabeth Arden knows how... patted and moulded by deft hands... toned and soothed by the creams and lotions which have made the Elizabeth Arden Salon Treatments the most famous in the world.

For Miss Arden believes that your face begins at the base of your throat... that so much of the loveliness of the face itself depends on the throat's firm strength, just as the glory of a flower depends on the grace of its stem.

Lace Ball in Palm Beach Is Lavish Affair

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

The theme song of Palm Beach today is "After the Ball Is Over," as the Lace ball talked of and anticipated for weeks has passed into history. More than 400 attended this event at the Everglades club last night and all feminine guests were gowned in lace. A group of society women modeled 20 imported Paris frocks never before shown in this country. The appearance of the Ted Shawn dancers was an added fillip. Virtually the entire Chicago colony attended the ball. Hugh Dillman was general chairman.

Those Everglades Tombola luncheons and style shows were designed primarily for women, but the way in which they were attended by stag parties is causing talk in Palm Beach. Recently Mr. Dillman gave a party for 50 men, and last week George Nicolai entertained a large table for men only.

Moreover, the wardrobes worn by the men attending the fashion shows are eye-filling in the extreme. The dazzling tints of a tropical sunset, the gaudy hues in the peacock's fan, the colors in Joseph's coat, all pale by comparison with some of the combinations worn by Palm Beach men-about-town. There is John Charles Thomas' coat that shades from strawberry to flame. His father-in-law, George A. Dobyne, likes bright greens and blues. Robert A. Appleton of New York affects bold plaids. George Stevenson Fenton of Buffalo is a sartorial delight and Frederick Johnson of New York is apparalled magnificently, although somewhat subdued as to color.

Wiley R. Reynolds of Palm Beach and Jackson, Mich., goes in for the most royal of royal blues, and Howland Spencer writes from Nassau that he intends, upon his return, to put them all in the shade. With these colorful coats the Palm Beach men wear trousers in orange, blue, green, and pastels.

"Fashion is spinach," or maybe it's just spring, at any rate thousands of robin redbreasts are sojourning in Palm Beach.

Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine of Southhampton and Chicago, who is occupying the Joseph Belden house in Via Vizcaya, entertained on Tuesday with a cocktail party. Her house guests are her sister, Mrs. W. Vernon Booth, her granddaughter, Miss Betty Armour of Lake Forest; Miss Kay Goodman of Chicago, and Miss Armour's fiancé, Gerald V. Hollins Jr. of Cleveland, O.

Many parties have been planned for Miss Veronese Beatty, daughter of the Ross J. Beattys, whose marriage to Melville C. Branch will take place March 11 in Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Curtis of Winnetka are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Havens Windsor Jr. Mrs. Olaf Nelson Tevander is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Oakes at their home in Nassau.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon and their son, Barr, spent a short time in Palm Beach en route to Treasure Island, an atoll just off the coast of Nassau, which they own. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Webb Crawford of Wheaton, Dr. Irving Cutting, and Weymouth Kirkland of Chicago are visiting in Palm Beach. Abner J. Stillwell also was here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fermin Desloge IV. [Durie Malcolm] have returned from their honeymoon in Nassau and are with Mr. and Mrs. George H. Malcolm on the Lake trail for a while. On Thursday the family cruised to Boca Raton aboard the Malcolm yacht, Myyen, to have luncheon with friends at the famous Boca Raton club.

Mrs. Alfred Gawthrop flew in from Chicago on Saturday for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Baum at their Ocean front home. Mrs. James R. Getz is arriving on Monday. James T. Stewart has returned to Omaha after a visit at the Baum villa. Mr. Stewart and Mr. Baum enjoyed a successful fishing trip in the Keys last week.

Mrs. William Waller has joined Miss Virginia Waller and Mrs. Henry McIntyre at Casa Manana. She was accompanied by Mrs. E. Harris Brewer. Mr. and Mrs. John Nuveen are occupying Villa Bleu on the ocean front, and have as their guests their grandsons, John and Septimus Nuveen. Later, Mr. and Mrs. John Nuveen Jr. are expected.

"Below stairs" society also is active in Palm Beach. Thursday night the butlers had a ball. On Feb. 21 they will have another one at the Palm Beach Biltmore for the benefit of St. Mary's Nursing home. This event has a number of society patrons. On March 1 Palm Beach chauffeurs, butlers, and maids will trip the light fantastic, to say nothing of the Lambeth Walk, at the Lake Worth casino, south of Palm Beach.

Mrs. J. Hill Whiting is spending the season with her daughter, Mrs. Jesse Spalding, in El Brillo road, where Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph E. Prussing also are guests. Mrs. John A. Chapman is at the Vieta hotel.

Hoosier Salon Provokes Pity for Illinoisians

By Eleanor Jewett.

The two exhibitions which claim our attention at this season each year are the Hoosier salon, current in the Marshall Field galleries, and the Chicago Artists and Vicinity show, which opens next Thursday in the east wing galleries of the Art institute.

The Hoosier salon embraces many stunning paintings. The little gallery devoted to beautiful landscapes fulfills its mission in every sense of the word. There are many charming water colors in the show and several exquisite pieces of sculpture. Every year Illinois finds herself committed to bowing her knee to Indiana, this year no less deeply than before. Why it should be so it is hard to say, but the fact is that Indiana does do more for her artists and exhibitions than Illinois does, in the manner of giving money prizes and personal interest.

There is no exhibition held in Chicago that has the list of prize donors which the Hoosier salon boasts. Indiana schools, universities, societies, business firms, newspapers, and individuals contribute to swell the number and amounts of prizes each year. Were even one-half of the names to back an All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts [our nearest organization in kind to the Hoosier salon] exhibit, the president and officers of that society probably would swoon. It just isn't done in Illinois—this taking a genuine interest in Illinois art. And a pity it is this should be so. You will find that many of the artists in the Hoosier salon are from or of or associated with Illinois. They must go out of their state, however, to find encouragement.

There are a number of prizes offered for the Chicago Artists and Vicinity exhibition at the Art institute, but the museum exhibits are always more or less sponsored shows and carry their own prestige with them. At this time it is of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts of which we are definitly thinking. Were that to be given more popular backing in its two important exhibitions each year, the oils in the winter and the water colors in the spring, how magnificently our pride could bloom!

The fourth spring water color exhibit of the "All Illinois," by the way, is announced from March 18 to April 22, inclusive. The exhibit will include the graphic arts—etchings, lithographs, drawings and photographs. Work will be received from Feb. 22 through Feb. 25 in room 450, Stevens hotel. The jury will meet March 1. The jury this year is made up of Adam Emory Albright, Paul T. Gilbert, Janet Bruce, Wallace E. Turner, and this writer.

From Feb. 3 to March 1 the All Illinois Society of the Fine Arts is sponsoring an exhibit of paintings of the midwest and the Pacific seacoast by Rowena R. Smith at the Drake hotel. There are water colors and oils in the show.

The All Illinois is very much in our mind at the moment. Another member of the society, Dale Nichols, has just been given a signal honor in New York. The Metropolitan museum has bought one of his paintings, "End of the Hunt," a painting which already had been honored through the award of a prize at a Chicago exhibit. Dale Nichols at one time was a member of the Tribune art staf. He has made a name for himself by his independent painting, his original technique and his honesty of purpose.

An exhibit of paintings in water color of wild animals and portraits of dogs by James Vlasaty, Chicago artist, may be seen at the Ackermann galleries, 408 South Michigan avenue. The exhibition is brilliant. Young Mr. Vlasaty knows animals from A to Z and paints them in a sure and accurate fashion that yet does not detract from their glamor. From the enchanting study of a tiny mouse curled in a hollow tree to the insolent pose of a superb moose, the pictures run the gamut of animals, small and large, timid and ferocious.

When Mr. Vlasaty turns his attention to painting one's pet he attains an even more brilliant success than when tigers are his subject. The various dog portraits are among the best of their kind. The artist succeeds admirably in getting the texture of coat, expression of eye, poise of head and the inner spirit of each animal which makes him not just a dog but your dog.

A group of new water colors by John Whorf is on view at the O'Brien galleries, 820 North Michigan avenue. They are as fine as any we have seen of his. This is high praise, for John Whorf has a standard higher than the average water color painter and the ability to reach it. His work is full, rich and brilliant. Watch sometimes for the little strokes, those dashes of paint that give one such exquisite satisfaction. His boat pictures remain among the most stirring of the various subjects he undertakes. Unfortunately several of the finest of this new lot of pictures have already been sold and sent to new homes. Ours is the loss for not being able to see them.

Berenice Newman, an All Illinois Society of the Fine Arts member, is showing her colorful paintings at her studio, 4935 Dorchester avenue, in a farewell exhibit. She and Mr. Newman are moving permanently from Chicago in the near future.

Two new exhibitions opened last Wednesday at the Arts club, prints by Georges Rouault and paintings by André Derain.

"ST. CHRISTOPHER" PRINT

The prints of Albrecht Duerer, of which the "St. Christopher" is one of the most perfect, are among the important additions to the print collection of the Art institute. The recently acquired prints, some acquired through gifts and others through purchase, are on view in galleries 12 and 13 to May 14.

Art Notes

At the Paul Theobald gallery, 104 South Michigan avenue, the work of three young modernists may be found. Richard Koppe and Alexander Corazzo are showing cubist and abstract compositions, and Gretchen Schoeninger offers sculpture of a kind. It is wiser to refrain than to comment on the show. After all, they are young.

The Swedish-American Art association continues its pleasant exhibition of work by artist members to Feb. 11 at the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers.

At the Chicago galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue, an important exhibition of water colors by Nina K. Griffin and landscapes in oil by Rudolph Ingerle and Edward T. Grigware opened last Tuesday to continue to March 1. The exhibit is stunning; no one should miss it.

See Home Sewing Gain.

Home sewing may be more popular in 1939 than in 1938, experts forecast. They say prices of girls' and women's ready-made clothing may be higher in 1939, while prices of some textiles may remain about the same.

Thousands in Winter Trek to Foreign Lands

By Frederic Babcock.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Several thousand Americans set out on an invasion of foreign lands today, but their mission was one of peace instead of war. Fourteen ocean liners steamed out of New York harbor for nearly all parts of the world. It was the biggest travel movement since boom times.

The exodus included, in addition to the regular sailings, a number of ships bound for winter cruises. The Normandie left for Rio de Janeiro, the Conte di Savoia for the Mediterranean, the Columbus for a journey around Africa, and the Britannic, the Statendam, and the Pilsudski for the West Indies. Their departures were to the tune of a song of distinct optimism on the part of the managing heads of nearly every trans-Atlantic steamship company and tourist agency.

"It was like the good old days," Fred Dietz, publisher of the Travel Agent magazine and an authority on tourist affairs, told a Tribune representative. "The sight of all these ships parading down the harbor was enough to make everybody believe prosperity was returning. As a matter of fact, 1939 has all the makings of a splendid year in our business and, with the right breaks, there'll be no question about our scoring decided gains over 1938."

Similar sentiments were voiced by every one of the more than a score of officials interviewed by this correspondent. They were all agreed that the threat of a general war in Europe was over, at least for many months to come.

"The damage has been done; now it is a thing of the past," said T. F. McGrath, advertising manager of the Cunard-White Star line. "The American public—and especially the traveling public—has come to realize that many of the pronouncements and ultimatums issued overseas for internal consumption are not to be taken too seriously outside the countires from which they issue. Prominent people talk sensationally, and naturally what they say is news, but after a while the people discover that there is no harm in talk. War scares come and go, and still the people go on traveling. They have been hearing war talk for many years, but they have learned that that means no risk as far as they are concerned."

"If everybody waited for world conditions to return to normal," said Dr. Clinton L. Babcock, manager of the American Express company's foreign department, "there never would be any more travel. Somewhere in the world there is always trouble or a threat of trouble. But that is no reason for Americans to stay at home. I am glad to note that they are finding out that fact and are profiting by it."

"An index to conditions in the travel industry may be found in the heavy winter sailings," said William Seabrook, advertising manager of the Holland-American line. "On Jan. 28 we had 625 passengers on the Rotterdam sailing out of New Orleans, and we shall have an equal number when that ship leaves on a similar cruise Feb. 22."

"We are already looking ahead, not only to next summer, but to the summer of 1940 when the Olympic games will be held at Helsingfors," said David Israels, passenger trafic manager of the Gdynia-America line.

"The travel trend is toward the Scandinavian countries and we have scheduled more than thirty tours of those lands in order to help take care of this summer's demand."

White, passenger trafic manager of the American Express company; Ed Knight, advertising director of the French line; Peter Wright of the Hamilton Wright organization, representing Italy, Egypt, and Czecho-Slovakia; George C. Gaede, passenger trafic manager of the American Export lines; Henry S. Woodbridge of Boston, general manager of Raymond-Whitcomb, Inc.; C. F. Judson, advertising manager of the Furness lines; F. Nevens, assistant passenger trafic manager of American republics lines.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

Because of the recent retirement of Capt. Jules Chabot from the bridge of the Ile de France, several changes have been made necessary in the command of the French Line's trans-Atlantic steamers. Capt. Etienne Payen de la Garanderie, formerly of the Paris, has replaced Capt. Chabot. The Paris' new master is Capt. William Vogel, formerly of the Champlain. Capt. de la Garanderie joined the French merchant marine thirty-three years ago at the age of 17.

Charles Kozminski, general western passenger agent of the Red Star Line, received word last week that his company has arranged a series of twenty-three day cruises to the British Isles and the continent this season, with the Westernland and Pennland as the carriers. The tours will be on an all-expense basis. Mr. Kozminski relates that the bookings of westerners who wish to drive to New York, and then take their cars with them to Europe, are unusually heavy this year.

Tomorrow evening at 5:30 in the Red room of the Hotel La Salle a stag farewell party will be held for Charlie James, manager of the Boulevard Travel shop of the Pennsylvania railroad. Mr. James has been appointed district passenger agent of the Pennsylvania at Dallas, Tex.

The weekly travel talk at the Fair store on Friday is entitled "Sun Valley and the Salmon River country." These interesting places in Idaho will be shown in natural color. Randall L. Jones of the Union Pacific railroad will tell the story of Idaho's transformation into the Switzerland of America for summer and winter sports. These travel talks, open to the public, are given every Friday at 11 a. m., on the seventh floor of the Fair store.

Coming events in the south: Mardi Gras carnival, New Orleans, Feb. 16 to 21; Spring fiesta, New Orleans, March 12 to 19; garden pilgrimages, Natchez, Miss., March 4 to April 2; the Garden Club of Virginia's tenth annual tour of homes and estates in that state, April 24 to 29.

Sailing Feb. 17, the Hamburg-American liner Milwaukee will make a 43 day cruise of the Mediterranean. Ports of call are to include Funchal, Tangier, Genoa, Naples, Messina, Port Said, Alexandria, Beirut, Istanbul, and Venice.

Copies of the 1939 International tourist calendar have been received at THE TRIBUNE'S travel bureau. The calendar, printed in French and covering every major event of the new year, is issued by the Central Committee of International Tourism, 127, Avenue des Champs Elysees, Paris.

Tours of five days each from Chicago to Natchez, Miss., and return will be made over the Illinois Central system throughout March. At Natchez the vistors will be taken on pilgrimages to the ante-bellum gardens and estates.

An idea of the growth of skiing in the Laurentian mountains north of Montreal may be gained from the fact that the region now has twenty ski tows, as compared with last winter's four. Two of the newest routes are the Maple Leaf trail of eighty miles, traversing the Laurentians from Shawbridge to Mont Tremblant, and the one linking St. Gabriel de Brandon, seventy-five miles from Montreal, with Ste. Marguerite.

Tom Wall, of the Canadian Pacific Chicago office, announces that the new hotel at Vancouver, B. C., to be called Hotel Vancouver, will be operated jointly by the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways under the management of W. J. Mylett, veteran Canadian Pacific hotel man. Built in the boom days at a cost of $12,000,000, the new hotel is a 1,000 room structure and will be one of the finest in appointment and service.

The rugged beauty of Norway, "land of the midnight sun" will be described in an illustrated travel lecture by Arne E. Williamson, resident manager of the Norweigan America line, at the Windermere hotel, 1642 East 56th street, on Tuesday at 8 p. m., by arrangement of the Hyde Park Travel bureau, located at the Windermere. Mr. Williamson, who is a native of Norway, makes frequent visits to the "land of the midnight sun" and has recently returned with a new collection of colored slides.

As the two City of Denver streamlined trains near their one-millionth mile of operation, the Chicago and North Western railway announces the addition to the Chicago-Denver overnighters of an all-room sleeping car, and extra power to the locomotives. The all-room car will contain four roomettes, three compartments, and one drawing room and four bedrooms en suite, more than doubling the present room space on the train. The City of Denver streamliners are jointly owned and operated by the Union Pacific and Chicago and North Western railways.

G. M. Warren, assistant passenger manager of the Cunard White Star line, Liverpool, England, passed through Chicago recently on his way from India and three months in Australia. He said that 1,200 passengers a year find their way out of Australia and New Zealand across the United States or Canada to England by Cunard White Star ships on the Atlantic. Australians, he claims, are among the world's best travelers.

The transpacific liner Chichibu Maru has been officially renamed Kamakura Maru, S. Yanase of the N. Y. K. line said yesterday. Kamakura is the first place of interest to American tourists entering Japan after arriving in Yokohama. Thousands of tourists have photographs of themselves standing under the giant bronze Buddha or "Daibutu" of Kamakura. Fourteen miles from Yokohama, this city has played a brilliant rôle in Japan's history.

The Holland-America liner Statendam has been scheduled for a late spring cruise to North Africa, the Riviera, and wayports in the Mediterranean and southwestern Europe, says Dr. Peter van den Toorn, general manager of the company in New York. The cruise, which is in coöperation with the Frank Travel company, leaves New York April 18, at the termination of the vessel's present series of trips to the West Indies and South America.

First port of call will be Funchal, Madeira, followed by stops at Casablanca, French Morocco; Monte Carlo; Ajaccio, Corsica; Algiers; Gilbraltar; Lisbon, Portugal; Southampton, and Boulogne-sur-Mer, in that order. Passengers may leave the Statendam at the two last named ports, or her home port of Rotterdam, where she is due on May 8. Return to New York, which is included in the price of the cruise, may be made by any westbound sailing of the line during 1939, except August and September.

Bored in Tahiti? There's No Time for Weariness

By Anson Brown.

"But what is there to do in Tahiti?" The question has been often raised. "How do you spend your time? Don't you get bored?"

Bored in Tahiti? Never! I always thought the days down there were not quite long enough; sometimes there would not even be a moment for a siesta. During my stay I attempted to keep a day by day ledger 'nd often I was too busy for even that. Once a person slips out of the routine of ordered American life it is hard to collect the wits long enough to record the day's events. Referring to the ledger for an ordinary day, I find the following:

"A coconut bounced down on the pandanus roof this morning about 7. The sound was not unlike a bomb exploding in all this stillness. Nelson slept right through it, so I turned his bunk over, with him still in it, and then went for a dip in the lagoon. I always wear shoes while swimming, because of the danger of coral poisoning. Even the slightest cut should be immediately smeared with iodine. Once the coral 'bug gets in the wound it won't heal. The natives are immune, but not so the popaas.

• • •

"While Nels swept out the hut I prepared breakfast in the kitchen shack. Our greatest luxury is American coffee, since the native coffee is too bitter. We use condensed milk entirely for cream, and spread avocado paste on our toast, because the New Zealand butter is expensive. Two of the native chickens that roost in the bamboo bathroom left a couple of eggs behind, so we appropriated those to garnish the morning meal. Cleaning up the kitchen is simple. We dump all the dirty dishes and pans in the lagoon for a few minutes and then set them in the sun to dry.

"It has not rained for a week and the sun is brilliant and warm. We pulled the piroque [outrigger canoe] to the water and paddled out over the coral formations to watch the fish. For this we have a glass bottom box, which we half submerge in the water. Looking through the box we can see the fish as though they were swimming through green air.

• • •

"Such a sight! A coral underwater cliff drops below the piroque. It is jagged with intricate, lacy, coral formations, with myriads of colored fish swimming by. There are schools of small, brilliant, blue fish and large goggled-eyed, convict fish, striped with black and yellow. There is the 'king's jester,' who blows himself up like a balloon and then suddenly collapses. Another species has two clawlike feet just below the mouth and digs in the sand for food. He is followed by a school of small black parasite fish, gobbling up what he misses. Directly below is a long green lobster crawling on the ocean floor, and in front of him a large salt water crab sidles edgeways into a hole in a great piece of lavender coral.

"The fish are more like fragments of a shattered rainbow than living creatures of the deep. They are every conceivable shape — round, square, triangular. Some glitter like bits of mosaic, others look faded in dull reddish or orange hues.

"We spent two hours watching them while the wind and current carried us a mile downshore toward Venus point. We went ashore by old King Pomare's tomb. He was the last of the Polynesian dynasty, and his dying request was that a bottle of pernod be placed atop the monument marking his tomb. Not having any pernod in stock at the time he died, the authorities cemented in a bottle of benedictine, where, reverently ignored by the natives, it rests to this day.

"Near the tomb, neat and trim beneath the tall palms, are a group of huts. The natives there had watched our awkward landing with interest and called to us to come visit them. Fortunately we had plenty of cigarets to offer in return for an invitation to eat [which was inevitable], so we joined them and watched the preparation of the midday meal. It consisted chiefly of raw fish.

"Do not turn up your nose too quickly. It really is not half bad. They use the blue parrot fish, not unlike lake trout, and chop the flesh up finely in a coconut bowl. To this are added onion juice, lime juice, and coconut milk. It tastes like cole slaw. We also had bananas and baked breadfruit. This latter item is heavier than a sweet potato and hits the bottom of an empty stomach with a dull thud.

• • •

"How sorry are we that we do not speak their own language, but in poor French we manage to be understood. While we were eating they kept asking: 'C'est bon? C'est bon?' How could we best show them the meal was delicious? Nelson belched; they beamed. This, then, was the answer. I thought it happened only in China or Arabia!

"We lingered with them so long that the sun was setting by the time we beached the canoe at our own hut. We hurriedly donned shirts, for no one is allowed in Papeete bare chested, and bicycled into the town. The old dusty Broom road is always quite a sight in the evening. It is crowded with Polynesians and French people on cycles peddling back to their homes on the outskirts of Papeete after spending the day in town. Dogs bark from the gateways of some of the homes and the women, as they bicycle past, call bits of gossip to the occupants. Every one seems to know every one else.

"We stopped at the Bougainvilla club for a punch before dinner. There the American and French residents gather each evening. Some of them, it appears, never leave the place. It is nothing more than a broad porch on the second floor of a waterfront building, with a barber shop, curio store, and garage below. The American vice consul was there and Charles Nordhoff dropped in for a few minutes. It is all a passing parade, and one can get more gossip from the club than from the natives. It is the chief occupation down here.

"We heard a great clattering down the street and it came closer by the moment. There were tom-tom drums going at great rate in a fast, stacatto rhythm. Whatever it was was coming on wheels. In a swirl of dust it passed the corner and then stopped. We saw an old open truck with a native orchestra in the back. On the side was a sign in French and Polynesian: Tonight—Theatre Moderne—Tim McCoy in 'The White Rider.' High pressure advertising even in Tahiti.

"We had a lobster dinner at the local café for 35 cents, gulping down our food so that we would not miss the show. It was dark by the time we arrived at the Moderne. The Chinese had set up their vending carts, adorned with kerosene lamps, and were doing a good business selling coconut ice cream. Another native orchestra, with five guitars and three drums, was making an awful din on the corner. The dusty intersection was jammed with people singing and laughing. Mardi Gras is something like this.

"As we entered the movie house we were sure we were going into an airport hangar—corrugated iron sides and roof, hard bare earth for the floor. The seats all slant forward and one has to plant his feet firmly to keep from sliding off.

• • •

"The theater was equipped for sound film, but the audience made so much noise it did no good. An interpreter sat in a box near the ceiling and yelled the translation down at the people. More dogs ran up and down the ailes. The current news reel flashed on. It showed the inauguration of President Coolidge. Another news reel; the doughboys were returning from France. The comedy was a silent film, dyed yellow, produced in 1920, and containing much slapstick pie throwing and water ducking. The Polynesians howled with delight. When the feature finally appeared we all settled down for some real drama—with frequent stops while the film was repaired or changed.

"The audience was in a frenzy when the hero, at long last, galloped through the valley and rescued his flaxen haired damsel from the burning cabin. My friend and I were weak with laughter. It was all over. We dragged ourselves outside to the Chinese carts and drank coconut water at a penny a glass.

"And now, as I write back here at the hut, it is late at night. Nelson has gone to sleep in the deck chair out on the beach and the two dogs are snoring at my feet. I can hear a dull restful boom of the surf far out on the reef. A waning moon has just come up over the still palms. There is no wind."

Thus it was, an August Thursday in Tahiti, but it could be an April Tuesday, or any other day.

"Don't you get bored in Tahiti?"

How can you? You haven't the time!

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

FOREIGN TRAVEL

February Sees Start of Many Yachting Races

By John Waring Jr.

Yachting enthusiasts — including skippers and crews as well as the "binocular sailors"—have an abundance of regattas, cruises, and long distance races to see this winter and spring. This applies to sailboats and motor boats almost anywhere there's a stretch of salt or fresh water in the United States, from Hawaii to Porto Rico.

The annual ocean race for sailers from Miami to Nassau, across open water, is scheduled to start Feb. 14. Cruising craft representing New England, Long Island sound, Houston, New Orleans, and Detroit yacht clubs are to compete with Florida's fleet. The affair is almost as long and as thrilling when seen from a coast guard cutter or an excursion steamer as our Chicago-Mackinac Island event.

Several Comet class sailing sloops from the Hudson river and Potomac river fleets will represent the United States in the first annual midwinter Comet class regatta in Porto Rico Feb. 11 and 12. These belong to the same class as has been seen in Chicagoland harbors each summer since their introduction here three years ago.

• • •

The National Outboard association in Chicago has sanctioned the Rio Grande Yacht club's regatta planned for outboard speedboats and to be seen and heard by southwesterners, Mexicans, and tourists at Brownsville, Tex., Feb. 19.

Havana again will be the finishing point of the ocean race for sailing yachts of the cruising type. This starts March 4 from St. Petersburg, Fla.

From March 18 to 20 the 26th annual Biscayne Bay regatta for motor boats of all racing classes will be run at Miami.

The Southern Yacht club at New Orleans, where a new yacht harbor is being built, will be host to northern skippers and crews in the International Star Class Yacht Racing association's spring championship, March 25 to April 1. This marks the first time an international star regatta has been held on Lake Pontchartrain since 1929, when the world's championships were sailed there.

• • •

Southern California's yachtsmen and yachtswomen are out to break last year's record of 190 windjammers which sailed in the midwinter regatta, held in Los Angeles harbor at San Pedro. The meet this year is to last from Feb. 22 to 26, and more than 200 craft are expected from all coastal ports. Four months later the pick of the Pacific coast's seagoing sail yachts [and one or two to be shipped from New England waters via Panama canal] will start out from Treasure Island, the San Francisco Fair headquarters, in the world's longest biennial yacht race—2,200 miles to Hawaii.

Eighty cities in twenty-two states are improving their yacht harbors or building new ones. This is reported by the American Power Boat association and the National Association of Boat and Engine Manufacturers. The news will cheer those who cruise from port to port—but don't race everywhere — regardless of whether their vacationing is on river, lake, or ocean.

Harbor facilities are to seagoers what trailer lots are to the tin can tourists. Last winter $74,000,000 worth of yachts, consisting mostly of 30 to 40 foot sail or power craft—one to a family—took thousands of visitors to Florida via the waterways.

DETOURS

The world's smallest state—the only one that a person can walk around in half an hour—will celebrate its tenth anniversary next Saturday. . . . It is Vatican City and it became an entity Feb. 11, 1929, when the preliminary signatures were attached to a treaty of reconciliation. . . . The treaty brought an end to the "frozen enmity" that had existed between the kingdom of Italy and the Vatican ever since 1870.

● As far as the average tourist, seeing it for the first time, is concerned, the state is something like a newly discovered land. . . . Yet the imagination the frescoes in the papal state apartments are excelled by nothing else that Raphael did. . . . Michelangelo's murals in the Sistine chapel are generally regarded as his masterpieces.

● In the routine arrangements visible to the tourists there have been few changes since the state was established. . . . But the usual visitor has made the most of whatever changes there were. . . . For one thing he flocks with the others to the little postoffice and stands in line to obtain stamps issued by the newest holy city. . . . In the old days he district of a hundred acres or so has a history going back to the time when it was known as the Etruscan settlement of Ager Vaticanus, many years before the birth of Christianity. . . . It was there that Nero had his circus, in which the Apostle Peter is said to have met his death.

● Nearly every traveler knows by this time that the art of the ages is in the new papal state. . . . The value of its treasures can scarcely be computed. . . . They are literally priceless; if the orthodox replacement value were used it would be meaningless. . . . All the money in the world wouldn't be enough to build up another such collection.

● "The state has a tiny territory," the pope said when the pact was signed ten years ago, "but it is the greatest in the world because it contains Bernini's colonnades, Michelangelo's dome, and the tomb of the Prince of the Apostles." . . . He might have mentioned also the Laocoon, the tapestries of Raphael, the Belvedere Apollo, and the works of the great artists who went to the Vatican to embellish it with paintings that have rarely if ever been equaled. . . . In point of draftsmanship and cared little, when he reached Rome, about where he got his stamps for the picture postcards to the folks back home. . . . For another thing, under the guidance of Pope Pius XI., the Vatican's treasures have been made more accessible to sightseers. . . . And, through the adoption of the index and filing system of the library of congress in Washington, it is now possible for visitors to the Vatican library to consult rare volumes never before available for research.

Rope and Basket Passengers.

Poland has a new thrill for visitors to Zakopane: a rope and basket passenger service from Kuznice to mountain peaks of the Carpathians. It is an aerial journey not to be duplicated in eastern Europe.

King Carnival Will Start Reign Feb. 9

Ski championships, local, national, and international will take place throughout Europe, from Norway and Switzerland to Poland and Greece in February. Thousands of American tourists will have an opportunity to show the progress they have made in the winter pastime under the tutoring of Scandinavian and Alpine skiers.

But the outstanding event over there next month is the carnival season, which brings fun to many lands before the Lenten season begins. Mardi Gras is a feature in only a few American cities, but in Europe hundreds of places give themselves up to this annual revelry. The principal celebration is on the French and Italian Rivieras, beginning Feb. 9. King Carnival goes to Nice each year to start a merry-go-round of masque balls, processions, sports events, and concerts. In Belgium the processions are featured by grotesque giants.

All comes to a close on Shrove Tuesday, which this year is Feb. 21. On that day, to the accompaniment of street dancing and fireworks, King Carnival is burned.

Travel to Miami Sets Record Pace

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4.—Gains as high as 20 per cent in the volume of winter vacation travel to Miami have been reported in the last few weeks. The increases are attributed in large part to new low rates on the railroad and buses.

Further indictaions of a record-setting season are to be found in reports from two national business surveys. One shows Miami in the list of ten cities in which business improvement has been outstanding recently; the other says the business trend map shows a noticeable increase over the same period last year.

The Voice of the Traveler

LIKE LETTERS FROM HOME.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—To the Travel Editor: Tahiti, above all other South Sea Islands, always has been a magic name to me. Every Sunday I "eat up" THE TRIBUNE's travel pages—especially when you print letters or articles about my favorite spot.

On Dec. 11 the travel section was graced by a lengthy and interesting article about Tahiti by Anson Brown. You can imagine the pleasure I got from reading it. Then your department began the new year right by printing, on successive Sundays [Jan. 8 and yesterday], stories by Mr. Brown on Tahiti and Moorea. They were just like letters from home. I'm saving all the clippings.

I belong to the army of unemployed, so that a voyage to the South Seas is rather far off for me. But I still have a pocketful of dreams! L. C. S.

LIGHT FOR THE BLIND.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—To the Travel Editor: Your Voice of the Traveler feature of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE has always been very interesting to me, because I know what happiness it is bringing to many afflicted persons.

If it is possible please send me the names of at least ten young women in their 20s or 30s who are shut-ins or blind, and live within Chicago or its suburbs. I am especially interested in blind people. I am sure that there are many who do not have an opportunity to meet outsiders and who wish to do so.

I may do some traveling this summer, and I should like to have a mailing list. My address is 7735 Indiana avenue.

[MISS] JANE OLSON.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 14.—To the Travel Editor: For many months a young woman in Milwaukee, Wis., has been writing cards and letters to the shut-ins whose names she finds in your column, and she has built up quite a file of names which she keeps in a detailed, thorough manner. Sometimes she has gone beyond the realm of correspondence and has tried to send shut-ins things that might be the means of making them happy or comfortable. She is just a business girl and carries on this hobby in between her office duties.

Now it so happens she has come to St. Louis to enter a hospital for a major operation which will make her a shut-in for a long time. So it would seem a fitting time to add her name to your list to receive mail from other folks. Certainly it would be a grand surprise for her, and it is possible that some who have heard from her will read her name in this column and will not have known that she is to be a hospital patient. One thing is certain; in due time she will answer every letter she receives.

Her name and address: Ruth Roebbel, 311 Tiffin avenue, Ferguson, Mo. Let's give her a big card and letter shower!

A FRIEND.

Ohio, Ill., Jan. 15.—To the Travel Editor: Mrs. J. K. Worrell, the widow of a minister, has been a shut-in for a long time. She has to stay in her chair all day long, and has few contacts with the outside world. I know she would be delighted to hear from your travelers. They can write her at Ohio, Ill.

MAUDE BLANCHARD.

Negaunee, Mich., Jan. 16.—To the Travel Editor: Please add George Learned, 606 West C street, Iron Mountain, Mich., to your list. He was so severely burned last May that he has been confined to his home ever since, and will be indefinitly. Any messages of cheer would be greatly appreciated.

The True Story of an American Girl Who Found There Was No Place for Her Love in the Creed of a German Nazi

I Married a Nazi!

By Margaret Porter Reinke

(Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.)

I MARRIED a German. When I first met him he was a resident of the West Indies, a tolerant and charming gentleman, and a moderately successful business executive. He had left the fatherland in his youth and knew little of post-war Germany.

Now Karl Reinke is a Nazi. He subscribes fanatically to the creed of the National Socialists; and in that creed there is no place for the love of an American girl. He has become so thoroughly Hitlerized that everything in conflict with Nazi notions of race and politics must be eliminated.

The transformation from what he had been to what he is took place while we were on a belated honeymoon in his homeland. I do not think I have been to blame for the wreck of our marriage; certainly I prayed and worked to make it a success. I even swallowed my American pride and gave formal acknowledgment of German superiority, in the vain hope of preserving our romance as the beautiful thing it was in the beginning.

But Karl made it too obvious that he despised America and all it represents, spiritually, politically, and socially. Our separation was inevitable. The pain of it cut deep but healed quickly. I do not regret that I shall never see my husband again.

• • •

July, 1935. The good ship Hansa was plowing the Atlantic, Hamburg bound from New York. The night was warm and clear, and I was standing at the rail stargazing when two men approached. One was a German journalist with whom I was already acquainted.

"Let me introduce Herr Reinke from the West Indies," he said. "Fräulein Porter, Herr Reinke."

We shook hands. Herr Reinke's tanned face was keen yet kindly. His gray-green eyes twinkled. I knew then that I would like him very much. My first thought was: "I hope he will sit by me at the movie tonight."

He did. For the rest of the voyage we were much together. We played the piano, we sat in deck chairs, we tried our luck at shuffleboard, we listened to music. Karl's years in the tropics had made him a cosmopolitan. He could converse in perfect English of philosophy and art, of Europe and the islands, of himself, and of me. Just to know that he was near was comforting.

• • •

The Hansa became a ship of enchantment, and one sunlit day as we were passing the Isle of Wight we made long, long plans for the future. Some of them came true. We met several times in Europe. I visited Karl's parents in their Hamburg home. He came to Chicago to see me.

In February, 1937, we were married at Miami, Fla., with the members of my family attending the wedding. Immediately after the ceremony we boarded a plane and were soon in Haiti.

I Choose America!

"The more I think of myself as a housewife in Germany the more fantastic the possibility seems. I shrink at ever coming again in contact with the mass emotion, the egotism, the fear, and the force of the Reich. Even less could I bear to have my children grow up to be Nazis.

"Always I think of the children. I can remember the cold Sunday mornings in Hamburg when troops of boys in the dark blue Hitler Youth uniforms marched by singing lusty songs taught them by the Nazis. Their thick shoes clattered on the cobblestones, and the little fellows had to run determinedly to keep up with the big ones.

"Would I ever be willing to turn a 6-year-old son of mine over to the Hitler Youth, to let him be trained through adolescence and into manhood by the government? Millions of German mothers must make this surrender.

"My husband has made his choice, and I have made mine. I choose the land where mothers will never hear their children cry 'Heil Hitler!' nor any other pledge to dictatorship.

"I choose the United States of America!"

Bachelor Ranks Thinning, but March Bravely On

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood.

WITH 1939 ONLY five weeks old, the Hollywood bachelor ranks already have been depleted by the loss of Ronald Colman, Wayne Morris, and Nelson Eddy. Before the year has run its course Clark Gable, Robert Taylor, Cary Grant, and Herbert Marshall will have become married men.

It is high time that we checked up on the bachelors left out here, so that you girls will know what the cinema has to offer in attractive husbands. Well, contrary to opinions, we have quite a stock of them. If you'd like a young millionaire who has prestige and a yacht to recommend him, I can offer you Howard Hughes. If you don't like a millionaire that tall, how about Rudy Vallee, who has a wave in his hair as well as money in the bank? In the imported division there are David Niven, Brian Aherne, Richard Greene, and George Brent.

You'd like to examine something else, miss? Step right over here. On your right is Douglas Fairbanks Jr., next to him is William Powell, and to his right is Randolph Scott. No, you can't have the one in this showcase. He is Gilbert Roland, ma'am, and we are holding him for Connie Bennett, who is a very good customer. However, if you like 'em swarthy I can let you have Bruce Cabot, dark and handsome. No, he isn't tall. George Raft, ma'am? No, he is on consignment to Miss Peine. What about Edgar Bergen, W. C. Fields, Milton Berle, or Frank Parker? If you like the collegian type, how about Princetonian Jimmy Stewart?

Something in movie executives? Well, how about the wealthiest of them all, Joe Schenck? He's a bit faded, ma'am, but he's the best host on the coast and he has loads of dough. Or how about something in writers or directors—Norman Krasna, Rouben Mamoulian, Bob Riskind, Carl Laemmle Jr., Eddie Sutherland, Austin Fairman? Uh-huh, you want Gable or Robert Taylor—you will have to take that up with Miss Lombard or Miss Stanwyck, ma'am. Can I interest you in a nice, swingy band leader? Guy Lombardo, Abe Lyman, Skinnay Ennis. Hal Kemp? No, a lady came and got him just the other day.

With Ronald Colman, Wayne Morris, and Nelson Eddy out of circulation, and with Gable and Taylor all set for 1939 hitchings, the No. 1 movie catch will be youthful Tyrone Power. The young Cincinnati star, for all of his immaturity, has pursued his amours with rare discretion, believing in the old adage that there's safety in numbers. At the moment he has a crush on Annabella, the Frenchie, but before her he was reported wooing Janet Gaynor, Arleen Whelan, Norma Shearer, and others too numerous to mention, so there is no indication that the present attachment will be any more serious.

Quite as circumspect is Jimmy Stewart, the M-G-M youngster, or Richard Greene, the dimpled Britisher. You see their names quite often in the gossip columns as escorts of this or that glamor girl, but they always dodge the issue when it is presented point blank. Cesar Romero is a favorite dancing partner, but he sits it out when they go into Mendelssohn.

This hesitation on the part of the younger male stars is purely economic. There is a well defined fear among the youngsters that marriage ruins them at the box office, and they sidestep marriage as cautiously as a man walking on eggs. Often this fear is emphasized by their studios, so these younger matinée idols deliberately avoid marriage.

The marrying men of the colony are the comedians. For some reason or other the funny men always take themselves a wife. Some of them, like Stan Laurel, are so in love with marriage that they take three or four wives. Survey the ranks of comedians and you will be impressed by their mating instinct. The Marx brothers, five of them, are married. The Ritz brothers, three of them, are married. So are Jack Haley, Jack Benny, George Burns, Frank McHugh, Al Jolson, Bert Wheeler, Bob Hope, Fred Allen, Frank Morgan, George Jessel. Their marriage rating is high.

Perhaps we shouldn't indulge in any such broad generality. W. C. Fields, Edgar Bergen, Milton Berle, and Edward Everett Horton are comics who are footloose and fancy-free. So, too, is Ken Murray. Charlie Butterworth is getting a divorce, or losing one, and Babe Hardy is separated from his wife at the moment.

M-G-M is frank to admit that the marriage of Nelson Eddy and its box office reaction will be studied carefully, because no star out here has a more solid femme following. If his next pictures show a dip at the box office (all things being equal to his last pictures) it will be considered proof that marriage cuts into a matinée idol's following. Privately the Metro officials don't believe that there will be any reaction whatsoever. The studio bosses are of the opinion that a performer who is married happily is better liked by the public and gains solid prestige.

• • •

There are one hundred arguments in support of this idea. Gable was tremendous at the box office while he was married. So was William Powell. Bing Crosby as a married man and a father has gained in popularity. Rudolph Valentino never sacrificed his fan following by becoming a Benedick. Errol Flynn had the same experience. Spencer Tracy, Paul Muni, Robert Montgomery, Robert Young, Kenny Baker, Fred Astaire, and Joel McCrea are all arguments in favor of this theory.

It is my personal opinion that movie fans, male or female, are interested only in one thing and that their preferences are fashioned only by one thing—what they see on the screen.

KNOW YOUR HORSES

By CAPT. MAXWELL M. CORPENING

POLO PONIES While most polo ponies used in high-goal or good polo competition are thoroughbreds, there is no so-called approved type in this horse class. So much is demanded of a polo pony that no definition of physical requirements is applicable. A polo pony is like a man on the job—the one that can produce gets the call. In the old days a rule was in effect that a pony must be 14.2 or under and described as having speed, great intelligence, endurance, stamina, and an aptitude for dodging, swerving, and wheeling around on a dead run. While polo is supposedly a gentleman's game, as all athletic contests should be, it is said that so much cheating was found in measuring the height of a pony that the 14.2 rule was abandoned.

Be that as it may, the game today is wide open so far as horseflesh is concerned. In order to appreciate what is demanded in a polo pony one needs only to think how much difference a few pounds makes in a race horse's track speed or in the burden of a horse pulling a wagon along a muddy road. Then ponder the fact that a polo pony must carry anywhere from 150 to 250 pounds at top speed for 7½ minutes filled with the great strain of frequent sudden starts, stops, and turns. The action picture taken during a recent international contest gives an illustration of what horses are required to do. The ones that can run faster and handle better are the valuable animals.

Different authorities place different values on the part ponies play in winning a game of polo. Without doubt it is in the neighbodhood of 75 per cent. A poorly mounted team simply doesn't win. In addition to speed, handiness, and soundness, good manners and good mouth are essential in a pony. Speed loses its value if the player is unable to keep his pony on the field. Likewise a good mallet man is useless to his team if his opponents always beat him to the ball. Is it any wonder that it is difficult to condense the innumerable qualities of a good polo pony into a type classification? It is conceded, however, by all with knowledge of the game that most ponies possessing best qualities for good polo are thoroughbreds.

Next Sunday—Draft Horses.

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND was born in Tokio, Japan, July 1, 1916. She is of English descent. When she was 3 years old her family brought her to Saratoga, Cal., where she was educated. She attended Saratoga Grammar school, Notre Dame convent, and Los Gatos Union High school. She won a scholarship to Mills college in Berkeley and planned to teach dramatic art, but read about Max Reinhardt's production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in Hollywood bowl and went right down to Hollywood. She won the job of understudy for the rôle of Hermia. Luck was with her, for Gloria Stuart, who was to play the rôle, was called to the studio for some film work. Olivia's performance brought a film contract with Warners. Since then she's played the feminine leads in many screen productions. She's 5 feet 4 inches in height and weighs 107 pounds.

• • •

MADELEINE CARROLL, according to those who know her well, possesses not only beauty but brains as well. A graduate of Birmingham university in England, she taught French for a year just to please her parents. Then, with the $100 she had saved, she went to London and joined a road company. She was with the legitimate theater only a short time when she was given a screen test and appeared in a number of pictures. In 1934 she came to America. Her first movie here was "The World Moves On," in which she played opposite Franchot Tone. Miss Carroll was born in West Bromwich, England, Feb. 26, 1905. She's 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 116 pounds. She's married to Capt. Philip Astley.

• • •

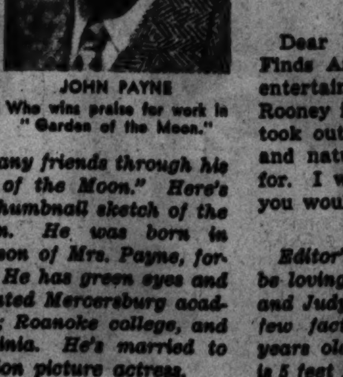
ERROL FLYNN was born in the north of Ireland on June 20, 1909. He was educated at the Lycée Louis-le-Grand in Paris and at St. Paul's school in London. While in school he devoted all of his time to the usual college sports. When he finished he went to Tahiti for the pearl fishing. While there an English film company arrived to shoot scenes for "Mutiny on the Bounty." They offered Errol the leading rôle, that of Fletcher Christian (a rôle played later in the American version by Clark Gable). Flynn played on the English stage in "A Man's House," "Othello," "Another Language," and others. A Warner Brothers scout offered him a contract to go to Hollywood. He's married to Lili Damita. He's 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 180 pounds.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have just seen "Garden of the Moon," in which John Payne did a very good bit of acting. Would you print a picture of him? Also would you tell me something about him? I would think that Mr. Payne should be starred in more pictures, bigger pictures, and better parts. Although I think he did a fine job in "Garden of the Moon."

PHILIP ROBERTSON.



JOHN PAYNE

Editor's note: Mr. Payne made many friends through his work in "Garden of the Moon." Here's his picture and a thumbnail sketch of the handsome gen'man. He was born in Roanoke, Va., the son of Mrs. Payne, former opera singer. He has green eyes and brown hair. Educated Mercersburg academy, Pennsylvania; Roanoke college, and University of Virginia. He's married to Anne Shirley, motion picture actress.

Dear Miss Tinée: The other night I saw my favorite actor, James Stewart, in "You Can't Take It with You." I am sure it was the best show I have ever seen.

Could you please tell me a little about him? Yours truly,

GRACE JORGENSEN.

Editor's note: Here's a little somethin' about James Stewart: He was born in Indiana, Pa., May 20, 1911. He's 6 feet 2½ inches tall and has brown hair and gray eyes. Educated Mercersburg academy in Mercersburg, Pa., and Princeton university. His hobby is model airplanes. Before entering motion pictures he appeared on the stage.

Dear Miss Tinée: The movie "Love Finds Andy Hardy" is just the kind of entertainment the public goes for. Mickey Rooney is swell. But it's Judy Garland I took out my pen for. Her voice, talent, and naturalness are what I admire her for. I would appreciate it very much if you would give me a brief bit about her.

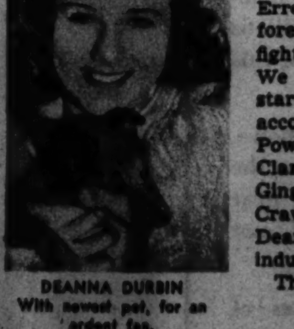
LORRAINE BLAHNIK.

Editor's note: All the world seems to be loving the Hardy family! Yes, Mickey and Judy did good work—and here are a few facts about little Judy: She's 15 years old, has brown hair and eyes, and is 5 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 106 pounds. Her folks were in vaudeville, and when Judy was 6 years old she teamed up with her sisters and sang. The act broke up when one of her sisters married—and a short time later little Miss Garland went to Hollywood and broke into the movies. Her first part was in a two-reel "short."

Dear Mae Tinée: I have recently seen Deanna Durbin's latest picture, "That Certain Age." She is my favorite actress of the younger set. Would you please tell me something about her? Also would you tell me where I could get a picture of her?

Sincerely,

A READER AND FAN.



DEANNA DURBIN
With newest pet, for an ardent fan.

Editor's note: Glad to furnish the information. For a quarter Universal studio, Universal City, Cal., will, I am sure, furnish you with her picture. Deanna was born in Winnipeg, Canada, Dec. 4, 1922. She's 5 feet ¼ inches tall, weighs 112 pounds, and has blue eyes and brown hair. Her real name is Edna Mae Durbin. Educated Manchester Avenue school and the Bret Harte school in Los Angeles.

Dear Miss Tinée: Recently I read a statement published in the Voice of the Movie Fan with which I thoroughly disagree. It was contributed by Joanne Miller.

Notice, Joanne! According to you, "The pictures would be very dull if there wasn't any Sonja Henie born in Norway, and Errol Flynn," etc. I feel that even if the foreigners do offer variety in movies, I'll fight for Americans through and through! We really could do without the foreign stars if we had to, but what would we accomplish without Nelson Eddy, Tyrone Power, Robert Taylor, James Stewart, Clark Gable, Gary Cooper, Myrna Loy, Ginger Rogers, Jeanette MacDonald, Joan Crawford, Joan Blondell, Bette Davis, and Deanna Durbin to heighten the movie industry? Do you see my point?

Thank you, Miss Tinée.

DOROTHY KEMPKA.

Editor's note: Now, you and Joanne had better just shake hands across the column and be friends.

Chicago's Car Barn Bandits

Relentless Killers, They Met Relentless Law

By WILLIAM SHINNICK

THERE were three of them, and Jesse James was their only hero.

The Chicago of thirty-six years ago, which knew and dreaded them as the car barn bandits, never grew sentimental over them. It recognized them for what they were—youthful criminals without redeeming qualities—and let the law make an end of them.

An atmosphere of cold ferocity clung to the trio, who had grown up together in a northwest side neighborhood, even when they stood in the shadow of the gallows. They were completely anti-social. They robbed for little sums as readily as for big, and they killed when killing served no purpose.

It was their boast that they had slain thirty-three persons. Doubtless this was an exaggeration. But they certainly murdered eight, and probably at least four others.

• • •

Quiet hung over the car barns at 61st and State streets at 3 a. m. on Aug. 30, 1903. Occasionally a horse-drawn truck lumbered past on the cobblestones. Now and again a car arrived. Conductors quickly turned in their receipts and departed. A few motormen, arriving early to go out on their runs, talked desultorily in a waiting room. One dropped asleep.

Without preface three strangers broke in upon this peaceful scene. Their appearance told their aim. Masks in the form of hoods, made of old underwear cloth, covered their heads and dropped to their shoulders. Slits had been cut in these masks, and sharp eyes glinted above weapons of a new type (the automatic or magazine pistol was not familiar then even to members of the police department).

The first man, who also carried a sledge hammer, walked into the office and confronted three employés. One was a clerk, Francis W. Stewart, who had been tallying receipts and placing the money in a strong box drawer. The second bandit took station at the office window, and the third stood as a sentinel at the door of the waiting room.

"I want that money," said the hammer man.

Later it was recalled that his voice was melodious. But it carried authority. Stewart did not resist. He remained quiet, seated. This did not save him. The man at the window fired at him twice. Both bullets took effect and the clerk fell, fatally wounded.

Marx

Van Dine

The gunman continued his shooting. The other two employés, each wounded, fled through an inner door. The window man, seemingly without reason, sprayed bullets recklessly into the walls and ceiling.

Aroused by the noise, the sleeping motorman, James B. Johnson, sat up jerkily. He had not realized what was going on, but the sentinel standing a few feet from him took no chances. He fired. A bullet crashed into Johnson's head and he was killed instantly.

Then more shooting. A general fusillade. The robber in the office dropped the hammer and stuffed all the money he could carry into a sack and his pockets. Much of it was silver, and the total loot was $2,250. Fleeing to the street, still shooting, the masked men ran through a vacant lot.

They had escaped. No one knew what they looked like. Nevertheless the bandits had left clews behind them. There was the hammer, which bore the initials of the Chicago and North Western railroad; and there were copper cartridge shells from the automatic pistols. These were different from the type in general use; yet others just like them had been found at the scene of a double killing in a north side saloon.

A policeman of the Sheffield avenue station, William Blaul, who later was a lieutenant and deputy chief of detectives, became interested in the investigation and after some weeks discovered the identity of the men.

There was an element of good fortune in this. A watchman, Paul Karkut, told him that he had seen three young men at target practice in a vacant lot near Belmont avenue and Robey street, and that when they went away he found automatic shells.

Blaul (he is now retired from the Chicago police and working as a state's attorney's investigator) saw the significance of this. Karkut helped him further. He knew the target shooters as young neighborhood toughs. Further, he knew their names—Gus Marx, Peter Neidermeier, and Harvey Van Dine. The sledge hammer clew fitted, too; Van Dine had worked for the North Western. Immediately Blaul and his partner, John Quinn, began a relentless hunt for the trio.

On Nov. 20 the policemen learned that Marx, Neidermeier, and Van Dine would meet the following night in Manny Greenberg's saloon at Addison and Robey streets and go together to an icemen's ball. At 8 p. m. on the 21st Blaul, looking over Greenberg's swinging door, saw the tall, raw-boned Marx standing alone at the bar.

Quickly adopting a plan of campaign, the policemen entered simultaneously, Blaul from the side door, Quinn from the front. Marx, surprised, whirled about and shot down Quinn, but two bullets from Blaul's pistol struck him. Still he battled on until Blaul, a noted athlete, struck him on the head with a pistol butt and put him out.

William Blaul as he looked shortly after the capture of the car barn bandits.

Neidermeier and Van Dine, upon learning of the fray, went into even deeper hiding. There was still another murder added to the gang's list, for Quinn died a few hours later.

Marx's wounds were not serious and after they had been dressed he was taken to the Sheffield station.

"I killed Quinn," he growled, "and I'll be hung for it. But you'll get no more out of me."

For more than a day Marx persisted in silence. The police of that era were not gentle. He went through the first, second and third degrees of persuasion. His eyes were so swollen that he could not see. One of his questions, "What time is it?" was repeated so frequently that the police, shrewdly attaching significance to it, deceived him. They told him it was Tuesday morning when it was only Monday morning. He was convinced.

"All right," he said, wearily, "those rats haven't kept their word with me, and I'll talk about them. Van Dine and Neidermeier were with me in the car barns. Neidermeier killed Stewart. I shot Johnson, and Van Dine carried away the money, which we divided in Jackson park. They were with me when Ben La Gross and Adolph Johnson got killed in the saloon. . . ."

It was a long confession. Marx told also what he meant by his remark that the others hadn't kept faith. They had all agreed that if one was captured the others would storm the police station and rescue him or die in the attempt. It appeared later that Van Dine and Neidermeier actually toyed with this plan.

But none of their fantastic plots came to fruition and on Nov. 25, when the Marx confession was made public, they understood that their confederate wasn't worth fighting for any longer and fled from the city.

Neidermeier and Van Dine went to the dunes country near Gary, which was much wilder then than now. With them they took another young criminal, Emil Roeski, who was little better than half witted. They hid in a crude dugout near Clarke, Ind. But they had to have supplies and they were suspected by a country storekeeper when they entered his place.

Eight detectives were sent to investigate. They found the dugout empty, but in the early snow they saw tracks and followed them to a second dugout west of Calumet Heights. Smoke was coming from its tin chimney. Cautiously the detectives approached, and when the hideout was surrounded Policeman John F. Sheehan cried, "Come out; we're deputies." From the interior was shouted the sinister message, "Come carry us out!"

The door swung open. There was a blast of pistol fire. Detective Joseph Driscoll fell, a bullet in his abdomen. The wound was fatal. Policeman Matt Zimmer, later a supervising captain, was struck on the forehead and right ear in an exchange of shots with Van Dine.

The bandits were too well protected, too handy with their weapons, for the depleted besieging force to overcome them. One man was sent on a handcar to Miller, Ind., where he telegraphed for help. Soon 75 more policemen were on their way.

But while some of his mates were attending Driscoll, the bandits slipped out, crawled through a ravine and walked four miles to East Tolleston, Ind. There Roeski deserted the others. He had no part in the last stages of the battle. Instead he went on foot to Aetna, Ind., fell asleep in the railroad station and was captured.

In a gravel pit at East Tolleston a train was being loaded. The engineer was off the locomotive when Neidermeier leaped into the cab and confronted Albert Coffey, the fireman, and L. J. Sovea, a brakeman.

"Uncouple," he commanded Sovea.

The brakeman hesitated, and doom overtook him. Neidermeier shot and killed him. Then Coffey complied with the order to detach the engine.

Roeski

Coffey protested that a limited train, westbound, was due soon. The order was repeated and he obeyed. The engine with its unwelcome load sped east. Tragedy was averted, however, when the engineer wired ahead and the wild engine was shunted into a siding at Liverpool. The bandits ran into a cornfield.

There the final act in the drama of blood was staged. The entire countryside had been aroused. Farmers had seized their shotguns and rifles and formed posses that rode the highways in buggies and spring wagons. When they heard Coffey's story they gathered, encircled the field and poured buckshot freely into the withered cornstalks. The weary fugitives, each struck several times with bird shot, but not seriously wounded, walked out with upraised hands. The hunt was over.

Back in Chicago they vied with Marx in confessing. Some of their tales were palpably false; some were plausible; some were certainly true. The police never believed that they actually killed thirty-three persons; yet they knew they had slain eight: Stewart and Johnson of the car barns, La Gross, Adolph Johnson, and Otto Bauder, another saloonkeeper; Policemen Quinn and Driscoll, and Sovea.

At their trial, which cost the state $60,000 and lasted more than two months, a vast amount of evidence was produced against the four men, for Roeski was included. He was found guilty of the Bauder murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. Later he was adjudged insane and died in an asylum.

No evidence was offered in behalf of the three principals. Lawyers made eloquent pleas for them, called them unfortunate boys maligned by the police and driven by brutality into making false confessions. But Assistant District Attorney Harry Olson stripped away the sentimentality when he forcefully voiced their philosophy: "Kill first and rob dead men. Kill the witnesses of your robbery and the law will reward you."

The sentence of each was to be hanged by the neck until dead.

Perhaps Van Dine softened just a little before he went to death. He turned to religion. "Though I shall die on the scaffold, I hope to go to heaven," he said piously.

There was no retreat from their hardness by Neidermeier and Marx. Marx died calmly, a sneer on his lips. Neidermeier, admittedly an atheist, attempted to commit suicide by swallowing matches. In his last moments he snarled at the law. He wouldn't walk to the gallows and deputy sheriffs carried him.

Super Speed in Air

By WAYNE THOMIS

DR. ERNST HEINKEL, one of the world's greatest aeronautical engineers and the chief manufacturer of German military airplanes, in a lecture in Berlin on airplane speeds has made many startling predictions about the limits to which airplane speeds can be pushed.

He also gave out information hitherto kept secret concerning the performances of some of Germany's latest fighting planes. He declared, for example, that the standard Heinkel 112U monoplane, being built in large numbers as a single-seat fighter, is capable of flying at 440 miles an hour. In substantiation of that statement Maj. Gen. Ernst Udet has flown one of these little bullets for 62.5 miles around a circuit at an average speed of 394 miles an hour.

In discussing the 112U, Heinkel compares its speed with that of the Italian Macchi seaplane that holds the world's absolute speed record at 440 miles an hour. The Italian plane had a double Fiat engine, liquid cooled, that developed 3,000 horsepower. The Heinkel monoplanes are being fitted with Junkers or Daimler-Benz engines that give for record-making purposes horsepower of only 1,700 at sea level. The additional speed Dr. Heinkel attributes to refinements in building of the air frame—wings, fuselage, landing gear, tail surfaces, motor installation, etc. A factor, he admits, is the development of the highly supercharged engine with a low weight-power ratio.

He illustrated his point in regard to power by showing that by increases in motor power alone the speed of airplanes—particularly land planes—would have been increased since 1920 from 160 miles an hour to 260 miles an hour. But with refinements in the air frame the speeds have soared to the 440-mile-an-hour bracket. In 1920 the drag (or resistance) set up by the various items in an airplane other than the wings, fuselage, and tail represented 46 per to ourselves. Life in the tropics can be very dull, but I was too much interested in a new environment to be bored. Also I was too much in love with my husband.

Little differences based on nationality and rearing cropped out occasionally, but the intimations of storms to come were slight. Karl had long since decided that he would end his connection with the exporting firm that employed him and would seek to make a place for himself in America.

We left in September for Chicago, where we visited for three weeks. In October we sailed for Germany. Karl maintained that it was only for a honeymoon. I am sure he meant just that, and I was glad to travel to his homeland. Had I only known how the German environment would affect him, how it would make him into a thoroughpaced Nazi, I think I would have remained in the United States.

• • •

We had been happy. We were still happy as we left the ship at Cuxhaven and boarded the boat train for Hamburg. I knew that there would be hardships for an American girl in a strange land, but I was determined to readjust myself, to understand this old country that was Karl's and by marriage mine, too.

At first all was easy. Our welcome was warm. In the Hamburg station Karl's mother was waiting for us, and so was his sister Else, a hearty young woman with red cheeks, black hair, and flashing brown eyes. Karl went forward for the first greeting from his mother, while Else hugged me with sincere warmth. They rejoiced at the return of the family's youngest son from the tropics, and they were unstintedly glad to see me again. Three bouquets were thrust into my arms as we left the station.

In the comfortable home where three generations of Reinkes had lived, coffee and cakes and good will awaited us. I still treasure the scene in the old-fashioned dining and living room. It is so easy to bring its clear lines into memory. Under the fierce light of the old lamp I can still see white-haired Mother Reinke, smiling, unceasingly active, serving us all and chatting in an amazing mixture of English and German. I can see Father Reinke, speaking his German sentences slowly, that I might understand a little, and smiling constantly to let me know that he approved of me. There were, besides, Sister Else and jolly Aunt Mida and sedate Aunt Anna—and Karl and myself.

No talk of politics was brought into that family circle. There was no mention of the troubles that had overwhelmed Germany after the war, nor of the misfortunes of the Reinkes. They were simply, these good, kindly folk, striving to make a strange girl from America welcome. They were showing me how gracious life in Germany might be. If it could have been like that always!

Already I knew a little of the restricted standard of living in my husband's country. So I ate sparingly of the butter. It is rationed strictly; each family gets just so much each week. Most of the good butter, I learned later, was reserved by the Reinkes for guests.

Late that night, when Karl and I were tucked into beds under great feather quilts, a secret was disclosed. From the darkness he told me in quiet tones that his brother Friedrich had been released that very day from a Nazi prison camp. It was a story typical of Germany today. Friedrich had been seized without warning and locked up without trial for ten weeks. For a time his parents could not discover even where he was. Now, as inexplicably, he was at liberty again.

We wondered why Friedrich had been singled out for persecution. He was a patriot. He had served in the World war, had been wounded five times, and had won the iron cross. Why? There was but one plausible answer. Friedrich, who had achieved success as a stage producer and director in Berlin, was in disfavor because he had refused to join the Nazi party.

That night I began to understand a little more of Germany. No one could appeal for justice in my husband's brother's case. His parents could only bow to the brute strength of government and hope that luck would be with him. I began to feel that I, too, had been trapped. It was as if the Nazis had discovered me, an alien who had married into Deutschland, who must be whipped into line. This experience of Friedrich's seemed a personal warning—young Frau Reinke must bend herself to every German's lot.

In the morning these dark premonitions vanished. We settled down to family life, visited friends, went sightseeing. Karl was delighted to be at home. I do not think my life held any happier period than the next week.

Mother Reinke began teaching me how to be a good German hausfrau. I helped her grind the coffee, beat the eggs, stir the batter for the marvelous dishes she prepared. And as I tended the soup pot or the oven I listened to her talk gayly of her youth, of her marriage nearly fifty years before, of the war years, and of Karl, whom we both loved.

An idyl soon to end.

• • •

Karl and I went to Berlin. We arrived at night and put up in a large hotel. The morning after our arrival I awoke early. The sun was shining, and I stepped out on the balcony of our room. Across the way, in a parklike space surrounded by a high brick wall, a man in black shorts was running around a cinder track. I called Karl to the window.

"Look," I said. "I wish I could exercise like that."

Then I noticed something that had escaped attention at first. There was barbed wire at the top of the wall, and a soldier with a rifle in his hands stood guard in a clump of bushes. The exercise ground belonged to a concentration camp.

Soon Friedrich arrived. He was active, blustery, bubbly. Conversation poured out of him. Karl, quiet and gentle, was quite overshadowed. He idolized this elder brother. Friedrich took this as his due. And he refused to be impressed by the view from our window.

"Those men over there," he said in his sharply clipped Oxford English, "are probably Nazis, being disciplined for small party irregularities. You should have seen the place where they put me."

Friedrich devoted the day to our entertainment. He loaded us into his little car and drove us to Potsdam to see the palace of Sans Souci. A marvelous place, but to me its most appealing feature was the view of the old farm windmill from the terrace.

Once Frederick the Great had claimed that old windmill, but the sturdy farmer who owned it went to law and after a great battle won. Frederick, the story goes, accepted his defeat gracefully and became the firm friend of the farmer. Who in Germany would oppose authority now?

Returning to Berlin, we checked out of the hotel and moved into a little pension that Friedrich had recommended. It was shabby, depressing, and I suggested after a few days that we leave it. Karl's feelings were wounded and he replied bitterly.

"You dare accuse Friedrich of bad taste!" he said. "You are a trouble maker. You speak English on the streets, in restaurants, so people will think that I—a German—am a silly foreigner. Like all Americans, you are extravagant, bent only on spending money. You cannot cook, you cannot keep house like a real frau. You wish only to travel, to hide your lack of ability that a wife should have."

There was more of this, and none of it complimentary. It was the first time Karl had shown me his true opinion of womankind. And for the first time I began to wonder whether my marriage had been a wise one.

His fit of temper passed and we moved soon to a more satisfactory pension on the Budapesterstrasse. The tension slackened, and I began to hope that that was nothing but surface irritation to account for that quarrel. We settled down to a round of exploration and of operagoing. There at least we were on common ground.

The opera performances were almost uniformly good. I appreciated all of them. But the audiences, their appearance and their behavior, interested me even more. Only the foreigners dressed in evening clothes. The German men wore dark suits or the omnipresent gray-green uniforms; the women, plain silk dresses or white blouses with black skirts.

During the long intermissions the custom was to promenade two by two around the corridors and foyers. It was here the contrast with the American operagoer was most marked. The German crowd was less adorned, less on its party manners. The faces of the women were shiny; few were rouged. But they were good and honest countenances, displaying steady strength, inborn courage, and real pleasure in the music.

These Germans were disciplined, in the opera house as everywhere else. Never was an artist interrupted by applause during a number; the rule—adhered to closely—was to applaud only at the end of the acts. Then the clapping was thunderous. The system is a help to the artists.

During the long operas of the Ring trilogy, which begin at 6 and last to midnight, the intermission promenaders stopped in supper rooms to consume beer, wine, sandwiches, and salads—another excellent custom.

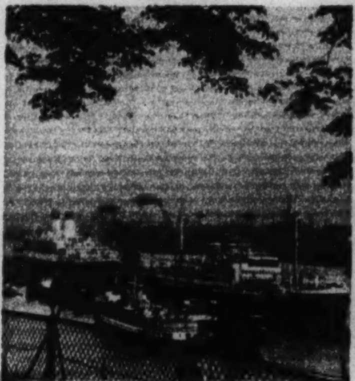
No matter where one meets the Germans, they seem (unless politics is involved) modest and well behaved. They are serious, almost sad, if one can generalize about a race. But there are extremes of character beneath the stolid exterior. In trouble or discouraged, your German tends to drop into despair's depths. In success he becomes a superman, fired with furious energy and pride.

It is Hitler's strength that he understands that this people wants most of all prestige and honor.

• • •

In spite of all our activities in Berlin, constraint was growing between my husband and me. I tried to be calm, to see that he was trying, just as I was, to adjust himself to an unfamiliar life. But it became increasingly difficult to listen to his biting remarks without some come-back. Karl was becoming obsessed by his belief that Germany was the victim of monstrous cruelty growing out of the peace treaty at Versailles.

"You do not know what suffering is." "You take nothing seriously." "You are unhappy over unimportant things while Germany suffers." These are but samples of the strange things he said to me. He and Friedrich and Deutschland, it seemed, were being martyred, and I was in some way responsible.



The harbor at Hamburg.

I wondered, there in a foreign country, what had become of the two persons who had loved each other enough to cross oceans, to give up home ties, that they might be together and build their own lives anew.

I rejoiced when we could leave Berlin. After a short visit to relatives in Stettin we returned to Hamburg, where we leased a small apartment. Karl selected it. There was a kitchen, a bedroom, a living room with a music alcove, and a bathroom. There were no closets, kitchen cabinets, or refrigerator. German housewives buy their own wardrobes and keep most of their foodstuffs in open-air pantries.

Many of the pieces with which we furnished the little flat came from Mother Reinke's attic. Others were purchased in second-hand stores. In the end we had an odd conglomeration of many styles of furniture. But we liked things as they were. Karl was less critical now, and I was again hopeful that things would turn out well in the end. I renewed my efforts to become a good hausfrau.

That was not so easy. Germany's food supply is restricted. Before we could get our ration of butter Karl had to take both our passports to the police and register us as consumers. Twice a week a half pound was delivered. Tuesday's butter was adulterated with margarine and was often strong. Saturday's came from Denmark and was delicious. The Danes could have sent more, but the import regulations forbade. There was also a small allowance of cooking margarine, which wasn't very good, to speak conservatively.

Eggs were scarce; often we had none for weeks. When the milkman had any he rationed them, two or three to a household. There is a law that no family may keep more than seven chickens, because chickens are grain fed, and there is not enough grain to supply the human population with all it needs. Mother Reinke shared with us the eggs that her little flock laid, so we were really better off than many of Hamburg's folk.

German milk seems to be without cream, but we were glad to get it as it was. About the breakfast rolls, or brotchen, there could be no complaint. These were placed each morning in a little basket hung on the doorknob. They were of a sandy color, made (a legal regulation) of a mixture of wheat and corn flour. Actually they were delicious, and the Germans never seem to be worried about the disappearance of white bread from their diet.

Our usual breakfast consisted of rolls with hot chocolate and cheese, sausage or jam. We ate supper at home, too, and supplies in the stores were varied enough to let us have what we needed except in the way of fresh vegetables, which are seldom found in winter. We dined out, and the menus in the restaurants, while not so extensive as in America, were adequate and the cooking was good.

Nothing in Germany is wasted. Garbage is carefully sorted. Potato peelings and other food scraps are fed to hogs. Newspapers are cleaned, pressed, and used again in paper making; tooth paste tubes as well as tin cans are melted down and reworked; bottles are collected by the Hitler Youth. It was not unusual for a storekeeper to ask if the buyer would take the package unwrapped so he could save paper.

Germans take these economies as a matter of course. They have long been accustomed to privation. What they are undergoing now is nothing to the conditions during and after the war. Karl recalled that for days he had eaten nothing but turnips. Then the inflation came and wiped out the little fortune of the Reinkes. They had left not even enough money to give him violin lessons, which he wanted passionately as a boy.

Invariably his reminiscences led up to bitter talk of politics. Karl was like the other millions of Germans who had been humiliated and had suffered. The memories destroyed the influence of the pleasant years he had had in the tropics.

"The world shall be made to pay for the degradation and disgrace of the Versailles treaty," he said. "You will see that French and British diplomacy can no longer imprison the German Reich. Hitler will soon make an end of their tricks."

He told me, too, what he thought of the Jews. His view, harsh and illogical though it was, was typical of the German masses.

"We regard Jews as communists and international agents of revolution," he said. "They control most of the world's money, but seek to become still richer at the expense of Aryans. We want law and order. We are gradually ridding ourselves of these leeches. They have no country, no loyalty, and can never be patriots. We are finished with them."

Then he lectured me on the injustice done Germany at Versailles. We could never see eye to eye on the invasion of Belgium. He maintained that the world understood no argument but force. To listen was difficult when no reply was permitted. My counteropinions were always torn in pieces and tossed back to me. The wisest thing to do, if I was to stay his wife, was to maintain silence.

My husband no longer criticized the Nazis for the way they had treated his brother. The party was now beyond opposition. And I—I was still an American. I could not remake myself into the mold of a German hausfrau. How far apart we were!

• • •

The first Sunday of December, 1937, we went to tea in the home of some wealthy cousins of Mother Reinke. One of the guests was the head of a large Hamburg shipping firm, who informed me without qualification that Germany intended to have back her African colonies and that "nothing can prevent it." Another was a heavy man in a full Nazi uniform, with a red swastika on his left arm.

The refreshments were delicious. When we had finished eating our host rose and made a long and seemingly serious speech. I understood only a little of it, but its purport was friendly. There were highly complimentary references to Karl and to me. He was trying obviously to give us a good send-off with the other guests.

Then he introduced the Nazi, who walked dramatically to the head of the table, saluted in the familiar Nazi gesture, and said loudly, "Heil Hitler!" It seemed hardly the occasion for a political harangue, but he gave one. He talked vigorously of peace and war, justice and injustice, of truth and loyalty and their opposites. In hushed, almost reverent words he spoke of Hitler the Fuehrer.

To give the others justice, I do not believe the speech was expected. Perhaps the Nazi gentleman, who had been a chaplain during the war, had been asked to make a genial little talk and had been carried away by his opportunity to proselyte. Whatever the explanation, the little gathering was changed. No longer was it a friendly social group. This heavy man in uniform had made them all (myself excluded) awed, blank-faced conformists to the national pattern.

I noticed the change at once. From a scene that was gay and light-hearted the atmosphere became tense and heavy. When the Nazi chaplain finally finished the host motioned us all into the drawing room. The guests stood around in stiff groups, hardly speaking. No one smiled. I was puzzled and a little frightened. I found my way over to Karl and begged him to leave.

"You will stay until the rest of us are ready to leave," he said sharply. Again he was distant and formal, without sympathy.

"But you don't like this party, either, do you?" I ventured. Karl frowned, started to speak, then stopped. Evidently this wasn't the right thing to say. I was to regret it.

He's HERS—for keeps!

Now that the struggle's over, she'll gladly admit the help she got from Camay, the Soap of Beautiful Women. "He liked my skin," she said. "For every man prizes a clear, satin-smooth complexion in the girl he loves. It's the first thing he notices. And Camay's gentle cleansing gets a large share of the credit for mine."

Many happy brides echo her words. "If your own man is still 'just out of reach,' try Camay!"

The Moving Finger Writes Story of Beauty

1 First step in the scientific manicure is the removal of old polish, using a pad or cotton saturated with a mild, efficient remover.

2 DON'T let the operator do this. Insist, especially if nails break easily, on having the tip, not the sides, shaped.

3 This is the right way. If nails are permitted to grow up at sides you'll find nails grow longer and stronger.

4 A rich nail cream should be massaged into nail and cuticle, using a rotary motion. Cream should be used at home, too.

Give the Manicure a Hand—Your Hand—but Be Sure She Treats It Right

By ELEANOR NANGLE

WE CAN remember the time when the woman whose nails weren't naturally beautiful thought she didn't have a chance. Nail beautifying stopped at cleanliness and nature took care of their shape.

That day is happily past. The experts refuse to cry "uncle" when confronted with even the most unshapely, most stubbornly ailing nails. And they accomplish miracles these days. It would be hard to estimate the strides that have been made in the field of corrective manicuring.

The advent of colored nail polishes was a blessing in disguise. They made women pay attention to the health of the nails; a new emphasis was placed on the whole problem of hand and nail grooming when the day of tinted polishes dawned.

In a few—a very few—instances a physical condition is the cause of brittle, peeling nails. In such cases, of course, the cause dictates the cure and the physician's is the guiding hand. For the most part, however, corrective manicures and intelligent home care will restore unshapely, brittle nails to beauty.

The method of manicure is important. The way of a maid with her manicure implements can make all the difference between ugly, irritated nails and lovely, healthy ones. Promiscuous cutting of the cuticle is to be avoided. Gentle training is best. Even the good old standby of nail care, the steel file, isn't as popular as it once was.

The emery board, with its less harsh approach, is preferred by many operators who specialize in corrective manicuring. And more and more operators are learning to leave the sides of the nails alone. Nails should be shaped across the tip, with unmolested growth at the sides. This makes the nail much less prone to split and break.

The most recent development in manicures is the use of a new emulsified oil treatment to restore the surface oil and moisture which is sapped by various forces, some external and some internal. After shaping the nails are soaked in the rich oil, which is heated. Brittle nails and ragged cuticle alike benefit by this intensive lubrication. Since this oil has been placed on the market (it is used only in beauty shops) we have seen some remarkable results with stubbornly unhealthy nails.

If you value the beauty and health of your nails, remember that the manicure, which should be a weekly affair on your schedule, can be very good or very bad. Beware the manicurist who is too rough, or careless about cleanliness. Insist on a good make of polish and other preparations—and if brittle nails are your problem do try hot oil treatments.

5 The nails which have been shaped are immersed in a rich emulsified oil, heated, which benefits dry nails and cuticle.

6 After soaking, the nails are scrubbed with soap and water; then lotion makes the cuticle soft and pliable.

7 Polish. To make the nails look longer and better groomed it's a good trick to bring it right to the tip.

8 The final step is a thorough scientific massage with a rich hand cream to soften and whiten the skin.

Valentine Day Glamor for Ice Cream, Cake

By MARY MEADE

ROSES ARE RED, violets blue, and there's a little more than a week left in which to give a valentine party. The word "party" always has meant ice cream and cake more than any other refreshment, but for a valentine party both ice cream and cake should be just a wee bit glamorized.

VALENTINE MOUSSE
(1½ pints)

- ⅓ cup sugar
- ¾ cup water
- 2 egg whites, beaten stiff
- 1 cup cream, whipped
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ cup grape nuts

Boil sugar and water to 232 degrees, or until the sirup spins a thread when dropped from the tip of a spoon. Pour slowly over stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Continue beating until the mixture is cool. Fold in cream and vanilla. Add grape nuts. Freeze in refrigerator tray at coldest temperature or turn into a mold, cover with waxed paper, then with a close-fitting cover, and pack in equal parts ice and salt for three to four hours. Turn out and decorate with maraschino cherries.

Fresh or frozen strawberries might be used as decoration instead of the cherries. Or you may like to add enough cherry juice to the mousse to tint it a light rose before freezing. Finely chopped cherries might be added with the grape nuts, for more color.

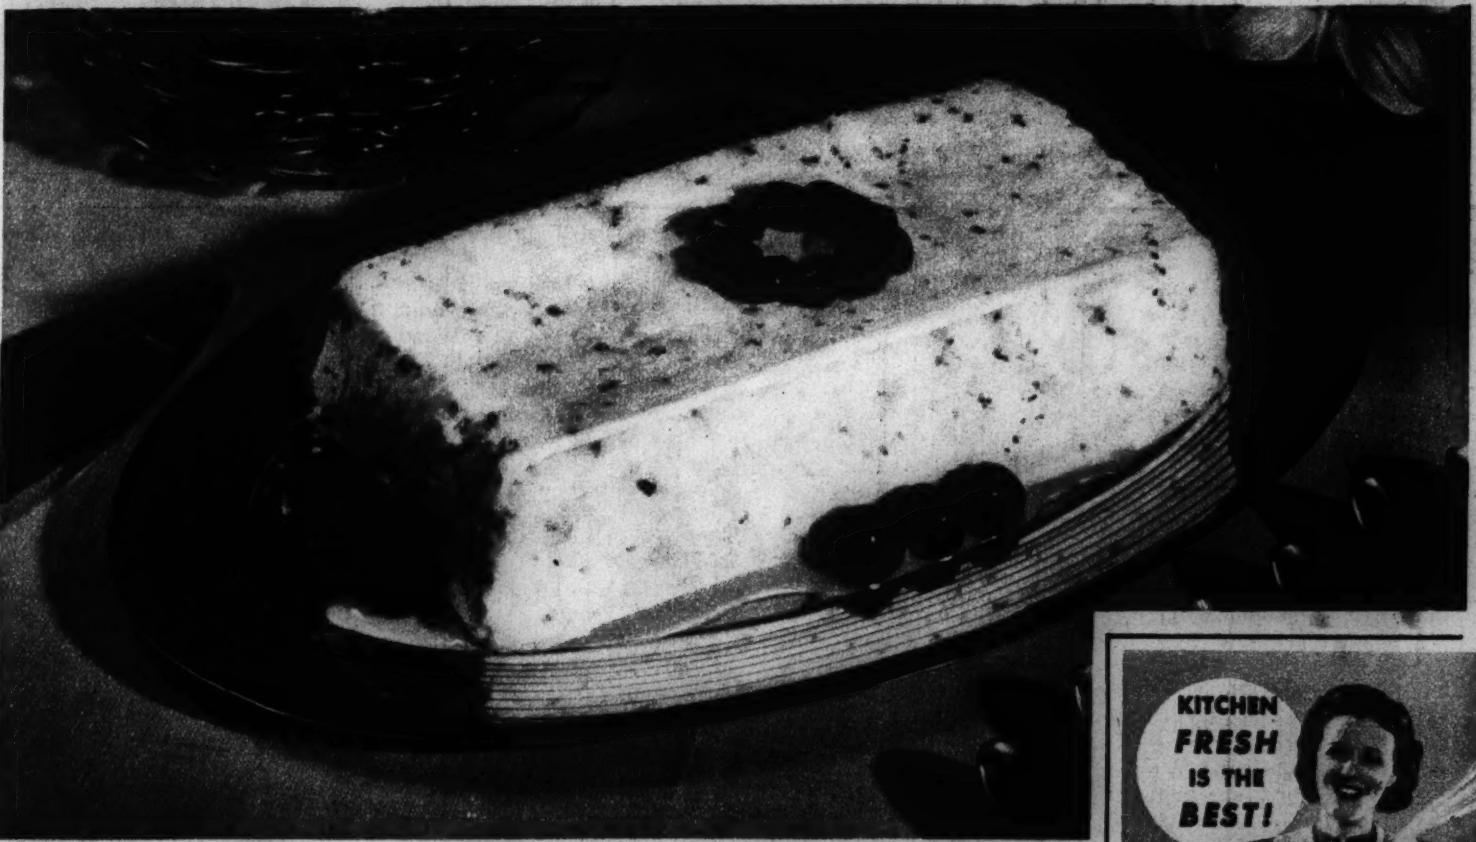
CHERRY MARSHMALLOW MOUSSE
(Serves six to eight)

- 32 marshmallows
- 1 cup cherry juice
- 1 cup canned cherries, slightly sweetened
- 1½ cups whipping cream, whipped

Put marshmallows and a tablespoon of the cherry juice in the top of a double boiler and heat. Fold over and over until marshmallows are about half melted. Remove from heat and continue folding until marshmallows have formed a smooth, fluffy mass. Cool. Blend in the rest of the cherry juice and the cherries, which have been chopped fine. (Use a pair of scissors for easy chopping.) Fold in whipped cream. Pour mixture into freezing tray or into individual paper cups and freeze without stirring at coldest temperature.

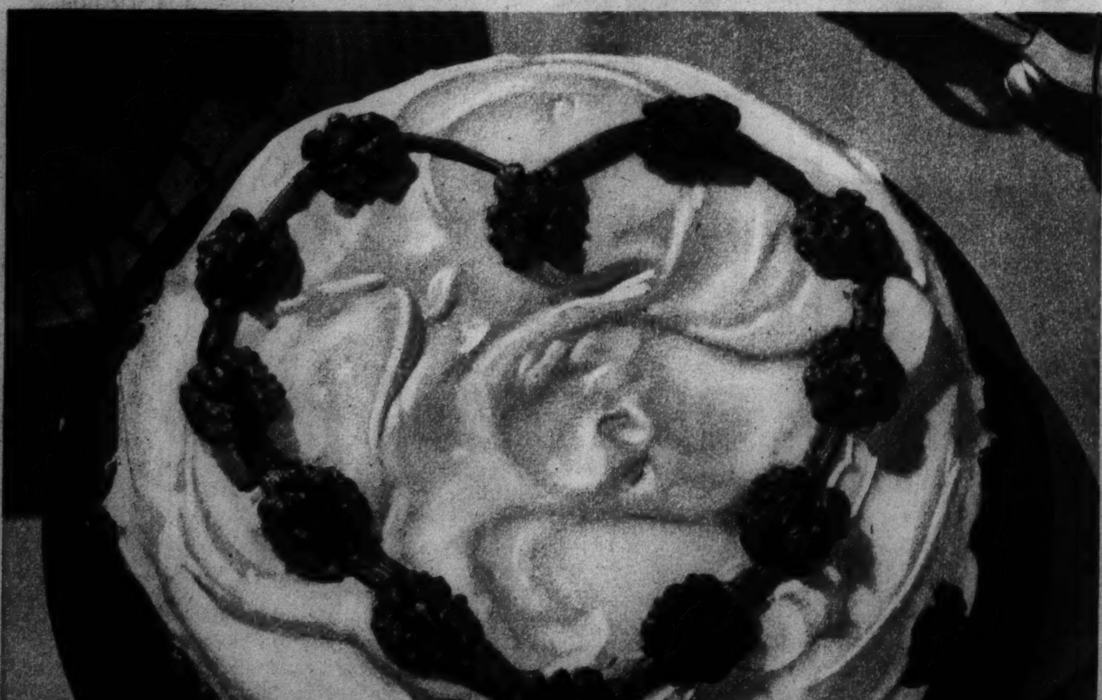


Valentine mousse is made with a sirup meringue base. Sugar and water are boiled until they spin a thread, then poured slowly over beaten egg whites. Whipped cream, flavoring, and grape nuts, the latter to give a slight crunchy texture, are added, and the mixture is ready to freeze.

DEVIL'S FOOD WALNUT CAKE
(Two 8-inch layers)

- ⅓ cup shortening
- 1¼ cups brown sugar
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup boiling water
- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate
- 1⅓ cups sifted cake flour
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup finely chopped walnuts
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup sour milk or buttermilk

Cream shortening thoroughly. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Add beaten eggs, mixing well. Pour boiling water over chocolate and stir over low heat until smooth and thick. Cool and add to the shortening, sugar, and egg mixture. Mix well. Sift flour, soda, baking powder, and salt together three times and add nuts. Combine milk and vanilla. Alternately add dry and liquid mixtures, beating well after each addition. Turn batter into two greased and wax paper lined layer pans and bake at 375 degrees for twenty to thirty minutes. Fill and frost with boiled frosting or seven-minute frosting. Tint a small part of the frosting with red coloring and pipe it from a pastry bag onto the top of the frosted cake, shaping a heart, for a valentine theme. Place walnut halves around the sides of the cake and along the red piped outline.



At left: Any layer cake may be decorated with a valentine theme. This is a devil's food cake, with nuts in the cake and on the frosting.

Cathedrals—a Link to Past

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

THROUGHOUT Europe during medieval times there flourished the golden age of architecture. This had its noblest expression in splendid churches and cathedrals that were designed by master architects and executed by skilful builders.

Many of these magnificent ecclesiastical structures were razed later as the result of the barbarity of war or the jealousy and hate of kings, but fortunately many others still remain, their classic and perennial beauty a priceless link to the far past.

The great cathedral of Orleans was demolished nearly 400 years ago. In more recent times the cathedrals of Cambrai, Arras, and Avranches, the marvelous Romanesque church of Cluny, and other historical structures were torn down. But still standing are countless edifices in France, Italy, Germany, Spain, England, and elsewhere that tell the glories of that golden age.

It was about A. D. 1000 that architecture throughout central and western Europe enjoyed a spirited rejuvenation. The famous builders of that time began creating structures in a style based upon the earlier Roman, but modified in various countries and regions by national and local influence. The style thus developed came to be known as Romanesque, the term itself meaning a resemblance to the Roman. It incorporated in addition some of the best features of the more easterly architectures, including the Greek and the Byzantine.

The interior of Reims cathedral—a dramatic illustration of the splendor of medieval architecture.

For about a century and a half Romanesque architecture held sway in Europe. Then it was almost completely discarded in favor of the Gothic, although in modern times there has been a revival of some of its most pleasing features.

In Romanesque structures thick walls were a necessity if they were to be stable. Equilibrium was attained by dead load of stone upon stone, by sheer mass. An identifying feature of the Romanesque was the plain semicircular arch. But this was found to have disadvantages in interior construction from the fact that it lacked the freedom subsequently found to be provided by the pointed arch of the Gothic style. The last named enabled builders to establish the height of vaults without regard to the width of rooms.

According to Talbot F. Hamlin of Columbia university, an authority on architecture, the general effect of Romanesque architecture, both structurally and decoratively (except in southern Italy), is that of power and somber gloom.

Stones for these old Romanesque edifices, many of them of sizable proportions, were hand cut at the scene of building operations. Timbers also were brought to the site in the original logs and there sized and shaped as needed. Interior timber work embraced the use of intricate joints. Wooden pegs and dowels served where metal bolts, screws, and nails now are employed. The colored glass windows of Romanesque churches were simple in design, generally disclosing no attempt to be pictorial. Stone carving for decorative purposes was definitly an art in this period.

Abbaye-aux-Dames, or Ste. Trinite, famous Romanesque edifice in Caen, France, erected at the command of Matilda of Flanders, wife of William the Conqueror.

In many places in Europe there are standing splendid examples of Romanesque architecture. In Caen, France, in particular are well preserved Romanesque structures in a good state of repair. These include the two famous abbeys built by William the Conqueror and his wife, Matilda of Flanders. That of the Conqueror is known as the Abbaye-aux-Hommes, or St. Etienne. It was completed about 1070, and in it today there is a marble slab marking the former resting place of William, whose ashes were scattered by the Calvinists when they pillaged the Abbaye-aux-Hommes in the sixteenth century.

The abbey of the the Conqueror's wife, Abbaye-aux-Dames, or Ste. Trinité, was begun about 1059 and dedicated in 1066, shortly before William descended on England to triumph at the battle of Hastings.

• • •

Other outstanding examples of Romanesque architecture in Europe are the cathedral group in Pisa, the church of St. Zeno Maggiore in Verona, St. Trophime in Arles, the church of the Apostles in Cologne, and Romsey abbey in Hampshire.

As previously mentioned, Romanesque architecture flourished about 150 years. It was in 1150 that it was supplanted by a slenderer and more energetic type of building now known as Gothic, which, like the Romanesque, had its finest expression in churches and cathedrals.

Gothic architecture, briefly defined, is that in which structures are built with ribs that intersect and in which thrusts are stopped by buttresses. Whereas Romanesque depended on thick walls, Gothic went to the other extreme, with walls that were mere shells, and with an active skeleton or bone structure of stone, consisting of piers, arches, and buttresses.

The common buttress and the flying buttress, the last named a feature of construction represented in the upper portion of Tribune Tower, were typical of Gothic architecture, as was the pointed arch.

In no other country in Europe was Gothic architecture brought to its highest point of excellence as it was in France, where delicate stone tracery was employed with marvelously artistic results.

According to Elizabeth Boyle O'Reilly, French Gothic churches are a fountainhead and should rank first. In her book "How France Built Her Cathedrals" this author pointed out that many of the famous cathedrals of England, Spain, Germany, Austria, and Italy were the result of the inspiration provided by the celebrated Gothic cathedrals of France.

The four greatest Gothic cathedrals of France are in Paris (Notre Dame), Chartres, Reims, and Amiens. The Chartres cathedral is a marvelous example of Gothic architecture when it was at its zenith. The cathedral was completed upon the site of earlier edifices in 1240, and there have been additions to it and alterations since.

The south spire, the Clocher Vieux, 351 feet high, was finished with the original structure; but the north spire, the Clocher Neuf, 377 feet high, was not completed until the sixteenth century. The cathedral is 440 feet long, its choir measures 150 feet across, and the vaulting is 121 feet high, truly an imposing structure. Its exterior buttressing, to support the interior vaulting, is essentially a feature of Gothic construction.

• • •

The name of the architect of the Chartres cathedral is unknown, although its unity of plan is evidence that it originated from the brain of one man. Decorative glories of the cathedral are its wealth of stained glass and its sculptured portals. Although as many as 10,000 personages are represented in its decorations, they are kept subordinate to the purity of the edifice as a whole.

More imposing and more massive than the cathedral of Chartres, and certainly more decorative, is the huge cathedral of Reims, the corner stone of which was laid by Bishop Albéric de Humbert in 1211. The original plan of the structure was that of Jean d'Orbais, although other architects contributed later to its design. The first three of these others were Jean de Loup, Gaucher de Reims, and Bernard de Soissons. The last named was employed at the task thirty-five years, the edifice being completed in its main parts by the end of the thirteenth century.

Reims cathedral, exterior. Traces of the damage done by German shells during the World war still can be seen on the front.

At right: Church of St. Clement Danes in London, an example of Renaissance architecture. It was designed by Sir Christopher Wrenn and completed in 1684.

This magnificent cathedral, in which the kings of France used to be crowned, has miraculously escaped destruction many times. Fires time upon time have damaged it, and during the World war the Germans fired shell after shell into its wonderful statuary and through its classic walls. In the bombardment the celebrated rose window above the main portals was damaged, other windows were pulverized, and the Angel spire destroyed, but the gallery of kings, that celebrated line of figures above the rose window, escaped damage.

Despite the excellence and beauty of Gothic architecture, it, like every other work of man, was certain to be supplanted in time. In the late fourteenth and the early fifteenth century there was a rebirth in Italy of classical design in art and letters—the Renaissance. This gradually spread westward through Europe and later to America.

Renaissance architecture as originating in Italy was based upon the study and adaptation of the Roman classic order and design. The spirit of verticality, so remarkably developed by the Gothicists, was abandoned. In the Renaissance style the column was used in free-standing colonnades, as an engaged column partly buried in walls, and as a pilaster to decorate wall surfaces and frame openings. Renaissance structures have the appearance of great solidity.

• • •

Churches and cathedrals were erected everywhere in Europe along Renaissance lines. Then virtually all government buildings, palaces, university halls, and other large structures followed this style of construction. Renaissance architecture developed into the modern structural styles. In fact, modern architecture is said to be merely a progressive phase of the Renaissance.

Among notable structures built in the Renaissance style are the church of St. Clement Danes in London, erected in 1684 after plans by Sir Christopher Wren; St. Paul's of London, designed also by Wren; St. Peter's in Rome; the Louvre in Paris; Blenheim palace, Oxfordshire; King Philip II.'s celebrated Escorial near Madrid, and the cathedral of Florence.

Architects of today borrow freely from the Romanesque, the Gothic, and the Renaissance in designing new structures, being careful in the main, however, to refrain from mixing unharmoniously these styles in their designs. A building of mixed architecture more frequently than not is in extremely bad taste and likely to be an eyesore.

Poll Tells of Feeding Methods

IN THE COURSE of a survey which we have been conducting on how certain well known kennels and breeders feed their young dogs we have received information on dog diets from more than fifty experienced breeders. Approximately thirty-five different breeds are represented in this survey. All of the data received from the kennels regarding the number of meals they give young puppies and the kind of foods they use now is being compiled in a quick, easy-to-read form.

In looking over the answers to our questionnaires this fact becomes very obvious: Practically every one of the breeders mentions not only the use of canned dog food but also the importance and value of a dried prepared food.

The use of prepared foods in big kennels (where the owners are keeping economy, quality, and the health of the dogs in mind) is no surprise.

For years we have been using both the canned dog food and the dry prepared food to feed our dogs at home. The canned dog food is a well balanced ration—not one of those very cheap three-for-a-nickel kinds. One has a choice in dry foods. There are meal-like dry foods, hard biscuits which give the dog good chewing exercise, hard compressed "nuggets" of dry food, and a broken biscuit which commonly is called a kibbled biscuit. Neither the dry nor the canned food ever has been refused by our dogs. Nor have any of these foods ever disagreed with them. The old myth about prepared foods affecting the condition of a dog's skin has been disproved in our home during the years that well made prepared foods have been a part of our dogs' diet.

At the present time our Sealyham, taught at an early age to eat a dried food, still likes it and four or five times a week he gets a kibbled biscuit for part of his evening meal. Sometimes we mix the biscuit with beef or lamb from the table. Frequently the biscuit is mixed with canned dog food and some vegetables. His weight is correct. His coat is so thick and wiry and in such good condition that Owen Craighead, the professional handler and terrier authority, commented on its excellence when we left the dog with him in order to have its coat trimmed. This diet of meat (both canned and fresh), biscuits, a few vegetables, a little yeast, and cod liver oil is keeping this dog healthy, devoid of skin troubles, and in perfect coat—just as this same feeding routine has agreed with larger breeds. Toby, our 68-pound clumber spaniel, also is getting this varied diet including a dry prepared food.

Quite commonly we hear dog owners complain that their pets won't eat a prepared biscuit. Or they refuse to eat canned dog food. Sometimes dogs won't touch raw meat! This is not surprising. There are dogs that are just as finicky eaters as humans are.

But it's safe to say that in seven out of ten cases when the pet refuses to eat a meal that varies slightly from the usual ration it's because the dog is spoiled and he knows the owner is going to come on the run to beg him to eat or give him something different.

When it comes to introducing a new food to your dog you have a choice of two methods. First, you can mix just a small amount of the new food with the dog's regular meal so he won't get the sensation of a very marked change. Or, as advised by many experienced breeders, make one bite of the cherry! Give the dog his meal with the new food. If he won't eat it, take it away for the night and let him go without dinner. It won't hurt him. The next night the chances are that the pet will eat what he is offered and be hungry enough to appreciate it.

DOG NOTES

The American Wild Life institute sent out a national release some time ago calling attention to the value of hunting dogs as conservation aids. "Our primary interest in hunting dogs is as an aid to conservation," says the institute. "Their main value in conservation is their ability to help the sportsman find the game he shoots."

At a field trial we heard a spectator speak of a "golden Labrador retriever." The man was slightly mixed up on his retrievers, because there is no such breed. The black Labrador is one of our most common retrievers, and there is also a yellow Labrador. The golden retriever is a distinct breed which is smaller than the Labrador and has a longer coat.

This English type cocker spaniel, Champion The Laird of Uxbridge, was the first American-bred English cocker to win its championship in this country. It's owned by Doris Flagg and Paul Moser, president of the Cocker Spaniel Club of the Middle West.

The Secret of Super Air Speed

cent of the total drag. By 1932 this ratio had been reduced to 38 per cent by improvements of various kinds in airplane design. By 1936 the drag of items other than wings, fuselage, and tail had been reduced to 12 per cent. In the latest planes the drag of the items other than wings, fuselage, and tail has entirely disappeared.

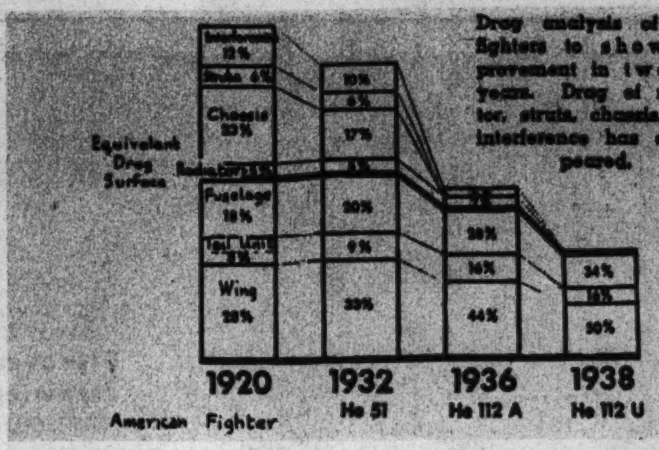
Throughout this development the wing has been the source of about half the main unit drag of any given plane, the fuselage the source of one-third, and the tail one-sixth.

• • •

Dr. Heinkel says that he is convinced that the speed of sound, 770 miles an hour at sea level, is the maximum attainable speed in an airplane driven with a propeller. And not even this maximum can be approached practically, because the speed of sound is reached in an air flow over an airplane wing long before the plane actually is moving at that speed in relation to the air mass through which it is flying. Thus, he says, speeds of betweeen 580 and 630 miles an hour are the absolute top for the conventional type of airplane.

The five chief problems of the airplane designer, he says, are as follows:

1. Removal of all parasitic bodies.
2. Reduction of frontal area.
3. Improvement of shape of main units.
4. Reduction of frictional drag.
5. Adjustment of shape to conform to compressibility requirements.



Drag analysis of four fighters to show improvement in twenty years. Drag of radiator, struts, chassis, and interference has disappeared.

In achieving present-day speeds, said Dr. Heinkel, the first two of these requirements have been pretty well met. He explained that in his 112U plane not a single parasitic item (i. e., resistance-creating excrescence such as an external bracing) remains. He said the clean, clear line for the plane had been achieved. In future developments he will be concerned only with the wing, fuselage, and tail.

Ernst Heinkel

Also the reduction of frontal area has been cut down by using an in-line liquid-cooled motor and placing the oil and coolant fluid radiators in the wings of his machine.

Landing speeds in planes have increased from 22 miles an hour in the first planes to from 75 to 85 miles an hour for most modern airplanes.

Except for special airplanes a speed of 95 miles an hour at landing is unlikely. Dr. Heinkel says that for normal military or transport work the 85-mile-an-hour limit is the maximum. He implies that his 440-mile-an-hour fighter lands at approximately 80 miles an hour.

He says that his latest planes have wing loadings of 40 pounds a square foot of wing area. This is exceptionally high and is approached only in the fastest racing airplanes in this country or in the latest and largest flying boats that have unlimited areas of water for takeoff and landing.

The effect of friction drag—the resistance created by the flow of air over the surface of a wing—becomes of great importance at high speeds, according to Dr. Heinkel. He says that in 1932 he recognized that rivet heads in an airplane caused as much as a 27 per cent increase in skin drag over the minimum drag of a polished surface. Flush rivets, now used in all his planes, reduced this drag to about 6 per cent.

In discussing the effect of compressibility of air Dr. Heinkel explains that at speeds above 375 miles an hour a slight "bow wave" begins to build up on an airplane. The drag is increased and the lift decreased. Ultimately, as the flow over a plane reaches the speed of sound, all lift is lost and drag increases enormously. This is the limiting factor in airplane speeds dependent upon wings and propellers for lift and propulsion.

This effect already is being taken into account in designing new wing sections. The leading edges of newer wings are sharper, and they are thinner.

• • •

Dr. Heinkel recommends development of propellers for efficiency at slow speeds during takeoff and at high operating speeds. He advocates the development of motors that can be buried in wings entirely, reducing drag from this source, and development of a two-speed gear for airplane engine crankshafts, so that propellers can be turned slowly during takeoff and rapidly at high speeds with equal absorption of power.

He also says that there must be development of lift-increasing devices, such as Fowler flaps and slots, in order to keep landing speeds down to practical limits.

First Aid when Nature Fails!

LEMON with SODA

TAKEN first thing daily on arising or the last thing every night, it's beneficial in two ways. It has a natural, gentle laxative effect for most people, hence, helps elimination.

Second, it helps keep the system normally alkaline, and adds the additional protection of vitamin C found abundantly in lemon juice.

1. Squeeze juice of one Sunkist lemon into tall glass half full of water.
2. Put half teaspoonful of bicarbonate soda in another glass.
3. Pour back and forth rapidly.
4. Drink when foaming subsides.

Try it 10 days, see if you don't benefit.

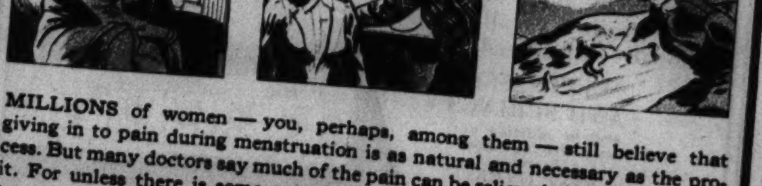
"I was living only eleven months a year"

Poor Peg! She really lived only eleven months a year. Utterly wasted a month of precious days, because she thought she had to avoid activity during menstruation to save herself discomfort and pain.

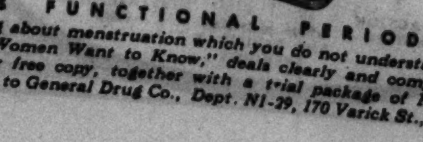
And now, the best skiing party of the winter—just at the wrong time. Luckily, Doris knew Peg's trouble, and how to help. "Midol keeps me on my feet," she said. "So you're taking some, right away!"

"Give Midol the glory for a grand afternoon," Peg later confides. "For fun I thought I'd have to pass by. There's going to be a new month on my calendar—a month of days no longer wasted!"



MILLIONS of women—you, perhaps, among them—still believe that giving in to pain during menstruation is as natural and necessary as the process. But many doctors say much of the pain can be relieved. And Midol proves it. For unless there is some organic disorder demanding medical or surgical treatment, most women who try Midol find it not only relieves the pain swiftly, but permits them to live normally, actively and comfortably through the time which they once gave up to inactivity and suffering. Midol is made for this special purpose. It acts quickly. A few Midol tablets should see you serenely through your worst day. All drugstores have Midol.

MIDOL



RELIEVES FUNCTIONAL PERIODIC PAIN

Is there anything about menstruation which you do not understand? Midol's new booklet, "What Women Want to Know," deals clearly and completely with this vital subject. For free copy, together with a trial package of Midol, send your name and address to General Drug Co., Dept. N1-29, 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y.

TEAMWORK'S FUN!

Boy Teaches Girl—Nancy Hoguet hits the bull's-eye! She follows the new skin care—"I cream my skin every day with Pond's Cold Cream. That puts extra 'skin-vitamin' into it, besides cleaning and softening it."

WISE GIRLS DEPEND ON THIS EXTRA SKIN CARE—THEY CREAM EXTRA "SKIN-VITAMIN" INTO THEIR SKIN*

Big Moment—Camilla Morgan, now Mrs. Remsen Donald, finds it takes two to cut a cake. "I'll always use Pond's Cold Cream—it's so grand for smoothing skin to make make-up thrilling."

All normal skin contains Vitamin A—the "skin-vitamin." Without this vitamin, skin becomes rough and dry. When "skin-vitamin" is restored, it helps skin become smooth again. Now this "skin-vitamin" is in every jar of Pond's Cold Cream. Use Pond's night, morning and before make-up. Same jars, same labels, same prices.

... brings you peace of mind

You will enjoy new peace of mind when you have the famous Gerber baby and all that he stands for, in your home. His picture on every can of Gerber's Baby Foods assures your getting vegetables specially grown for your own little baby. To make them more nourishing, more appetizing, they are raised in selected soils from pedigreed seeds which are certain to reproduce fine, healthy plants.

But this is not all. These finer vegetables are ripened entirely by the sun and unspoiled by long transportation. The Gerber farms grow right up to the doors of our spotless kitchens.

Shaker-Cooking is an exclusive Gerber process by which baby foods are cooked evenly inside sealed cans. The contents of each can are kept in motion (just as food in your own kitchen is stirred to prevent burning). This insures uniform cooking throughout, shortens cooking time, improves color and flavor. Make sure your baby gets the extra advantages of Gerber's!
